HUGHES MEN EXPECT WADSWORTHS' AID

Assurances of Support Said to Have Been Given in Niagara-Orleans Election.

DEMOCRATS ARE WORRIED

Anti-Gambling Crusade Is Taken Up in a Hundred Churches in the District.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 10.—With the Governor's campaign against race-track gambling and bossism taken up to-day in connection with the Senatorial contest in the Niagara-Orleans district in a hundred churches in the district, there came from an apparently authentic source a report that the Wadsworth forces were getting in line for William C. Wallace, the Republican candidate, who has pledged himself to support the Governor's reforms.

Should this prove true, and there is every indication of it, the election of Wallace over Henry A. McMahon, the Democratic candidate, is assured. Wallace so far has stood 8 to 10 in the betting.

The report reached some of the Democratic leaders through political channels that a pledge to Wallace had been given by the Wadsworths, and it has caused them a great deal of anxiety. Relying upon the bi-partisan pact whereby the Merritt-Wadsworth faction was to throw its support to them, they have conducted no campaign. Their candidate has not made a single speech, and has not even taken the trouble to state publicly where he stands on the gambling issue.

It is the impression here that the Wadsworth forces have been moved to act by the strong intimations by Gov. Hughes in his speeches in Niagara and Orleans that he might become a candidate for re-election on an anti-gambling and anti-bossism platform. James W. Wadsworth, the ambitious Speaker of the Assembly, has Gubernatorial aspirations. The elder Wadsworth, in common with all of the party bosses, would like to see Gov. Hughes eliminated as a factor in Republican politics in the State.

If the political retirement of Gov. Hughes can be assured and the way paved for the nomination of the younger Wadsworth by the passage of the Agnew-Hart bills, then there is every reason why the Wadsworths should aid Wallace. The emissary is said to have gone from the Wadsworths to Wallace within the last twenty-four hours to assure him of the support of all their adherents at the polls next Tuesday. The friends of the Republican candidate prior to these assurances had little hope of support from that direction.

Aside from appeals made to-day from the pulpits throughout the two counties that the voters rally to the support of the Governor and his reforms, little interest is being manifested except among the small fraction of independents in both parties who will support Wallace. Among the rank and file of organization Republicans there is the utmost apathy toward the race-track reforms, and not a little resentment that the Governor should have put the district to the expense of a special election.

While the registration is usually big, the vote is likely to be far below the normal. The Democrats expect to get out 60 per cent. of their vote. It is generally admitted that the percentage of voting Republicans—unless the leaders should greatly bestir themselves between to-night and Tuesday morning—will be below that of voting Democrats. The farmers have their Spring plowing to do.

The rumors that a large amount of money has been thrown into the district for campaign purposes by the race-track interests is declared by well-informed persons to be without foundation. It is generally admitted that the Democratic organization in Niagara County has a fund of about $5,000 for campaign expenses. This is a larger amount than has been expended in any campaign in Niagara County by the Democrats, but if distributed evenly by election districts it would give each only about $100.

While the Democratic leaders claim the election of McMahon by a big majority in a district which ordinarily goes Republican by about 2,000 votes, and Republicans concede that if their candidate is elected at all it will be by a small majority, the result is greatly in doubt.

Henry A. McMahon, the Democratic candidate, said to a TIMES correspondent at Niagara Falls to-day:

"It looked pretty bad when I was first nominated, but the situation has improved from day to day. There is to-day no question but I will be elected."

Mr. Wallace, the Republican candidate, said:

"I think my election on Tuesday is assured. I do not credit the reports of treachery within the party which made me its candidate."

John A. Merritt, the Republican leader of Niagara County, also predicted the election of Wallace, but admitted that the vote throughout the district would be light.

George W. Batten, the Democratic leader of Niagara County, said: "McMahon, our cndidate, will be elected by a large majority. You can quote me as saying that the Governor in coming got himself in wrong all around. There is widespread resentment among the Republicans over his interference. The contest is being fought squarely on the race-track issue, and the result here will mean the Governor's finish."

CARNEGIE AIDS HUGHES.

Mrs. Russell Sage Also Contributes to the Anti-Gambling Crusade.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 10.—Andrew Carnegie has backed Gov. Hughes in his anti-race track gambling crusade by sending a liberal check to the Albany office of the International Reform Bureau for use in stirring up sections of the State where it is inexpedient for Gov. Hughes to go. Mrs. Russell Sage has also sent the bureau a check for the same purpose.

Some weeks ago William Barnes, Jr., sought to discredit the Reform Bureau by an attack in his Albany and Cohoes papers, but, so it is said at the bureau office, there has been an increase rather than a decrease in receipts since. Large quantities of anti-gambling literature are being distributed, particularly in the districts of Senators Knapp, Emerson, Wemple, Cassidy, Ackroyd, and Grattan.

SPECIAL SESSION TO-DAY.

Gov. Hughes May Confine It to Only Three Reforms.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 10.—Governor Hughes reached home to-day from his campaigning in the Forty-seventh Senatorial District feeling much better in health than when he left Albany and full of confidence in the success of Mr. Wallace. He put the finishing touches to-night on his message to the special session of the Legislature, which will meet here to-morrow.

The belief to-night is that Gov. Hughes will confine the recommendations to anti-race-track legislation, direct nominations at primaries, and the placing of telephone and telegraph companies under the supervision of the Public Service Commissions.

Not a legislator is here to-night. While the Governor feels that there must be a break in the opposition to the Race-Track Gambling bills as the result of legislators' contact with their constituents there is a feeling abroad that they will return unchanged, and in anything but the best of humor for the extra session.

ROOSEVELT RETURNS.

Expected Action to Forestall Foraker Attack Is Not Taken.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt returned to-night from their Virginia country place, Pine Knot. Both looked to be in fine health, and the President was in especially good form. He signalized his return by sending for Secretary Foster, and going through a pile of mail that has accumulated in his absence. Shortly after 10 o'clock a messenger was dispatched to one of the stenographers of the White House force.

Secretary Foster announced later that Mr. Roosevelt had no statement to make to-night on the matter of the letters he wrote to Senators Smith, Stewart, and Rayner. It was believed that such a statement would have been issued this evening upon the President's return, for in that way Foraker's announced intention of calling for the letters in the Senate would have been forestalled. Mr. Foster declined to say whether the letters would be made public to-morrow.

In the meantime the resentment of the Senate at the tone of the White House communications has not diminished. There is a disposition, however, to attempt to smooth things over for the sake of harmony in the coming campaign. This is not Foraker's view of the situation, and all efforts thus far to have him modify his actions apparently have served only to make him the more determined to press the affair into public view.

Special to The New York Times.

SCOTTSVILLE, Va., May 10.—The Presidential party spent another quiet day at Pine Knot, attending services at Christ Church this morning, followed by luncheon at Plain Dealing, the home of the Wilmers, from which latter place they were driven to North Garden for the trip to Washington, which was made in the afternoon, starting from North Garden at 4:30.

The President arose late, and strolled in the woods with Mr. Burroughs before breakfast, which was served at 10 o'clock, Mrs. Roosevelt joining them for the meal. Immediately after breakfast the party repaired to the church for the morning service, the trip being made on foot.

The attendance was the largest of the year, since all the country folk around had heard that the President was to be present. The President occupied a seat well up to the front, both he and Mrs. Roosevelt joining heartily in the service. After the service the President indulged in his usual chat with his Albemarle friends under the great trees.

MAY MEAN STATE CONFLICT.

Trolley Road Decision in Massachusetts Opposes Connecticut Law.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 10.—The text of the decision of the five Judges of the Massachusetts Supreme Court on the matter of the holdings of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company in the Massachusetts trolleys was received by the railroad officials here to-day, and excited considerable surprise, owing to the radical character of the finding. It had been at first supposed that the Springfield Street Railway system was excepted from the finding, and that this and possibly some other features of the opinion might leave a loophole of escape for the New Haven Company.

This proves to be incorrect, and the text of the opinion as interpreted here in railroad circles indicates that it applies to all the sixteen trolley roads in Massachusetts now held indirectly by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Company. The terms of the finding apparently apply also to the Boston & Maine under the section of the Massachusetts railroad law which prohibits a railroad corporation from holding the stock of any other railroad corporation.

From the legal viewpoint, as seen by lawyers here, whether they are connected with the railroad company or not, the most serious aspect of the case is the complication which apparently results from the conflict of jurisdiction between Massachusetts and Connecticut, the company being incorporated in both States, which differ decidedly in their lines of railroad policy.

Unless some compromise is reached in Massachusetts, or the question of constitutionality is decided by the United States Supreme Court, it is feared that the divergent questions raised under the double incorporation in two States may lead to serious complications.

BINGHAM RUMORS.

Set Forth in Detail—Also the Facts Regarding Them.

The Committee on Rumors felt full of energy last night, and sent out Rumor No. 537 with regard to Police Commissioner Bingham, as follows:

First—That he will presently resign, either voluntarily or upon pressure brought to bear by Mayor McClellan.

Second—That before resigning he will order forty members of the force before the Board of Surgeons, the forty including commanding officers and plain patrolmen.

[Gen. Bingham said at a dinner not long ago that he wished forty Captains would drop dead.]

Third—That the politicians do not like Bingham; that Mayor McClellan has made up with Murphy, and that election times, with their political demands, are approaching.

And so on.

Mayor McClellan has said that he is perfectly satisfied with Commissioner Bingham's work, and that he is the best Commissioner New York has ever had.

Commissioner Bingham has said from time to time that he would not voluntarily resign any time soon, and that if anybody called for his resignation he would know why, and the reason would have to be a good one, which could be told publicly.

Nothing to change either of these statements could be discovered by TIMES reporters last night.

FIGHT NEW ORLEANS TRACK.

Louisiana Legislature Will Take Up an Anti-Gambling Bill.

BATON ROUGE, La., May 10.—Race-track gambling, prohibition, and cotton futures are the three big issues in sight before the opening of the Louisiana Legislature here to-morrow. It is generally believed to-night that the hardest fight will be made to abolish race-track gambling, and with it the racing which for years has been a feature of the Winter season at New Orleans.

The chances for State-wide prohibition are generally regarded as slight, and it is asserted by most political leaders that New Orleans will not be included in any prohibition legislation at this session.

The fight against cotton futures here will be the same that has been successfully waged in several Southern States. The movement, however, has not yet gained sufficient support to assure it of anything like success.

HUNT FARM YOUTHS WITH BLOODHOUNDS

Four Counties Close to Town Stirred by Crimes Laid to the Lockwood Boys.

TRAIL LEADS TO RIDGEFIELD

Sister's Home in Connecticut Watched—Accused of Attacking Children and Burning a Doctor's House.

Special to The New York Times.

NORTH SALEM, N. Y., May 10.—The citizens of four counties who for two weeks have been trying with increasing eagerness to capture two desperate young men whom they accuse of attacking two little girls, burning down one house, and destroying the furniture of another, and with other offenses due to mere malice, believe to-night that they have located the young men in the home of their sister, at Ridgefield, Conn., just over the New York State line. They now hope to have the young men in their hands before Monday night.

It is possible that the prospective punishment of the law will be anticipated if the posses, of which there are four, lay hands on the suspects. The men wanted are Stanford and Daniel Lockwood, 23 and 20 years old respectively. They live in North Salem with their parents, and have made a living by doing odd jobs for the farmers living here.

A week or so ago the vacant house of a wealthy resident, temporarily absent, was entered. The furniture was broken up and the interior of the house wrecked and maltreated in an unspeakable manner. Very little was stolen. The perpetrators seemed to have been actuated by malice.

The two young men were suspected of that and one or two other similar offenses. Citizens began to look about for them. They could not be found. There are quite a number of vacant houses in the neighborhood of North Salem, both in New York State and in Connecticut. The searchers believed that the Lockwoods were hiding in these houses.

The hunt for the Lockwoods was redoubled last Monday. Two young men, believed to have been the Lockwoods, seized the eleven-year-old daughter of William Cunningham while she was on her way to school. They dragged her into a vacant lot, but were frightened away by the sounds of some one approaching before they had done the child any harm.

Then the countryside flared up. But the next day two young men seized ten-year-old Annie Regan while she was going to school, blindfolded her, and dragged her into a vacant house on the C. W. Nichols place. The timely arrival of some workmen saved that child, too.

Putnam and Westchester Counties, in New York, and Fairfield and Ridgefield Counties, in Connecticut, then sent men day after day to take part in the hunt for the two Lockwood boys. The Sheriffs and Deputy Sheriffs of those counties joined in the chase. The searchers got traces of the Lockwoods one day at this old, vacant house. The next day they would hear of them at another.

On Friday night an unoccupied house on the place of Dr. S. L. White, north of here, was burned down. The Lockwood boys were reported to have been seen in the house. The posses hurried thither on Saturday, this time with two bloodhounds to help in the chase.

The dogs had been furnished by Dr. Louis G. Knox of the Imperial Bloodhound Kennels, at Danbury, Conn., at the instance of W. R. Finch, a well-to-do farmer, who is among the leaders in the chase. The two hounds took up the trail at the burned house, followed it a couple of miles northward to a swamp. Then it was lost.

Mrs. David Vail, who lives not far from the burned house, sent word to the hunters yesterday that about nightfall on Saturday she had seen the two Lockwoods pass her house. Yesterday morning there came also another clue from the home of Gilbert M. Robdell, whose home is some three miles north of this town.

Mr. Robdell said that on Saturday night about 9 o'clock he returned from a trip to Purdy's Station, and when he opened his stable door it was slammed in his face; whereupon two young men rushed out and away. They had harnessed one of his horses to a light rig. If he had arrived ten minutes later they and the rig would have been gone.

The combined posses, therefore, were rushed up to the Robdell place this morning. The two hounds, Jack Cheshire and Cheerful of Cragswell, took up the trail. This time it ran southward. It was difficult to follow the two fleeing young men. They would wade a rushing brook for a hundred feet. Then they would walk a hundred yards along the top of a stone fence. Each of these manoeuvres would delay the dogs sometimes for an hour.

The trail continued southward and eastward, and to-night the posses reached the conclusion, from the direction of the trail and from information received in the course of the day, that the Lockwoods were hiding in the home of their sister in Ridgefield. A guard of five men was set about the suspected Ridgefield house and the bloodhounds were sent home, much wearied, in an automobile.

The Lockwoods have friends in and around Ridgefield and North Salem. These have carried them food several times since the hunt for them began. Five suspected houses are under watch to-night, but it is believed that the two Lockwoods are most likely at the home of the Ridgefield sister. It is about this that the hunters are concentrating their forces. The two young men are said to be desperate characters. Both are armed.

Special to The New York Times.

DANBURY, Conn., May 10.—The bloodhounds which for two days have been on the trail of the two young desperadoes of North Salem, N. Y., were returned to their owner here to-night. It is said that the two young men had been trailed to a house, which is now surrounded by a posse, including Deputy Sheriffs of Westchester County with warrants for their arrest. Sheriff Lane of Westchester County is expected there in the morning. Meantime the temper of the hunters is aroused to a high point of excitement.

Special to The New York Times.

BREWSTER, N. Y., May 10.—Deputy Sheriff Shuber returned home to-night after two days spent in the chase for the two young men wanted for outrages in and around North Salem, N. Y. He said that the pair could not remain at liberty much longer. They are tired and must be pushed for food. They are also without funds, so that their chances of getting away by train are small, and every road is being watched.

Special to The New York Times.

RIDGEFIELD, Conn., May 10.—Deputy Sheriffs and farmers from other towns and villages in Westchester, N. Y., and adjacent counties are here to-night looking for the two young Lockwoods, who are suspected of several outrages. The Deputy Sheriffs are watching the home of a Mrs. Beardsley, said to be a sister of the Lockwoods.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 10.—Sheriff Lane of Westchester County had not heard to-night that the Lockwood boys of North Salem, N. Y., wanted for felonious assault upon two little girls and other offenses, had been cornered. He knew that they were being hunted, and sent word last Thursday that he had a good idea where the Lockwoods then were. He said to-night that he hadn't heard from the North Salem people since.

AGREE ON CURRENCY BILL.

New Provisions to Control Clearing House Adopted by Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The special committee appointed by the Republican conference to perfect a bill of the Vreeland type will make a unanimous report to the conference to-morrow night. At the end of a five hours' session to-day it was found that no serious disagreements existed among the members, though several details are still under discussion.

The new bill will require that the National banks in each association shall be in contiguous territory and that each and every bank in a particular association shall be liable, jointly and severally, for the notes issued by any bank in that association. These two provisions, combined with the reserve feature agreed on by the commitete yesterday, cover a wide area of the debatable ground.

No matter in what form the bill is finally reported to the conference, a bitter fight is expected from at least part of the "insurgents." It became known to-day that Chairman Fowler of the Banking and Currency Committee sent out yesterday a letter to most of the National banks in the country denouncing the bill to be reported by the special committee.

The three additional provisions that have been inserted by the committee, however, have gone far toward weakening the numerical strength of the insurgents. The strongest pressure is being brought to bear on them, and a number of Senators have been called upon to exert influence.

There are also insistent rumors that the leaders are trading with the Democrats. An instance of this was seen in the passage yesterday of Representative O'Connell's Immigration bill. All efforts to get it up hitherto have failed. In the temporary absence of John Sharp Williams, leader of the minority, it was rushed through. O'Connell in the past has been opposed to the Currency bill.

GOVERNORS AT WASHINGTON.

Many Who Will Take Part in White House Conference Have Arrived.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Many of those who are to participate in the Governors' Conference this week have already arrived in Washington, and the rest are expected on to-morrow's early trains.

Included in the assemblage will be forty-four Governors of States and Territories, their advisers to the number of 153, and 59 Presidents of important National organizations.

It is believed here that the conference will accomplish a good work for the country. The President's view of its importance was set forth in his letter of invitation to the Governors, when he said:

"It is the plain duty of us who for the moment are responsible to take inventory of the natural resources which have been handed down to us, to forecast the needs of the future, and so handle the great sources of our prosperity as not to destroy in advance all hope of the prosperity of our descendants. Facts which I cannot gainsay force me to believe that the conservation of our natural resources is the most weighty question now before the people of the United States.

"If this is so, the proposed conference, which is the first of its kind, will be among the most important gatherings in our history in its effect upon the welfare of all our people."

MARRIED AFTER LONG WAIT.

New Jersey Girl Missed Fiance at Pittsburg Railroad Station.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, May 10.—Miss Nellie Foster, aged 23, of Jersey City, N. J., left her home on Wednesday night to come to Pittsburg and marry George Decker, a prosperous farmer of Economy. Her brother-in-law put her on the train at Jersey City and sent a telegram to Decker. In some manner there was a mix-up as to the time of her arrival, and Decker was not on hand to meet her.

Miss Foster arrived Thursday morning. All day Thursday, all that night, and most of Friday she waited at the railroad station, and then the police took her to the Central Office, where they turned her over to the matron.

She had scarcely left the railroad station before Decker arrived. Then he did the waiting game all Friday night and until Saturday evening, when he made a few inquiries and located his fiancée. He already had a license, and they were married late last night.

ONE NIGHT IN JAIL ENOUGH.

Wealthy Bachelor Then Decides to Pay Fine He Resented.

Special to The New York Times.

BELLEVILLE, Ill., May 10.—One night in jail was enough for Ewald Siebert. Rather than pay a fine of $10 and costs, assessed on a charge of being disorderly, Siebert, who is 60 years old and reputed to be worth $60,000, declared he would work it out in the county workhouse.

After spending last night in a cell, Siebert sent for his secretary and had him go to Justice Wangelin's court and pay $18.50, the fine and costs.

INSANE PATIENT A SUICIDE.

Cut Throat with Glass from Window Broken in Fight with Attendants.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 10.—Alphonso W. Davis, a farmer of Stonington, Conn., after a struggle with two attendants at Butler Hospital for the Insane, cut his throat yesterday with a piece of glass from a window that was broken in the struggle.

Davis recently lost his mother and wife and on Friday morning leaped from a rowboat into Little Narragansett Bay three separate times. Each time he clambered back into the boat. His relatives, fearing that he would take his own life, brought him to the asylum that afternoon. He was violent when he arrived, and two attendants were assigned to him.

After sleeping fitfully through the night he suddenly became violent again yesterday morning, and almost overpowered his attendants. During the struggle a window was broken and the three men fell to the floor. Before either attendant could interefere Davis seized a piece of the glass and slashed his throat from ear to ear. He died three hours later.

Launch Capsized; Five Drowned.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., May 10.—Caught by a big wave as they were crossing the bar a mile and a half off Plum Island, at the mouth of the Merrimack River, nine men of this city, who were on a pleasure cruise in a naphtha launch, were capsized to-day, and five of them were drowned. Capt. George E. Bailey, the owner of the launch, and three other men were picked up by passing boats. The drowned men were all Italians, and employed in shoeshops here.

TAFT HAS QUIETED ISTHMIAN DISPUTES

Tentative Accord on Matters Interesting Panama, Colombia, and United States.

ALL PARTIES ARE SATISFIED

Secretary Will Finish His Canal Inspection To-day and Sail for Home To-morrow Morning.

PANAMA, May 10.—From the time of his arrival here until this afternoon Secretary Taft was busy holding conferences with President Amador, Foreign Secretary Arias, Señor Arango, who is the Panaman Minister to the United States; Mr. Squiers, who is the American Minister to Panama, and William Nelson Cromwell, the legal adviser of the canal company.

The conferences covered numerous topics relating to the treaties which it is desired to negotiate between Colombia, the United States, and Panama.

While details are lacking, it is stated that a tentative accord was reached upon important points, and that decision with reference to the others only awaits special inquiries now in progress. The result of the conferences, it is announced, is satisfactory to all parties concerned.

Colombia's recent seizure of the town of Jurado, on the frontier, involved in the general boundary question between the two countries, was fully considered. The Panama Government agreed to the suggestion made by Mr. Taft to withhold all action until the Secretary of War should have an opportunity, personally to confer with President Roosevelt and the Secretary of State.

One of the most important questions affecting the canal zone has been to determine the titles of individual occupants of lands in the zone and the valuation of lands appropriated for canal uses.

Until now adjustment seemed to be impossible, but a solution has been reached by which an arbitration tribunal will be constituted under the existing treaty. This tribunal will have the power to determine all questions as to valuations and legal titles. It will be composed of two citizens of the United States and two citizens of Panama, with Gov. Magoon of Cuba as umpire.

Secretary Taft expects to conclude his business relative to the canal administration and inspection to-morrow, and to sail for the United States Tuesday morning.

ORDERS MORE TRAINS RUN.

Service Commission Acts on Erie Service to New City.

ALBANY, May 10.—The Public Service Commission, Second District, has ordered the New Jersey and New York Railroad Company and the Erie Railroad Company to put in effect a new train service upon the branch between New City and Nanuet, in Rockland County. The new schedule includes two new trains daily each way.

Action by the commission was taken upon the complaint of citizens of Rockland County alleging bad physical condition of roadbed, insufficient train service, and inadequate station accommodations at New City, the county seat of Rockland County.

CHILDREN HAVE DYNAMITE.

Las Vegas Thoroughly Alarmed at the Possibility of Disaster.

Special to The New York Times.

LAS VEGAS, N. M., May 10.—This city is terrorized by the knowledge that a large quantity of dynamite and dynamite caps is in possession of the school children of the city. It recently was stolen from a warehouse. Enough was taken to blow up the city.

Last night a pet dog bolted into its owner's parlor chewing a stick of dynamite, and a schoolgirl was found with a dynamite cap. Schoolboys who confessed the theft said they had planned to blow up all the school houses in the city so they would not have to go to school any more.

MRS. CLEVELAND WALKS OUT.

And Good Reports of the ex-President's Health Continue.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., May 10.—The condition of ex-President Grover Cleveland continues to improve. It was reported at the Lakewood Hotel to-night that unless the unexpected develops his friends in Lakewood look for a great change for the better within the next few days, which may result in his being taken to his Princeton home before another week rolls around.

Mrs. Cleveland left the patient twice to-day. She attended service in the Presbyterian Church this morning, and after that took a short walk about town before returning to the hotel. She was also out walking this afternoon.

The Cleveland rooms in the hotel are full of flowers and plants sent by friends of the family who live in Lakewood. Dr. Bryant spent the day at the hotel.

NEGROES TO HEAR COUNTESS.

Lady Warwick Will Make a Special Plea to Them in Ohio.

Special to The New York Times.

BELLEFONTAINE, Ohio, May 10.—The Countess of Warwick will address a mass meeting of 15,000 negroes here in August, when she stumps the Eighth Ohio Congressional District for the Socialists.

The Countess has written E. G. Wharton, the Socialist candidate for Congress, that she will make two speeches in each of the six districts of the county for him. It is declared that he has a good chance for election, as there is dissension in the Republican ranks. The negroes hold the balance of power in the district, and the Countess will make a special plea to them.

Letters received by friends here from Congressman Ralph D. Cole, Republican, who seeks re-election, state that Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth will not visit the district this Fall, as was announced three or four weeks ago. Neither she nor her husband will take any part in the campaign.

Attempt to Poison Blooded Bulldogs.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., May 10.—Pork dosed with strychnine sufficient to kill fifty blooded dogs was found last evening near the kennels of W. N. G. Clark, at 936 Sunset Avenue, which house some of the best blooded bulldog stock in America. There is no clue to the would-be poisoners. Among the champions whom it was sought to kill are Mersha, Ham, Mershal Belga, Rustic Stone, and Saxton Stone.

NEW YORKER LOST IN AFRICA.

Peter Dutkewitch, Photographer of Exploring Party, Disappears.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 10.—A letter from the Rev. Peter McQueen, who is exploring in British East Africa, tells of the disappearance of the photographer of his party, Peter Dutkewitch of New York.

Mr. McQueen says that Dutkewitch started for the coast to get his cameras fitted, but did not reach his destination.

"I hope he is not killed," writes Mr. McQueen. "The natives usually are mild, but they have killed several white men. They killed one man to get his heart for medicine. Those guilty of that murder were hanged in April at Mombasa."

ROW IN A LAKEWOOD SCHOOL.

Parents Up in Arms Over Charges Against a Principal.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., May 10.—Six hundred men and women hooted and jeered on Friday night, when at the meeting of the Board of Education it was announced that County Superintendent of Schools Charles A. Morris of Toms River was not ready to report upon the charges made by Superintendent of Schools Harry J. Neal against Principal D. E. De Lap of the East Fourth Street School.

The local Superintendent says the Principal falsely and improperly raised the markings of some of the pupils in his school. School affairs have been in more or less of a turbulent state for a year or more here, and the public has taken sides, and apparently the residents of the district covered by the East Fourth Street school are almost a unit in supporting the Principal.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK A TRAIN.

Fast Freight on the Jersey Central Near a Smashup.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., May 10.—An attempt to wreck a fast freight train on the Central Railroad of New Jersey was made this morning between 12 and 1 o'clock by placing a fishplate on the rails just west of Raritan Station.

The train struck the fishplate and shoved it along the rail for some distance, but met with no mishap. The train was stopped and a search made by the train crew in the vicinity for the would-be train wreckers, but none could be found. It is supposed to have been the work of tramps.

ENGINE FOILS WRECKERS.

Runs Into Obstruction Evidently Intended to Derail a Fast Train.

WASHINGTON, Penn., May 10.—The ditching of a shifting engine which the would-be train wreckers had not counted upon undoubtedly averted serious disaster to the east-bound flier from St. Louis to Pittsburg on the Panhandle Railroad of the Pennsylvania system between here and McDonald late last night.

An obstruction was placed on the tracks in such manner that nothing could have saved the fast train had it not been discovered.

Railroad detectives are working on a clue which is expected to result in arrests.

FOELKER OPERATED ON.

State Senator Ill of Appendicitis and Expected to Recover.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 10.—State Senator Otto G. Foelker of Brooklyn, representing the Fourth Senate District, was operated on for appendicitis this afternoon at the home of his father-in-law, Fred Bodenstein, Staatsburg. The operation was performed by Dr. I. Prescott Grant of New York City, assisted by Dr. Murphy of Staatsburg.

It was stated to-night at Mr. Bodenstein's house that the operation was a success, and Senator Foelker was resting very comfortably.

PREACHED SERMON IN COFFIN.

Salvation Army Captain Tries New Method to Attract Attention.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, May 10.—Staff Capt. Trevet of the Salvation Army preached a sermon this evening standing in the coffin in which he expects to be buried, and robed in the clothes of the grave.

Prior to the sermon the coffin was carried through the streets at the head of the Salvation Army Band on the shoulders of four of the members of the army, who constituted the pall-bearers. Capt. Trevet followed behind the coffin. The lid of the coffin contained a silver plate, telling of the supposed demise of the officer. The army band, instead of playing the usual lively tunes, wailed out only funeral dirges, and the women of the army, instead of joyously thumping their tambourines, sobbed as though they had lost their best friend.

When the barracks was reached there was almost a riot among the hundreds who wanted to get in. Capt. Trevet's sermon was on the subject, "After Death, What?" He admitted that he had adopted the unique display merely to attract people to hear the sermon.

PASTOR SHOOTS A BURGLAR.

But Intruder Escapes from Bloomfield, N. J.—Citizens Aroused by the Shots.

The Rev. Alexander Ivanow, pastor of St. Valentine's Church, in Franklin Avenue, Bloomfield, N. J., fired three shots at a burglar who attempted to enter his home at an early hour yesterday morning, and, although the man was wounded, he escaped.

The burglar was attempting an entrance through a scuttle on the roof of the minister's home. A maid who slept on the upper floor was awakened by the noise. She got up, and, going to the second floor, awakened the clergyman.

After dressing, Mr. Ivanow took his revolver and went outside to investigate. He reached the side of the house just in time to see the burglar, who had evidently been frightened by the noise, climb down a back piazza post. As the minister called to him to stop, the burglar ran down the yard, and as he jumped the fence the minister fired. The burglar gave a yell of pain and the clergyman fired two more shots.

The neighbors were aroused by the shots, and, forming a posse, made a search of the surrounding premises, but failed to find the burglar. The minister's first shot had been effective, as blood spots were found near the fence.

THOMAS CAR IN JAPAN OFF TO VLADIVOSTOK

Will Go On from Yokohama to Kobe, Starting Overland There.

AMERICANS BET ON CREW

Two Days' Run Over Mountain Paths in Japan—May Start Across Siberia on Saturday.

Special Cablegram to THE NEW YORK TIMES, from its Staff Correspondent with the Racing Cars.

YOKOHAMA, May 10, 1908.—The American Thomas car in the New York to Paris auto race arrived in Japan this morning on the steamship Shawmut after a calm and uneventful passage across the Pacific broken only by two days of severe storm. The boat was eighteen days in transit, and spoke not a single ship in the entire voyage. The crew of the American car found the trip delightful, save for their impatience to get again on the road.

The four men came ashore here immediately after the steamer docked, but the machine was not landed. It will proceed again this afternoon on the Shawmut from Yokohama to Kobe, where it will land and start overland across Japan. From Kobe the car will go direct to Tsugaru, where it will again take ship to Vladivostok. It should arrive in Siberia by Saturday morning at the latest.

American Colony Disappointed.

There was the keenest disappointment expressed in the American colony here at the failure of the car to be landed. The French and Italian cars, which reached here ten days ago, were enthusiastically received by the European colony, and the patriotic spirit of the Americans was thoroughly aroused. They anticipated arranging an elaborate reception and having an opportunity of seeing the machine that had beaten the foreign cars across the American continent show its paces on the excellent roadways about the city.

The French and Italian cars made a splendid show of speed on the thoroughfares on which the leading hotels and clubs are situated, and the Americans anticipated an even better showing from their champion.

The excellent condition in which the foreign cars were after their extremely arduous trip over the American continent was a source of wonder to all who saw them. Their display of speed stimulated their compatriots among the residents of the city to offer freely generous wagers that they would beat the American car into Paris. The American residents were not slow to cover the bets offered, and there was the liveliest interest in the car on this account. One bet of $1,000 was made that the American would be first to reach the French capital, backing the car against the field.

The crew of the Yankee racer was keenly gratified to find such evidence of confidence in their ability to win the great race around the world, and declared they would certainly justify it. They were amazed at the interest taken in the race here and the accurate details of the contest across America with which the foreigners were acquainted. THE NEW YORK TIMES is eagerly sought here in the clubs for news of the machines.

Will Have Japanese Guide.

A mass of detailed information about the conditions in Japan was placed at the disposal of the Americans by their compatriots. They were advised to proceed direct to Tsugaru from Kobe by road, but warned that the bridges in Japan were frail structures, though the road was otherwise good. It is mountainous, however, and though the distance is short it will take two days to make the trip. The Americans have engaged a Japanese guide for the car who knows the roads thoroughly, and he will show the way for George Schuster across the mountain paths.

Kobe lies southeast of Yokohama on the Bay of Isuma. It is 240 miles in a direct line overland, but 400 miles by water. The Shawmut will arrive there, according to schedule, early on Tuesday morning. The crew of the car expects to land the machine in the afternoon and be able to start away early Wednesday morning on the road. They have then a distance of ninety miles to travel as the bird flies, but the winding road increases the distance to nearer 150 miles. They should be able to reach Tsugaru on Thursday morning. This will enable them to take Friday's steamer on the Trans-Siberian Line and reach Vladivostok on Saturday afternoon.

At Yokohama the crew was able to arrange the difficulty with their passports, which were vised by the Russian Consul. They may now enter Siberia with their credentials and start away on their trans-Siberian trip without delay.

First information was received here that the foreign cars had been ordered by the conductors of the race in Paris and New York to await the arrival of the American car at Vladivostok. The prospect of starting out on even terms with the others delighted the crew of the car. They later learned that an allowance of time would be made to them for the time lost in going to Alaska. While they believe they are entitled to that consideration, they declare their confidence that they could have led the way into Paris without it.

All look forward with the keenest interest to the race across Siberia, especially the difficult part of the trip between Vladivostok and Irkutsk.

ENDURANCE RACE COMMENDED.

Representative Auto Men Will Formulate Plans for Coming Contest.

The announcement of the intention of THE NEW YORK TIMES to organize an endurance race from New York to San Francisco and return has aroused the greatest interest among automobilists and received unanimous indorsement. More than a score of the leading manufacturers of high-grade cars or their representatives in New York unqualifiedly commended the idea and declared that such a test, properly conducted, would arouse the greatest enthusiasm and prove of much benefit both to the automobile industry and to the sport. In order to insure its proper conduct THE TIMES has invited these representative men to meet at THE TIMES office next Friday evening and aid in framing regulations which will provide a true test of cars.

While speed contests have done a great deal for the advancement of automobiling, there has been evident for some time a growing feeling that they were inconclusive, and too apt to be decided by luck. Endurance contests of various sorts have been proposed, but the tests have never been severe, and dozens of cars have frequently come through with perfect scores.

Hill climbs and other trials have been held, but there has never been a contest which has tried out thoroughly the "stand-up" qualities of the cars on the road under such conditions as would provide an absolutely conclusive test. It is to obtain such a test that the present contest is designed.

It is the intention to make the test one of both speed and eudurance. Speed will be tested by the abilities of the cars to cover the distance across the continent and back in the shortest amount of time. Endurance will be tested by taking note of all replacements made on the trip, penalizing each displacement by means of a pre-established and technically corrected scale, and keeping the cars under constant observation.

Means will be devised to prevent unequal conditions which would favor any competitor, while the cars will have to be handled by a single crew without relays or other devices to allow of exaggerated speed. In short, everything possible will be done to make the result show just what is in a car and what it can do under the touring conditions it would have to face on American roads.

These conditions will not be framed by inexperienced or inexpert men, nor will they be formulated by those friendly to any given interest. They will be the result of the consensus of opinion of the best talent that can be produced by the automobile industry. They will be carried out by a committee of the foremost automobilists and sportsmen in the country.

THE TIMES will give a suitable trophy to the car that makes the best showing, both as to speed and endurance, and will invite the co-operation of many of its contemporaries in the larger cities through which the contestants will pass. The route westward will be different from that followed on the homeward journey, so that the cars will pass through all the principal centres of population and be tested over roads and under conditions they might be expected to meet in daily use in those places.

The tentative lines of the competition are:

1. Regulation stock cars.
   (a) Under a maximum power.
   (b) Over a minimum weight.
2. A speed trial.
3. An endurance test.
4. Handled by a single crew.
5. Scored according to the strictest schedule.

Among the prominent automobilists who have approved the idea, all of whom have promised to assist in making the race a complete success and some of whom have agreed to enter cars in the race, are Jefferson Demont Thompson, Robert Lee Morrell, A. R. Pardington, Harry A. Lozier of the Lozier, E. R. Hollander of the Fiat, Paul Lecroix of the Renault, Walter Allen of the De Dietrich, Mercedes, and Allen-Kingston; Frank Towle of the Simplex, C. G. Wridgeley of the Peerless, J. F. Plummer of the Locomobile, C. J. Budlong of the Pierce Arrow, André Massenet of the Packard, R. D. Garden of the Panhard, Sidney Bowman of the Apperson, André de Magnin of the Panhard, E. C. Southworth of the Pope-Hartford and Matheson, Harry S. Houpt of the Thomas, C. D. Hamilton of the Isotta, E. C. Van Dyke of the Berliet, F. S. Harrington of the Corbin, W. E. Shearman of the White, C. W. Wooster of Wyckoff, Church & Partridge of the Stearns, J. W. De Lamater of the Pennsylvania and Hotchkiss, E. S. Stevenson of the Studebaker, C. H. Tangeman of the Hol-Tan, and Fred J. Wagner.

MRS. REMINGTON BRINGS SUIT.

Asks Divorce from Dr. Arthur Hart Remington of Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—Sophie Thomas Remington has brought suit for divorce against Dr. Arthur Hart Remington. Action was begun several weeks ago, but all the papers in the case were impounded, and it has just become known that the case is pending. Mrs. Remington is a daughter of George C. Thomas. Dr. Remington is a son of Prof. Joseph P. Remington, head of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, and one of the city's best-known scientific men.

The marriage of Miss Thomas and Dr. Remington took place in February, 1896, and was one of the social events of the season. They spent some time in Europe, especially at Vienna and Dublin, and later occupied a home here, said to have been a gift from the bride's father.

The separation of Dr. and Mrs. Remington is said to have taken place some time ago, when she returned to live with her father, and Dr. Remington went to Seattle.

The suit has been conducted with secrecy, and neither the lawyers nor the members of either family will make any statement.

Mrs. Remington is a sister of Leonard Thomas, at one time connected with the American Embassy, as Second Secretary in Rome, and whose engagement to Mrs. Hazel Martyn Trudeau was broken a few days before the date set for the marriage ceremony.

CAN'T HELP BOOKBINDERS.

City Officials Can Do Nothing for Them in Public Library Case.

The Central Federated Union received letters yesterday from Controller Metz and other city officials in reply to a complaint of the Bookbinders' Union, that while American bookbinders were going idle the books for the New York Public Library were bound by an English firm which has a contract for the work. The complaints requested that the work should be given to the union bookbinders of New York.

The city officials in their replies said that the Public Library and its various branches was controlled by private corporations which had a contract with a firm in Bath, England, to bind the books. The city officials had therefore no authority over the matter, and the central body was recommended to communicate with the trustees of the different corporations in charge of the libraries.

INCENDIARY STARTS 3 FIRES; ONE FATAL

Girl Is Suffocated as She Is Dragged on Fire Escape of Apartment.

TENANTS FLEE IN A PANIC

Firemen and Police Work Valiantly Saving Them from Flames—Fires Close Together.

Three fires, believed by the police to be the work of an incendiary, were started between 2 and 4 o'clock yesterday morning, on the upper east side, which resulted in one young woman being suffocated and damage done to property to the extent of $16,000.

The fire, where the fatality occurred and the principal damage was done, was at 214 East Sixty-fifth Street, a four-story brick apartment house, which was occupied by eight families, two on each floor. The fire started in the basement at 3:45 A. M., and the flames shot up the dumb waiter shaft quickly to the top floor, which was soon ablaze.

The janitor was aroused by Policeman William Mussmecher, who broke in the glass of the door with his nightstick and called all the tenants. They rushed out in a panic. The engine and hook and ladder from the fire station in East Sixty-seventh Street, at Lexington Avenue, with Battalion Chief Dougherty and Fire Chief Howe was quickly on the scene. Capt. Cooney and a squad of reserves from the East Sixty-seventh Street Police Station got there on the double quick and assisted in rescuing the frightened tenants from the burning building.

Owing to the heroic efforts of the firemen and the police all the tenants, thirty-six in number, were got out safely, with the exception of Annie Bates, a maid servant, 19 years old, living with Mr. and Mrs. Parker on the fourth floor.

When the flames burst through the dumb waiter doors Mr. Parker seized their five months' old baby in his arms and started for the fire escape at the rear, shouting to his wife and the maid to follow him. Mrs. Parker, seeing that the girl was in a dazed state, assisted her to the fire escape outside the kitchen window.

The girl was so scared by the flames that were then devouring the walls of the room they were crossing to get to the window that she screamed hysterically and hung back. Mrs. Parker, realizing the danger of a moment's delay in getting to the fire escape, climbed out of the kitchen window to the escape and dragged the maid with her, but the girl sank down on the top of the escape, and the woman had to leave her to save her own life.

The senseless maid lay on the escape until she was discovered by the firemen when they got to the floor after the fire was under control. When the girl was carried down to the street and examined by an ambulance surgeon from the Presbyterian Hospital, it was found that she was dead from suffocation. The body was taken to the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, where it was viewed by Coroner Shrady, and taken later to the Morgue.

Daniel Quinn, 60 years old, and John Gleason, a plain clothes man from the West Forty-seventh Street Station, both of whom lived in the house, were slightly burned, and were attended by the ambulance surgeon.

The fire attracted a large crowd from the district, and the tenants of Nos. 212 and 216, the adjoining houses, were all up and out in the street with their valuables, as it was expected that the fire would spread on both sides of No. 214.

Michael J. O'Sullivan, who lived on the first floor of No. 214, arrived home in time to see Policeman Mussmecher rescue his two sisters, Annie, 21, and Lizzie, 23, and pass them out of the window to Patrolman James J. Minogue, who stood on the window sill of No. 212.

At 2:30 A. M. Patrolman John Murray discovered a fire in the hallway of 325 East Sixty-sixth Street, which was put out with trifling damage, and an hour later the same policeman discovered another fire, in the basement of 336 East Sixty-sixth Street, which was also extinguished before any damage had been done.

All three fires are believed by the police to have been the work of one man, who was seen to leave 336 East Sixty-sixth Street by Edward Sullivan, one of the tenants in the six-story tenement, just before the flames were discovered coming from the basement.

Capt. Cooney said last night that he had received a good description of the incendiary and had detectives searching for him.

When Fireman Dugan was sent to call an ambulance to 214 East Sixty-fifth Street he went to a saloon at Sixty-fifth Street and Third Avenue, and was assaulted by the bartender, John Prunty, because he would not pay 5 cents for the call. Dugan reported the case to his Chief at the fire, and Policeman Wilhelm was sent to arrest the bartender. Meantime Prunty had left, and a bartender named Cummings was arrested instead of him. Peter Lennen, proprietor of the saloon, told Magistrate Corrigan yesterday that he would produce Prunty in court on Wednesday, and the charge of violating the excise law, which had been preferred by Fire Chief Howe, was withdrawn.

TRY TO BURN TENEMENT.

Gasoline Found After Each Blaze in Williamsburg Building.

With the aid of gasoline an attempt was made early yesterday morning to burn the four-story double frame tenement dwelling at 11 Nostrand Avenue, Williamsburg, for the second time in two weeks. Many tenants, in their anxiety to get out of the building, fell down the stairs and were more or less hurt, but none seriously.

The building is in the neighborhood where many other incendiary fires have occurred in the last four weeks. It was due to Patrick Costello, who lives on the second floor with his family, that the fire yesterday did not get any great headway. He was awakened at daybreak by a muffled report like that of an explosion. He discovered that the second floor hall near the stairway was ablaze. A big bottle of gasoline had exploded, and the burning fluid had scattered over the wainscoting, on the wall, and also the floor and banisters of the stairs.

When the firemen of Engine Company 130 entered the building with a chemical extinguisher they found a quart can of gasoline which had escaped the flame. The fire was soon extinguished. The police of the Clymer Street station notified Fire Marshal Beers.

The fire two weeks before was started with four bottles of kerosene oil. These had also been put on the second floor. Like yesterday's blaze, a bottle of the oil exploded and awakened the Costello family.

FIREMEN HAVE A CLOSE CALL.

Four of Them Found Unconscious from Smoke and Rescued.

Four firemen were overcome by smoke last night in a fire wihch started in the basement of 309 Grand Street, Williamsburg. The ground floor is used as a store by Charles Beerbohm. Flat dwellers occupy the three other floors.

Battalion Chief Graham sent into the cellar Firemen Patrick Sullivan, James Connors, Henry Olderbrook and James Boylan of Engine Company 121. They dragged a line of hose with them, and failure to give any signal to the men working above after they entered the cellar made the Chief send the whole of Engine Company 111 to their rescue.

The four men were found beside the hose unconscious from inhaling smoke. They were rescued with difficulty, so dense was the smoke, and were taken to the Eastern District and Williamsburg Hospitals, where they were revived.

The fire was confined to the basement, the loss being estimated at $3,000.

Fire Truck Strikes Elevated Pillar.

Fire truck No. 2, stationed at Fiftieth Street and Lexington Avenue, was returning on Third Avenue from a false alarm yesterday afternoon when near Fifty-fifth Street it ran over a plate of the third rail of the underground trolley line. The plate cracked beneath the rear wheels of the truck, and swung the truck against a pillar. Foreman Kelly, at the tiller, was badly shaken up but uninjured and stuck to his seat. Assistant Foreman Fennell, Driver Smith, and four firemen were upon the truck and jumped to the ground uninjured.

C. E. BAMFORD A SUICIDE.

Resigned Army Officer Was in Washington Seeking Reinstatement.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 10.—Charles E. Bamford, a graduate of West Point, who resigned from the army as a Second Lieutenant in September, 1906, shot and killed himself in his room at the Regent Hotel in this city to-day. Bamford had recently been engaged in civil engineering, but a letter addressed to Adjt. Gen. Ainsworth asking for a reappointment to the army, which was found in his pocket, leads to the belief that his visit to Washington was for the purpose of being restored to the army. He had been at the Regent since Thursday, but had not been at the War Department.

It is believed that Bamford was suffering from melancholia. In his pockets were found a check for $35, $23 in cash, and a return ticket to Trenton, N. J.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., May 10.—Charles Elton Bamford was a son of Col. Charles Y. Bamford of this city, who commanded the Seventh Regiment prior to the reorganization of the New Jersey National Guard after the war with Spain. Young Bamford was a grandson of the late Adam Exton, for fifty years one of the most extensive cracker bakers in the country. He was born June 24, 1882; entered West Point, June 19, 1900; was graduated June 13, 1905, and resigned in September, 1906. During most of his service in the army he was attached to the Thirteenth Cavalry.

A few days ago he went to Washington seeking reinstatement in the army. His father says he can give no reason for the suicide, and that he had not received word from his son that his mission in Washington had been unsuccessful.

GIRL WIFE ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

Her Fondness for Dancing Causes Separation and She Takes Poison.

Mrs. Maud Conover, 18 years old, wife of George Conover, 21 years old, attempted suicide yesterday by swallowing a quantity of iodine after a quarrel with her husband at her brother's home, 336 East Twenty-ninth Street, over her fondness for dancing. She fell unconscious in her husband's arms after taking the poison and was later removed to Bellevue Hospital, where it is said she will recover.

They met at a ball a year ago, and the husband says it was love at first sight. They were married soon afterward and went to live in Brooklyn, near her mother's home, at 28 Schaeffer Street.

Mrs. Conover was fond of dancing, the husband says, and he objected to it. He says she would often leave the house on Saturday night and stay away until 2 o'clock in the morning, despite his remonstrances. Finally they quarreled, he says, and separated because she would not give up dancing. She returned to her mother's home and he went to live with his brother at the East Twenty-ninth Street address.

Yesterday afternoon the young wife went to her husband and pleaded with him to live with her again.

"I asked her if she would give up dancing if I returned with her, and she refused," Conover told the police.

"'You know that I still love you,' she told me, 'but dancing is the only pleasure I have.'

"I told her that unless she stopped dancing I would never live with her again. Then she pulled a bottle of iodine out of the bosom of her dress and drank about half of it before I could stop her."

KILLED HIMSELF IN A HOTEL.

Rudolph Witte Ended Life Because He Could Not See His Child.

Because he was not allowed to see his little daughter, Ellen, who lived with his divorced wife in East New York, Rudolph Witte, a bookkeeper, who boarded at 26 East 106th Street, Manhattan, committed suicide last night by shooting himself in the lavatory of a hotel kept by Herman Tietyen, at Ridgewood Avenue and Crescent Street, East New York.

Witte was divorced by his wife five years ago, and she obtained the custody of the daughter. She allowed him to call and see the child every week. A year ago Mrs. Witte married again, and her new husband objected to her former husband calling at the house, so he was forbidden to call again.

Suicide Because of Rheumatism.

NEWARK, N. J., May 10.—Frank A. Groeves, 48 years old, of 86 Palm Street, Vailsburg, committed suicide late last night by swallowing carbolic acid at his home. Groeves had been a sufferer from chronic rheumatism for a long time and was despondent.

CHILD LABOR DENOUNCED.

Speakers at National Charity Conference Ask Protection for Little Ones.

RICHMOND, Va., May 10.—The National Conference of Charities and Corrections considered to-night the need of laws to protect children from the evils of factory work. Those who took part in the discussion spoke earnestly against the employment of children in cotton factories.

It was an outrage, they said, that parents should seek to promote their own cocmfort by condemning their little ones to such work.

Dr. A. J. McKelway of Atlanta, Assistant Secretary of the National Child Labor Committee, made an earnest plea for legislation for the protection of children. He hoped the day would come when child labor would not be permitted in any State in the Union.

Addresses of similar import were made by Prof. W. H. Hand of the University of South Carolina and Miss Jane Adams of Hull House, Chicago.

The Best Revenue Is Thrift.

GREAT CROWD VISITS THE GUNNESS FARM

15,000 Persons Dispute for the Possession of Souvenirs and Buy Picture Postals.

TO RESUME DIGGING TO-DAY

Chicago Man Seeks News of Brother Who May Have Been One of the Widow's Victims.

Special to The New York Times.

LAPORTE, Ind., May 10.—The Gunness farm to-day rang with the laughter of children, the jargon of postcard sellers, and "streetmen," and the loud disputations of souvenir hunters. At least 15,000 people poured into Laporte on special excursion trains, interurban cars, autos, and all sorts of vehicles, to attend an organized exploitation of the farm.

Sheriff Smutzer and Deputies Leory Marr and William Ansliss stood guard all day to prevent the debris in the cellar of the house from being carried off by the bagful. Digging for more bodies was out of the question.

As it was, women clawed at the little red carriage house which has become the repository of the dismembered bodies. They stuck their fingers in the cracks and wrenched in an attempt to pry them apart far enough to see inside. Men boosted each other to the window in the end of the structure and gazed until others behind them pushed them from their places to make room for other gazers. Several times during the day the doors were opened and the spectators filed in line past the door, through which could be seen the bodies.

Women in smartly tailored gowns came all the way from Chicago with their husbands in autos, and old men and women hobbled in from their homes on crutches.

Back and forth through the crowd walked "Uncle Ben," a simple old negro from the country armed with a forked willow "divining rod" with which he assumed to detect hidden graves of murder victims.

"Thirty-seven in all," he announced solemnly to the superstitious.

The postal card men drowned out most of the noise with stentorian shouts of "Here's where you get your picture postal cards of the Gunness family, ten cents each, or three for a quarter; better take a half dollar's worth and make a good selection."

Several visitors were seeking information concerning missing friends or relatives, and some further information regarding the positive identity of the victims of the farm resulted from their inquiries.

The most definite information came from Olaf Lindberg of Chicago. He said that his brother Thomas worked for Mrs. Gunness three years ago, and that the last letter from Thomas said that he intended to marry Mrs. Gunness. Olaf wrote to Mrs. Gunness later, and she replied that Thomas had gone to St. Louis, and that she had had no word from him. Olaf Lindberg had not heard of Thomas since. He viewed the unidentified corpses, but was unable to find any likeness to his brother.

Another report of a man missing came from Richland Centre, Wis., but did not contain the name of the man. A letter in reference to the matter was from William Fries of the Wisconsin town. A letter from J. T. Queealy, Blair Trempelau County, Wis., in answer to a matrimonial advertisement, has also been received here.

Sheriff Smutzer has been informed that about three years ago Mrs. Gunness, for no apparent reason, had her barn moved about six feet back. It is suspected that bodies were buried beneath it, and that the work was done to hide the graves. This is one of the theories of the many to be investigated.

Sheriff Smutzer will continue his investigations at the Gunness farm to-morrow. The first object of search will be the heaps of ashes and other refuse in the cellar of the ruined house. The ashes and cinders will be carefully sifted and then sluiced by a miner in an effort to discover the gold fillings which are said to have been in Mrs. Gunness's teeth.

The report to the Coroner of the physicians who made the autopsies on the bodies found in the cellar is not expected for a day or two. All four examining physicians, Dr. H. H. Long, Dr. J. H. William Meyer, Dr. J. T. Gray, and Dr. F. T. Wilcox, said to-day that they are ready to return their findings to the Coroner, Dr. C. S. Mack. That official, however, has not yet indicated to them whether he desires a joint report on all four of the bodies or individual reports on each. He stated to-day that he hesitates to close up the inquest regarding the bodies, because he feels that additional evidence regarding them may yet be discovered.

An anonymous letter, dated Chicago and received to-day by Mayor Darrow, said that the mystery of the farm would be solved by the examination of the waters of a pond just east of the farmhouse. There, the writer said, would be discovered the corpse of Mrs. Gunness and also the head of the body found in the basement of the burned house. The letter concluded:

"Other valuable information will be forwarded as soon as the body is found."

Mayor Lemuel Darrow, law partner of H. M. Worden, who is defending Ray Lamphere, to-day said that the defense would investigate the Pine Lake Cemetery, an old burial ground about a mile from the Gunness farm. It is the theory of the defense that Mrs. Gunness killed her children, placed the body of a large woman near them, set fire to the house to cover up her crime, and then fled. If it is discovered that any of the graves in Park Lake Cemetery have been disturbed recently, Mayor Darrow thinks that this theory will be more or less substantiated.

THINKS MRS. GUNNESS DEAD.

Pinkerton Official Says Either Lamphere or Unknown Fired House.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 10.—Supt. C. J. Smith, the representative of the Chicago office of the Pinkerton National Detective Agency, who has been employed by the county, is now regarded as the best-informed person on the Gunness mystery. He has been upon the scene for three days. It has been learned that his conversations with witnesses have indicated beyond a doubt the conclusion he already has reached.

Of the several possible answers to the riddle as they were recognized until the present time he has discarded two. He regards it as absolutely certain that Mrs. Gunness is dead and that she did not commit suicide.

This leaves two theories for consideration. The first is that Lamphere set fire to the house, and the second is that some accomplice of Mrs. Gunness whose identity has not been learned was the incendiary.

His conception of the fire is that it was of incendiary origin, this conclusion being established by Mrs. Gunness's actions on the day preceding the blaze. After it was started he believes the wind was from such a direction that it filled Mrs. Gunness's room with smoke before it did that of the children. She was almost overcome when they ran to her for protection and threw themselves upon her.

This idea is supported by the discovery that between the body of the mother and her youngest child, Philip, there was found a piece of quilt, showing that she was still in bed when she was suffocated. That she was alive when the children found her was shown by proof that her arm had been thrown about his neck.

No conclusion as to the guilt or innocence of Lamphere has been established by the detective, although he is growing to doubt somewhat that the crime could be fixed upon him by law.

His inquiries among the friends and acquaintances of the widow and her employes have been aimed at this objective with the dual purpose of learning the presence at the farm of outsiders or strangers other than those supposed to have been murdered there. Until the present time he has been unable to find that bodies were shipped to her for burial, or that she had accomplices who assisted her in putting her victims out of the way.

It is probable that Supt. Smith will concentrate his efforts upon Laporte and its surrounding country district until next week, when the case against Lamphere will be presented to the Grand Jury.

Son-in-Law Arrested for Killing Relatives in Family Quarrel.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., May 10.—Jerry Apple and his son-in-law, Albert Crowder, living at Apple's Island, Black Lake, north of here, were murdered late last night. The news of the crime and arrest to-day of Royal Dunning, another son-in-law, reached here this afternoon, the scene of the murder being some distance from railroads.

Dunning and his wife quarreled yesterday. She went to her father's home on the island. Dunning rowed over last night and attempted to effect a reconciliation, but was unsuccessful. There was a family quarrel and Dunning left.

Late at night, while Apple sat by a window and Crowder sat playing cards with Mrs. Dunning, Apple was shot dead through the window. Crowder started toward a stairway, receiving the second charge in the neck and falling dead. Dunning was arrested to-day at his home, some distance away.

BELIEVE WOMAN WAS SLAIN.

Philadelphia Police Puzzled by Finding of Her Body.

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—Mystery surrounds the finding of the body of a well-dressed woman on a clay bank in the extreme southwestern section of the city to-day. The body was that of a rather pretty woman of the blonde type, apparently about 35 years of age. Two men coming across the brick yards from the Point Breeze Oil Works on the Schuylkill River came across the body, which lay with one foot in a small pond.

Beside it lay a bottle that had contained carbolic acid, and it was taken for granted that the woman had committed suicide. But when the police began an investigation they could find no footprints made by a woman that would show how she made her way over the muddy ground to the pond.

They did find prints of a man's feet, and suspicion that the woman may have been carried to the place was strengthened by the fact that the body lay carefully covered by the coat belonging to the woman's suit of black cloth. A gray straw turban was pinned in place on the mass of light hair, which was not greatly disheveled.

The point where the body was found is far out of the way of any ordinary traffic, but persons living not far from the scene reported having heard a cab or carriage drive by early this morning, apparently going in the direction of the open brick yards, where the body was found.

SON SHOOTS HIS FATHER.

Bought Revolver to Protect Mother and Used It with Effect.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., May 10.—Norman White, a lad of 15 years, had seen his mother abused by his drunken father ever since he could remember. Yesterday he spent his savings for a revolver. When the elder White returned home this morning and began abusing his wife Norman slipped upstairs to his bedroom and got the firearm. When he returned to the kitchen where his mother and father were quarreling Norman told him he would kill him if he did not let his mother alone.

"Shoot me if you dare!" the man challenged, as he threatened to strike his wife.

The lad emptied the five chambers of the revolver. Four went wide and the last penetrated the man's right lung. He will not live many hours.

When he was arrested a few hours later he had his revolver reloaded, but gave it up readily. Mrs. White told the police she had intended to shoot White the next time he attacked her if her son had not done so.

ARRESTED FOR BUSSI MURDER

Negro Answering Description of Slayer of Aged Jerseyman Pleads Innocence.

George D. Leslie, colored, was arrested in Ridgefield, N. J., while sleeping in a barn late Saturday night on suspicion of being the man wanted for the murder of aged John Bussi, a well-to-do resident of Mount Bethel, Somerset County. He is in the Hackensack Jail.

Bussi, who was 78 years old, was beaten on the head with a club by a negro burglar last Tuesday night. He died on Friday night. His wife was also beaten.

Leslie was arrested because he answered the description of the murderer sent out by Prosecutor Reger. He will be taken before Mrs. Bussi to see if she can identify him.

Leslie carried a hickory club, which, he says, he uses because he has rheumatism. He says he reached New York on Friday from Montgomery, near New Orleans, but denies knowing anything of the murder.

NO TRACE OF FRED MILLER.

But Most of His Friends Discredit the Notion That He Met Foul Play.

No trace has yet been discovered of Frederick William Miller, the Rockaway boatman, who, after having, as his friends say, made money in real estate speculation, vanished on April 30 and has not been seen since. Those who know Miller best, however, are not inclined to the theory that he has met with foul play. They doubt that he could have in his possession money enough or papers valuable enough, as his friend, James P. Tessing, the Brooklyn saloon keeper, told the police, to make it worth while for any highwayman or other evilly disposed person to make away with him. They think that unless he has accidentally fallen overboard and lost his life, which is unlikely, he will reappear soon.

Search for Miller's body, along the beach and in the bay was still prosecuted yesterday, but not very vigorously. The police now discredit the foul play theory, and among Miller's friends the theory that he will turn up soon is gaining ground.

BOYCOTT EAST SIDE BAKERS.

Jews Take This Plan to Enforce Observance of Their Sunday.

The movement among the Jews of the city to urge a general observance of the Jewish Sabbath by shopkeepers and merchants took definite form last night when at a meeting of the Sabbath Observance Association of the Dukler Mugain Abraham Synagogue, 87 and 89 Attorney Street, steps were taken to boycott all Jewish bakers within a certain section of the east side who did not agree to close shop on Saturday.

A committee of 150 members of the association, which consists of 400 persons, headed by I. Buchbaum of 113 Cannon Street, will call on all Jewish residents between South Street and Fourteenth Street, and the Bowery and the East River, and ask them to refuse to use all breads which do not bear a certain label. The label is to be supplied by the association to all bakers in that section with the demand that they use them.

Members of the committee will also call on the bakers, and try to get them to join in the movement. In case the bakers agree, each will be required to put up a deposit of $50 which he will forfeit in case he violates the agreement by baking on Saturday.

BELMONT EMPLOYE KILLED BY ROBBER

Workman on His Nursery Farm at Babylon Shot and Pockets Rifled.

HIS COMPANION ESCAPES

Highwayman Escapes Because the Man Who Gave the Alarm Couldn't Speak English.

Special to The New York Times.

BABYLON, L. I., May 10.—Breathless and with wide-staring eyes August Ruzer, a Pole employed on the nursery farm of August Belmont, rushed up to Night Watchman Switzenberger last night, calling out "Money! Money!" and then pointing a finger at him, exclaiming again and again, "Boo! Boo! Boo!"

Switzenberger could not understand a word of Polish, and the laborer only knew the one word—money. He pointed down the dark road which runs to the main highway, and again went through his antics, giving a pantomime of one man shooting another and calling out his one English word—"money."

The night watchman followed the Pole down the dark road for a quarter of a mile, and then, hearing the voices of other laborers returning to the farm, decided that the Pole was drunk or crazy, and turned back with the oncoming party.

But Ruzer kept up his pantomime until the other employes of Mr. Belmont wearied of it, and ordered him to his room for the rest of the night.

This morning at the time for the men to report for work Ruzer showed up, haggard for lack of sleep and still calling out "money," and pointed with his finger and repeated, "Boo! Boo! Boo!"

"Where's Dougloz?" asked the foreman of the seemingly crazy Pole. Dougloz was the man's roommate, also a Pole. Ruzer pointed down the road and began his pantomime over again.

Then the workmen began to fathom what the antics of the Pole meant. There was in the man's eyes a look of horror that had not died with the passing of the night. When Ruzer realized that some of the men would follow him, he started down the road at a swift trot, looking from right to left. The men followed.

In the dim light of daybreak the Pole stopped in the middle of the road and pointed toward the ground. There lay his friend and roommate, Dougloz. The body lay face down, and in the left breast was a bullet hole.

The body was taken back to the farm and Coroner Savage was notified. He placed Ruzer under arrest in order to hold him while a search was made for the slayer of his friend. There is nothing against him and no suspicious circumstances. Had he been able to speak English or some one on the farm able to understand Polish, the murderer might have been captured when Ruzer gave his incomprehensible alarm.

Later to-day an interpreter was found and Ruzer told his story. He said that after receiving their month's wage they went to the village and loitered around awhile. After having two glasses of beer each they started back for the farm after nightfall.

The road from the main highway is deserted after nightfall. It is narrow and high hedged with shrubbery. Ruzer said that at one of the darkest points some one jumped toward them and called out in English to them. He could only understand one word, "money." He started to run. A moment later he heard three pistol shots fired. He ran the faster, and, as his friend did not follow, he decided he had been shot and robbed. This was what he had tried to tell the night watchman.

An examination of the body of Dougloz showed that one bullet had cut his clothes without marking the flesh. There was only one wound, the fatal one in the breast. The third shot had gone wild. In the pockets of the slain man was found $1.39. His companion said he had nearly all of $25 with him when he left the village.

District Attorney Furman has taken the case, and, with his assistants and the police, is endeavoring to get track of the man who killed the Pole.

Odd Judicial Ruling in Bayonne, N. J.

Sigmond Belmonti of 10 East Fifty-first Street, Bayonne, N. J., was fined $10 by Recorder Lazarus yesterday for failing to send his 10-year-old son to school. The Recorder announced that the boy would be kept locked up until the fine was paid.

ROOSEVELT CLASSED WITH DEMAGOGUES

J. W. Van Cleave Threatens a Bolt of Republican Manufacturers for His Stand on Labor.

"A SOP TO THE WILD WOLF"

President's Labor Amendments Attacked as the "Cheapest Kind of Demagogy"—Bold Challenge to Gompers.

James W. Van Cleave, President of the Buck Stove and Range Company of St. Louis, and head of the National Association of Manufacturers, arrived in this city last night on his way to Washington to attend the conference called by the President on the conservation of our natural resources. At the Waldorf-Astoria he talked at length to reporters of the plans for the coming convention of the association, which will convene at the Waldorf next Monday, and the stand that will then be taken by the association on the labor legislation before Congress.

Mr. Van Cleave characterized the advocacy of the Hepburn amendment to the Sherman anti-trust law and the injunction law by the President as "the cheapest kind of demagogy," and declared that the entire body of thousands of voters represented by the members of the association would bolt any ticket put up at the coming National conventions which "seemed to be willing to sanction this sort of thing."

Calls Gompers a "Wild Wolf."

Samuel Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor, which has been particularly active in its attacks upon the Manufacturers' Association, Mr. Van Cleave characterized as "a prairie wolk with the hydrophobia," and said that he considered the gist of the President's last two messages to be "merely a sop thrown to this wild wolf."

"I have always been an admirer of Mr. Roosevelt," said Mr. Van Cleave, "and I cannot understand how he has been led into this position. It is absolutely impossible for any one to control the labor vote. Many people have tried it and failed, but it is the only explanation that can be given of his recent attitude. I know, however, that the President has been put to thinking. In the last few days he has received so many telegrams protesting against these bills that it was impossible to send them all over the White House wires, and they were carried up to the Capitol in bushel baskets. He has now gone on a vacation of a few days for the sole purpose of giving the matter sober consideration.

"The time has come for the small manufacturer, the bone and sinew of the commerce of this country, to stop and consider where he is and where he is being led. We have come to the conclusion that we have done with demagogues and that we must have some one at the head of the Administration of this Government that is 'safe and sane.'

"Furthermore, if you stop and think of it, the majority of the Republican vote is west of Buffalo, and out there we have a way of bolting, and when we do we go over the precipice and don't care what happens. We are to-day ground between the upper and the nether millstone of demagogy and politics and there must be a change."

Mr. Van Cleave was asked what would happen if both parties nominated what he termed as men under the influence of demagogy. "Then, God help the country," was his reply.

Objects to Company Taft Keeps.

It was then explained that there seemed to be an impression that the candidates would be Secretary Taft and Mr. Bryan. "I do not concede for a moment," he replied, "that Mr. Taft will be nominated, but if that is the ticket the result will be perfectly plain. Mr. Taft is an honest, intelligent, and reasonable man. The only trouble with him is the company that he keeps. The proposition is that we manufacturers have entered the political field not only for our own preservation, but also for that of what we believe to be the interests of the country at large. And we are going to carry this fight through."

Mr. Van Cleave's company recently won the suit in the United States Supreme Court against boycotting by organized labor, which is supposed to have given rise to the Hepburn amendment. The association of which he is the head is composed of 3,000 members, among them some of the largest industrial corporations in the country, the Standard Oil Company, the Baldwin Locomotive Works, &c. He is also the moving spirit in the National Council for Industrial Defense, which is composed of 130 National and State organizations of manufacturers. At the convention next week, at which fully 2,000 men from all parts of the country, representing concerns with a total capitalization of $15,000,000,000, will be present, this labor fight will be taken up in detail, and such men as Senator Beveridge, Wu Ting-Fang, Congressman Littlefield, and Gov. Fort of New Jersey will be heard. The sessions will last for three days.

Declares for Freedom of Labor.

"With organized labor," said Mr. Van Cleave, "we have no quarrel. We have no desire or intention to disrupt any labor organization. But the association will undoubtedly maintain its unyielding opposition to boycott, closed shop, sympathetic strike, limitation of output, compulsory use of the union label, sacrifice of the independent workmen to the union, restriction as to the use of tools, machinery, or materials except such as are unsafe, and restriction as to the number of apprentices and helpers when of proper age.

"Such a system is an anachronism in this day and age of American freedom. To the employers of the country, jacked and bullied about by the unions, the situation is known—and is extremely unsatisfactory. To the mass of organized labor, deprived in many localities of the chance to earn a livelihood and in others beset with violence and abuse, the situation is also known—and feared. The remedy lies with the American people as a whole.

"It is our purpose to make the truth of this whole situation widely known, to champion the course of the independent working men and the employers alike against the aggressions of this 'trust.' In the light of recent legislation at Washington, even after the Supreme Court has declared the boycott illegal, it becomes evident that to do this the employers of America must systematically and extensively participate in National politics, especially in the approaching Presidential campaign.

Attack on Labor Leaders.

"A few labor union leaders seem to be attempting to delay the return of business confidence. This is a Presidential year, and consequently, there is a special temptation for the pernicious activity of the politicians who have gone to the head of some of the unions in recent days.

"Labor unions have already inflicted an evil on the country which they could never entirely repair, even if they should begin to-morrow morning to attempt to repair it. They have virtually killed the apprenticeship system in many of our great industries, and have entirely killed it in others. In looking for our accessions of skilled workers now we have, more and more as the years pass, to rely on those whom Europe furnishes us through the channels of immigration."

SOUTH TURNING FROM BRYAN.

House Democrats Unanimous for Harrison of New York for Second Place.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—A feature of the Democratic political situation is the increased strength shown by the boom started for Francis Burton Harrison of New York for the second place on the National ticket. A poll of a majority of the Democratic members of the House has disclosed a unanimity of opinion in favor of him.

The poll also developed that there was a growing lack of unanimity with regard to the nominee for the first place. There was significant indication of a drift away from Bryan on the part of the Southern Democratic Representatives. Out of nineteen Southerners interviewed only four were for Bryan. There was increased reference to Culberson, and the Johnson men also were more in evidence.

Bryan, Johnson, and Gray adherents are making ready for the invasion of Pennsylvania next week, when the Democratic State Convention meets in Harrisburg. Publicity agents of the three booms are predicting that the delegation will be uninstructed and each claims that this will be a point in favor of his especial candidate.

The number of delegates pledged to Bryan to date number 252, while the uninstructed, with Pennsylvania's delegation added, will total 220. The list follows:

	Uninstructed.	Bryan.
Connecticut	14
Illinois	..	54
Indiana	..	30
Iowa	..	26
Kansas	..	20
Massachusetts	28	4
Nebraska	..	16
New York	78	..
New Jersey	24	..
North Dakota	..	8
Ohio	..	46
Oklahoma	..	14
Pennsylvania	68	..
Rhode Island	8	..
South Dakota	..	8
Wisconsin	..	26

Minnesota and Wyoming both will hold State Conventions simultaneously on Thursday. It is conceded Johnson will get the twenty-two delegates from his State. Gray already has the eight delegates from Delaware.

MISSOURIANS WERE OFFENDED

Thought Augustus Thomas Resolution Reflected Upon Eugene Field.

This statement was issued by the local representative of William Jennings Bryan last night in regard to the dispatch in yesterday's papers to the effect that Mr. Bryan's request that Augustus Thomas, the playwright, be named as an alternate delegate by the County Convention at Springfield, Mo., had been turned down:

"Mr. Bryan's request about Augustus Thomas was not 'turned down.' The resolution to send Thomas to Denver was worded in such a way that the Missouri Democrats regarded it as a reflection upon the late Eugene Field, the poet. The resolution stated that, aside from Samuel L. Clemens, Augustus Thomas was the greatest man of letters that Missouri had ever produced."

PASSING OF BOURKE COCKRAN.

Cohalan Will Be Installed To-night as Grand Sachem of Tammany.

The last echo of the departure of Bourke Cockran from Tammany Hall will be heard to-morrow night at the Wigwam, when Daniel F. Cohalan will be installed in Cockran's place as Grand Sachem at the annual anniversary meeting. Besides the completion of the plans for the one hundred and thirty-second anniversary celebration, to be held on July 4, four new Sachems will be installed.

Thomas E. Rush will take the place made vacant by the death of Patrick Keenan, George W. Loft will succeed Mr. Cohalan, Julius Harburger will fill the vacancy caused by the death of Randolph Guggenheimer, and Thomas F. McAvoy will take Daniel F. McMahon's place.

SOCIALISTS IN CONVENTION.

Sharp Division Over the Proposal to Appeal to the Farmers.

CHICAGO, May 10.—The National Convention of the Socialist Party opened here to-day. The first session, which lasted from noon until early evening, developed indications of a clash between city Socialists and farm Socialists. The issue, according to several spirited addresses by men and women delegates, is whether the Socialist Party shall make a special appeal to farmers to join the Socialist Party. When the convention concluded its day's work, the question was still under discussion.

Morris Hillquit of New York was elected temporary Chairman. Eugene V. Debs and William D. Haywood, formerly Secretary of the Western Federation of Miners, seemingly are the leading aspirants for the Presidential nomination, and the contest between them promises to be close.

MORE ON HUMAN ELECTRICITY

Andrew McConnell Continues His Lectures in Calvary Baptist Church.

Andrew McConnell continued his series of lectures on "How Christianity and Science Meet in the Laws of Health" before the morning service at Calvary Baptist Church yesterday. The Rev. Dr. MacArthur introduced the speaker.

"There are three kinds of mind," Mr. McConnell said. "There is the closed mind, which is closed to all ideas; the open mind, and the open and closed, which cannot judge between a fad and a principle."

Dr. McConnell said that the fundamental thing in this life was the electricity of the human being. Electricity, he said, could separate the ingredients of sugar and show that it contained poison.

Mr. McConnell then told how the electricity in the body produced decomposition of the foods which we eat, and said that the electricity so produced was taken through the body by the nerves. The study of the brain, he said, showed it to be a sort of battery.

STABBED AFTER CARD GAME.

The Only Winner Found in Serious Plight After Winning All the Money.

With a stab wound in his left side near the heart Vito Fornack of 183 Meserole Street, Williamsburg, was in a critical condition last night in his home, while the police of the Stagg Street Station were hunting for his assailant. He was attacked early yesterday morning in the hallway of his house and left apparently dead.

The stabbing is thought to have been done by one of a party with whom Fornack was playing cards in his house on Saturday night. He won all the money, and thus aroused the hostility of his guests.

The game ended in a quarrel, and Fornack says that threats were made against him by one of the players.

ARTISTS DROP WORK TO BOOM ROOSEVELT

Eight Painters Form the "Theodore III. Club" to Have Him Renominated.

SHINN EVOLVES A PUZZLE

"Does He See a Third Term?" Will Be Distributed Freely About the Country.

Eight artists and illustrators who have created a stir in the art world with various original ideas have decided to go into politics. They have formed what they call a "Theodore III. Club," the object of which is to keep Mr. Roosevelt in office for another term. The eight artists, whose names are familiar to all those who are acquainted with American art, are Robert Henri, Everett Shinn, W. J. Glackens, Morris Prendergast, John Sloan, Ernest Lawson, George B. Lukes, and Arthur B. Davies. Most of the meetings have taken place in Mr. Shinn's roomy studio in Waverley Place, and it is there that an active campaign has been planned.

If you drop into Mr. Shinn's studio at present you will see the weird stage characters which he loves to paint hung high on the walls, but there are no evidences of unfinished work along this line. Instead a couple of thousand trick toys, made to resemble Mr. Roosevelt's face, usurp the tables and benches. Inside two glass compartments which represent eyes two bullet pupils roll about. The object of the puzzle is to put the two bullets in little grooves in which they fit. The toy bears the legend: "Does he see a third term?" These toys, which are the invention of Mr. Shinn, are to be distributed by the thousand all over the country. And Mr. Shinn has eight or ten other surprises in his capacious cabinets which are to be sprung later.

"We are going into this thing right," said that artist last night. "Artists—men who paint—are usually too prone to take themselves for granted as painters and nothing else. We're going into politics, and we're going to work for all there is in it.

"As a matter of fact, the artist is the first man who feels the lack of prosperity in the country. It offends the artist's eye if those in the street are not well dressed, and they are never well dressed except in prosperous times. One Merry Widow hat in an automobile doesn't make a prosperous time, either. We want everybody to be well dressed, and we think that they can be if Roosevelt gets a third term.

"This little trick of mine is only the first of a series of affairs of the same sort that we shall send around in the five weeks left before the Republican Convention. For the moment we have dropped painting for politics."

W. J. Glackens said more along the same lines:

"The political horizon has been overshadowed by the highlights and shadows in work executed by such statesmen and industrial artisans as Ryan, McCurdy, Harriman, Pat McCarren, Murphy, and others who represent wealth and the power of office," he said. "Roosevelt has pulled the shade and let in the overhead light, and on the canvas is revealed a landscape of the country's business and financial world. It is a ludicrous and fraudulent imitation of what a picture of this grand nation's resources and civilization ought to show.

"I'd like to be able to paint a thousand portraits of Roosevelt, and I dare say each one could be made to reveal a truthful side of the characteristics possessed by this versatile governor of the United States."

MAY NAME ROOSEVELT.

California Delegation Likely to be Instructed for the President.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10.—An unusual situation will present itself when the Republican State Convention meets at Sacramento next Thursday. Regardless of the fact that President Roosevelt has repeatedly stated that he will not be a candidate for re-election, Republican voters of California, by unofficial ballot at the primaries last week for the choice of delegates to the State Convention, declared their preference for the President over other candidates, and it may be that the Sacramento Convention will instruct for Roosevelt.

George H. Knight, who seconded Roosevelt's nomination at the last Republican National Convention, will probably be Chairman of the State Convention.

The plan for taking unofficial ballots to indicate the preference of the Republicans in this State for President was adopted by the State Central Committee as a compromise.

Arrest Chef for Robbing the Larder.

TRENTON, N. J., May 10.—Ernest F. Lohshe of New York, imported a week ago as the chef of the Hildebrecht Catering Company kitchen here, was arrested last night as he was about to depart for New York. As soon as the chef came things began to disappear. Last night a box filled with squabs and terrapin was found, addressed to his friends in New York.

TRUST CO. FOR MANASQUAN.

The Late President Magee's Brother-in-Law in Plan for New Concern.

ASBURY PARK, May 10.—Plans are well under way in Manasquan to organize a trust company in that town to take the place of the First National Bank, which went into the hands of Receiver John W. Schofield, following the suicide of President Magee.

G. Randolph Cook, Secretary of the Styles & Cash Stationery Manufacturing Company of New York City, and George V. W. Burroughs of Manasquan, brother-in-law of the late President, Magee, are in the movement to organize a trust company.

Receiver Schofield was in Washington to-day to see his family. He is not yet ready to file his reports with the Controller of the Currency. He is credited with the statement that the affairs of the First National Bank are in the worst tangle he has ever seen.

It is impossible to verify the report that the bank holds at least $175,000 worth of paper of the New Jersey & West Virginia Bridge Company, which is now in the hands of receivers.

RECEIVER WANTS $1,000,000.

Demands That Directors of Waynesburg Bank Shall Furnish It.

WAYNESBURG, Penn., May 10.—Directors of the Farmers and Drovers' National Bank, which was forced to close last year, following the arrest of its cashier, J. F. B. Rinehart, on charges of embezzlement and misaprpopriation of funds, have received letters from the attorneys of J. H. Strawn, receiver of the bank, demanding that they make amicable settlement of a deficit of about $1,000,000 in the bank's funds, with the alternative of being sued for that amount.

The letters from the attorneys charge the Directors with failure properly to guard the funds of the bank and with the expenditure of the institution's money for corrupt political purposes. The Directors are accused of gross carelessness in failing to audit Rinehart's books and failing in other waws to protect the bank's interests. The letters aver that after the Controller of the Currency demanded the removal of Rinehart as cashier the Dirctors elected Rinehart Vice President, and with that title allowed him practically to control the bank as he did while cashier.

AN INFREQUENT TRAVELER.

Connecticut Woman 72 Years Old Takes Her Second Ride on Railroad.

Special to The New York Times.

ANSONIA, Conn., May 10.—Mrs. Sylvia Merriman, who is seventy-two years old, took her second ride in a railroad coach yesterday—her first ride she took forty-two years ago. Her journey yesterday was to Ansonia, where she came to visit her niece.

She had her first street-car ride to-day, when, with Mrs. Amelia Thompson, aged sixty-seven; Mrs. Amanda Bishop, aged sixty-six, and Mrs. Rose Andrews, aged seventy, all of them relatives, she went to Cheshire, the village of her birth.

CALIPH II. CUTTING A TOOTH.

Miss Murphy Worried About Her Baby Hippo's Symptoms.

Caliph II., the infant son of Miss Murphy, the widowed hippotamus at the Central Park Zoo, has grown peevish of late and the keepers are wondering what ails the youngster. For nearly a week young Caliph has been acting as though he were troubled about something. His mother is evidently worried and has redoubled her maternal attention. It is believed that young Caliph is cutting his first tooth. At least that is one of the possibilities suggested by Head Keeper Snyder, and Snyder is usually a shrewd dignostician.

Caliph II. is about six months old now and is still on a milk diet, although during the last few days he has been nosing over the hay which his mother stows away by the hundredweight. Yesterday young Caliph was out of his tank for two hours or more, and at feeding time tried to eat some hay. He took a mouthful but appeared to have trouble chewing it. This, said Keeper Snyder, is almost an invariable sign that a young animal is teething. Having no rubber rings, they use the hay instead. This, of course, applies only to the herbiforous animals. The carnivora cubs usually teeth on a bone or bite the bars of the cage while trying to get the tip of the first tooth through the gums.

When feeling well the youngster has some rare old romps with his mother. Miss Murphy's favorite form of play is to duck little Caliph in the tank and roll him around the bottom, then lift him clear of the water and land him struggling half way up the inclined platform which leads from the bottom of the tank to the landing. Caliph has learned lately to slide down the steep incline after the fashion of polar bears coasting down the sides of icebergs. Miss Murphy will frequently splash water over the inclined platform to make it slippery, and young Caliph will stand at the top looking down at the water a moment, and then will kneel on his short front legs and slide with a mighty splash into the tank.

Caliph II. has already made many friends among the children who visit the Central Park Zoo. He is the favorite of the hippo house. On Sundays it requires two keepers to keep the crowd moving past the hippo cage in order to give all visitors a chance to see Caliph and his mother.

PITTSBURG ROBBERY MAY REACH $750,000

Believed That National Politicians May Intervene to Keep Cashier Montgomery from Jail.

$5,000,000 GONE IN 3 YEARS

Six Pittsburg Banks Lost Heavily Through Dishonest Officials, Some of Whom Are in Prison.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, May 10.—That the alleged defalcation of Cashier William Montgomery of the Allegheny National Bank of Pittsburg will reach $750,000 is now believed here, and it is thought that powers high in State and National politics will intervene and keep from prison the banker whose counsel in years gone by was valued by M. S. Quay.

In little more than three years there has been stolen by employes of banks in the Pittsburg district almost $5,000,000. The list follows:

ENTERPRISE NATIONAL BANK, Allegheny, closed Oct. 18, 1904. The cashier, T. Lee Clarke, committed suicide. Known loss	$1,500,000
FARMERS AND DROVERS' NATIONAL BANK, Waynesburg, Penn., closed Winter of 1905. Cashier J. B. F. Rinehart indicted on ninety counts forgery, embezzlement, &c. Known loss	1,000,000
UNION TRUST COMPANY, Pittsburg, suffered through peculations employes, C. S. Hixon and Clifford Wray, two years ago, both now being in prison	385,000
OAKLAND SAVINGS AND TRUST COMPANY, Pittsburg, suffered through peculations Bookkeeper William Workman early in 1908. Workman now in prison	20,000
FARMERS' DEPOSIT NATIONAL BANK, Pittsburg, robbed systematically by Auditor John Young and Henry Reiber, paying teller, both of whom have since pleaded guilty and are awaiting sentence. Rumored that losses reach several millions, but bank admits to loss of	1,105,000
ALLEGHENY NATIONAL BANK of Pittsburg, alleged to be robbed by William Montgomery, cashier, who has been placed under $50,000 bail. While it is admitted on the first warrant issued that $469,000 is missing, it is understood that the peculations of Montgomery may be	750,000
Total	$4,760,000

It is rumored that the Allegheny National Bank will demand an investigation of the source of funds which in the past few years have come to certain women in Pittsburg who were known to be friendly with Montgomery.

It was in the little back room of Montgomery's bank, the room known as the Quay room, that it was first figured out that Benjamin Harrison of Indiana would be a good candidate for President of the United States. Montgomery was present at this meeting, and it is said that "Monty" gave the advice at this meeting which decided Quay to look toward Indiana at this time for the next President.

Quay and Montgomery both made a large killing on the election of Harrison. It was to Montgomery that Quay sent the message some nights before election to put up every cent he could get, at any odds obtainable, on the election of Harrison, and it was Montgomery who at this time arranged for the hasty mortgage on the home of Senator Quay at Beaver, Penn., so that Quay might bet even more cash on the chances of Harrison. Quay is said to have won $250,000 as his share of the wagers, and Montgomery took an equal amount.

It was Montgomery, now under arrest, who was sent hurriedly by Quay to a conference in Philadelphia about which some one had wired the silent Senator at length. Quay had been asked to reply by wire, but instead he sent "Monty," his next friend, who delivered this expression, since grown famous in politics: "Don't write; send."

According to Pittsburg financiers, Montgomery did not use all of the money that he extracted from the bank for loans to his friends in distress. It is alleged that he took several fliers in the stock market, and in one deal with Charles M. Schwab, ex-President of the United States Steel Corporation, was badly pinched.

Robert Hall, the Pittsburg broker, was one of the original promoters of Tonopah Extension, and he interested William Montgomery and Charles M. Schwab at the same time, selling them a large block of the stock. At that time Tonopah Extension was selling for $6 a share, and it was thought that it would go to $50. The stock did continue to rise steadily for some time afterward, until it reached 13¾.

Then it suddenly began to decline, and before Montgomery could get out it had dropped to $1 and still continues around that neighborhood.

RAILROADS GAINING CONTROL OF EXPENSE

March Net Earnings Show Only Half as Heavy Loss as Those for February.

GROSS RECEIPTS STILL LAG

Great Improvement Reported by Erie, Southern Railway, and Other Lines, Showing Best So Far This Year.

Recent returns of railroad earnings have been viewed not so much in comparison with the earnings for the corresponding periods last year as in comparison with previous months, for the reason that the financial community has recognized that the problem which has confronted the railroads has been a reduction in expenses, and through this means a better showing in net relatively to the amount of gross receipts. Over the gross earnings the railroads have practically no control, so far at least as the statement refers to the present situation. Broadly speaking, of course, the railroads can encourage business, and thus increase their gross, but their principal resource in a time of business reaction such as that the country is now passing through is a reduction in expenses.

How far the principal railroads of the country have been successful in the efforts which they have all been making to reduce operating expenses is indicated by a study of the recent monthly returns. The leading roads have now made public their earnings for the month of March, and a comparison of these with the reports previously submitted for the months of February and January shows to what extent the railroads have successfully met the task of saving out of their reduced gross earnings as large a proportion as possible for net.

In the following table the gross and net earnings of about a score of the important railroads of the country are given by months for the first three months of 1908:

In considering this showing it is necessary, of course, to bear in mind that February was a short month, and the volume of that month's earnings, both gross and net, if compared with either January or March, must be subject to adjustment to the larger number of days in the other two months. It will be noted, however, that with the single exception of the Wabash every road in this list showed larger gross earnings in March than in January, and without exception the March net earnings were better than those of February and, again, with the exception of the Wabash, better than those of January.

It is very clear from these facts that the railroads were much more successful in March than in either of the two earlier months of the year in adjusting their expenses to their reduced gross receipts. Some of the weaker roads show notable illustration of this. Thus the net earnings of the Erie, whose net fell in January to $209,563 and in February to $195,616, jumped up in March to $707,361, and the Southern Railway's net earnings were more than doubled in March, amounting in that month to $1,050,032, compared with only $505,026 in February and $428,646 in January. Other roads whose net earnings were less drastically reduced in the first two months of the year also show very marked improvement.

Comparing the net earnings for the month of February with those for January, it is found that in practically every case the showing was worse in February, even allowing for the fact that February was two days shorter than January. It would seem from the showing made by the roads included in this list, which may be taken as representative of far the larger part of the country's total mileage, that toward the end of February or early in March the railroads got their expenses under fair control, under sufficient control, at all events, to make the net showing for March vastly better than for February.

In this connection it is interesting to recall that the gross earnings of the railroads began to decline in November, so that it was fully three months after the gross receipts began to decline that the managements of the railroads as a whole got their expenses under control. That the extent to which progress in this respect was made in March was important is clearly indicated by a glance at the increases in gross earnings in March over February and at the proportion of this gross increase which was saved for net.

In many cases it will be seen the increase in net in March compared with February was almost as great as the increase in gross. This shows, of course, that the railroads handled the larger traffic of March at practically the same cost as they handled the smaller business of February.

The figures for the individual roads given above are interestingly supplemented by the aggregate showing for eighty-nine roads for the month of March, compiled by The Wall Street Journal, as follows:

March.	1908.	1907.	Decrease. Amt.	P. C.
Gross...	$128,783,900	$145,170,737	$16,386,837	11.28
Exp. ..	93,070,263	104,253,267	11,183,004	10.72

A similar compilation for the month of February showed that gross earnings in that month declined 11.31 per cent. compared with those of February, 1907, while the net earnings dropped no less than 23.77 per cent., which was almost twice as heavy as the loss in net earnings shown for the month of March.

How far this improvement in net earnings is the result of excessive economy in the matter of repairs, &c., is a question which only the management of the individual roads could answer at this time. It is true, however, and it is an important fact in any discussion of this subject, that many of the railroads during the last couple of years spent so much on the betterment of their lines that no serious loss is likely to result from a temporary enforcement of the strictest economy in maintenance expenses.

WANTS CASTRO SPANKED.

Paris Temps Says France Would Like Roosevelt to Use the Big Stick.

PARIS, May 10.—The recent expulsion of eight Frenchmen from Venezuela has increased the antagonism of the French public toward President Castro. The Temps expresses regret that France did not send ships to bombard Puerto Cabello instead of simply breaking off diplomatic relations, when M. Taigny, the French Chargé d'Affaires, was expelled from Venezuela two years ago. It declares that the time has come to act.

"The United States seems disposed to begin," says the Temps. "Senator Cullom declared that Castro deserved a good spanking. Never was there a more propitious occasion for President Roosevelt to use the big stick, and France is perfectly willing to see him enact the rôle of peacemaker. Venezuela must be taught a lesson, and it is immaterial whether it comes from Washington or elsewhere, provided it comes quickly."

WILLEMSTAD, May 10.—W. W. Russell, the American Minister to Venezuela, sailed from here to-day for the United States. That there is a tension in the diplomatic relations between the United States and Venezuela was shown by the fact that none of the Venezuelan officials was on hand to bid Mr. Russell good-bye.

Thomas P. Moffat, American Consul at La Guayra, is shut up in that city because of the plague and it is feared he is without some of the necessaries of life. It is thought the United States may send a gunboat to take away the Consul. President Castro's decree shutting off La Guayra, probably will remain in force until a week shall go by without a new case of the plague.

TORTURE IN CHINESE TRIAL.

Peking Officials Use Forbidden Method in Examining Witnesses.

PEKING, April 8.—In the course of the recent trial of Government officials charged with betraying the Foreign Office's correspondence touching the Tatsu Maru affair, the Peking authorities resorted to the old method of using torture in order to extract confessions.

This is a notable illustration of the extremity to which the Peking Government is sometimes driven. In the face of the imperial decree two years ago abolishing torture and making it an offense for any official to administer it, high officials in Peking, under the shadow of the imperial palace, have administered torture within the last month.

The matter has been kept as quiet as possible, and almost no reference to it has been made in Chinese papers, but the incident has made a very strong impression upon the new party of China which is aiming at constitutional government. The incident is regarded simply as an instance of the weakness of the Central Government, showing its willingness to resort to any means to carry its purposes into effect.

It is a matter of general knowledge that the torture elicited no further information than could have been obtained in an ordinary way; but there is at present such a fear of the revolutionary movement that any method of obtaining information which would lead to the detection of revolutionaries is considered advisable by the Peking authorities.

HAVANA, May 10.—Gov. Magoon returned to Havana this evening from his trip to Pinar del Rio.

He was well pleased with the reception which was accorded him everywhere and the general good feeling that was evinced. He was loudly cheered at the American colony at Herradura, and large crowds greeted his train at every station.

At one place a blind negro boy sang songs, one of them proposing Gov. Magoon as the next President of Cuba.

PARROT'S JEERS ANGERED HIM.

So Mr. Curran Wrung Its Neck—Row That Followed Broke Up Party.

John McGovern, an engineer, and Mrs. McGovern gave a reception in their flat, at 441 West 151st Street, on Saturday night, and among their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Curran. At first the yellow-eyed parrot in the dining room seemed to like all the guests.

While refreshments were being served in the dining room at 11 o'clock Mr. Curran was holding forth, the unquestioned leader of the conversation. But while he talked the green bird kept repeating monotonously, as if he were only mildly disgusted:

"Oh, the loafer; oh, the loafer; oh, the loafer."

Presently Mr. Curran let somebody else do the talking. After a while Mrs. Curran began a diatribe on the high prices now prevailing, and while she was at her highest note the bird almost screamed:

"Oh, fudge!"

Mr. Curran then rose slowly, reached into the cage, pulled out the parrot, and wrung his head off. After which he and Mrs. Curran attempted to withdraw. Mr. McGovern and one or two of his friends blocked his line of retreat, and the noise of battle was heard afar.

The noise of the engagement brought in Policeman Burns, who arrested the two Currans and McGovern. In the Harlem Court yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Curran charged McGovern with assault, and Mr. Curran was charged with cruelty to animals. Magistrate Harris fined the three prisoners $1 each.

FORESTERS RESIST INCREASED RATES

Order Proposes to Make Aged Members Pay Heavy Assessments on Policies.

NEW RATES RETROACTIVE

Many Poor Men Would Be Driven Out and They Angrily Protest Against the Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. JOHN, N. B., May 10.—Old members of the Independent Order of Foresters, the most important fraternal and benevolent organization in the Dominion, with a membership of nearly 285,000 in Canada and the United States, are making a strong protest against the proposal to increase the assessments of the 110,000 members who joined prior to 1899. The plan, which is to be acted upon next month, is not merely to increase the assessments from now on, but is retroactive. If carried out, these old members will be required to pay the difference between their present assessments and the assessment rates which it is proposed to establish from the date of their identification with the organization, if they wish to keep up the insurance they bargained for in the beginning.

This plan is put forward despite the fact that on Jan. 1, 1908, the Treasurer's statement shows that there was a surplus of $11,967,479. In every town of any size in the Dominion and the United States there is a branch of the organization, which is called a "court," and thousands of middle-aged and elderly men are angrily protesting.

The organization, which is nearly thirty years old, is essentially a "poor man's" insurance company. The rates are low and the late Dr. Oronhyatekha, the head and moving spirit of the organization for a quarter of a century, always impressed upon the public the advantages to the poor man. Thousands of those who have been paying assessments for from ten to twenty-five years are too poor to pay the back assessments with the 4 per cent. interest which it is proposed to require, or, in fact, to pay the increased assessments from now on. Moreover, they are too old to ask for insurance in other companies.

A prominent ex-official of the Foresters, who has been active in the affairs of the organization for more than twenty years, said yesterday:

"The Supreme Executive propose a hardship on all the members who joined before 1899. They say our money is all spent. We have paid out over $23,000,000 in benefits, and they have over $12,000,000 surplus. Thousands of the members will have to drop out. If we paid back assessments now, as they ask us to do, it would not be long before they raised the assessment again.

"When I was induced to become a member of the order the canvasser dwelt on the rates of assessment, saying that they would always be kept the same. Consequently that was my canvass when I did all I could to advance the interests of the order. If I had even dreamed that they would contemplate such drastic changes in our assessments I should never have joined or worked for the order.

"The organization proposes to lend us money at compound interest to pay up, but it seems to me it would not be long before the interest would eat up the whole thing and leave us in debt to the order. The High Court of New Brunswick meets in this city on May 18. Many of the old members believe that the delegates to the High Court should be instructed to oppose the change and vote to turn out the present Supreme Court officers and appoint new ones."

Elliott G. Stevenson, Supreme Chief Ranger, the executive head of the order, in a recent issue of The Forester, the official organ, declares that the readjustment is necessary. In his article Mr. Stevenson says three plans have been submitted. They are:

> A—The old members—to now contribute the difference between rate they have paid and what they would have paid at age of entry under present rates, with interest added at 4 per cent. compounded, and pay the present rate for age of entry for the future. If any member is not in a position to pay this difference, borrow it from the society paying interest at the rate of 5 per cent. and have the amount deducted when policy becomes a claim—if not sooner paid.
>
> B—Have a new rating to be fixed by combining the rate at age of entry for such amount of insurance as what he has paid for would pay on present rate—with rate at attained age for difference between such amount and the amount of policy.
>
> C—Accept in lieu of policy now held a policy for such amount as the rate paid would pay on basis of the present rates and continue to pay the rate he has been paying.

Following are the old monthly rates for $1,000 and the proposed new rates:

CANARY GANG SOON FREED.

Nagle Gets Bail for Men Who Tried to Wreck Tiernan's Saloon.

Ten members of the "Canary Island gang" descended on the saloon of Mike Tiernan, the old baseball player, at 135th Street and Fifth Avenue, last night. They broke windows and fixtures, and the reserves from the East 126th Street Station were called out. After the dust of battle cleared away five of the attacking party were arrested.

On the way to the station house they vowed vengeance against the police for interfering with them, and as soon as they could dispatched trusty messengers for Percy Nagle.

Nagle took in the situation, and promised his constituents immediate release. Within a few minutes Justice Zeller of General Sessions arrived at the station house. He admitted the prisoners to bail. To-day in court they will answer charges of attempted felonious assault and malicious mischief. The men arrested are: Richard McCormick, 236 East 149th Street; James "Chop" O'Brien, 2,245 Fifth Avenue; Peter Jackson, 2,246 Fifth Avenue; John Doninon, 1,429 Prospect Avenue, Bronx, and George Smith, 2,862 Bainbridge Street, Bronx.

The gang has had it in for Tiernan for some time. Yesterday they visited the saloon, and Tiernan's son refused them admission. They broke in the door and were wrecking the place when the police came.

Says City Isn't Paying Union Wages.

Complaint was made to the Central Federated Union yesterday by District 15 of the International Association of Machinists that the following departments were not paying mechanics the prevailing rate of wages: Fire Department, Dock Department, Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, Department of Parks, and Department of Education.

RENAISSANCE MEDAL SALE.

Many Contain Likenesses of Saxon and Old Italian Rulers.

A collection of Renaissance medals will be offered for sale at Frankfort on the Main, Germany, on May 18 and 19, by Adolph Hess. This collection, so a Fellow of the Royal Numismatic Society of England, Frank C. Higgins, now in this city, declares, embraces so many remarkable and unique rarities that no estimate of their commercial value could possibly be hazarded.

The medals represent the results of many years' careful accumulation by the late Dr. Richard J. Erbstein, formerly Director of the Royal Coin and Porcelain Collections of Dresden, Saxony.

Many of the medals are faithful metallic portraits of celebrities of the period of the Reformation, the likenesses of whom in all probability now exist in no other form.

The Saxon medals range from 1486 and on into the sixteenth century, representing many of the finest and rarest works of medallic art relating to the Ernestine line, from John the Wise to John Frederic the Magnanimous, the latter an ancestor of King Edward of England. Quite a number of the Saxon medals were designed by Lucas Kranach, the famous Saxon Court painter.

Several of the rarest Italian medals relate to the famous Malatesta family of Rimini, the Italian branch of the Guelphs, and date from 1446 to 1450. All are in a fine state of preservation. One of these bears the bust of Sigimundis Pandulfus Malatesta, and his title of General of the Army of the Pope, dated 1446. Another shows a representation of the Church of St. Francis of Rimini.

TRIMMED FAT MAN BETTER.

Patient from Whom 100 Pounds Were Cut Will Recover.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., May 10.—Andrew Bazzle, who has just had 100 pounds of his 400-pound weight trimmed off, is doing well. He is 55 years of age, and was the heaviest man in the Valley of Virginia before Dr. Stuart McGuire of St. Luke's Hospital performed a successful operation on him, in which 100 pounds of superfluous flesh were removed.

Bazzle will be able to return to his home, in Rockingham County, in a few days. The cutting away of the superfluous flesh involved a great deal of delicate surgical work. Bazzle stood the operation well, and is now on the high road to recovery. His weight has been reduced to approximately 300 pounds.

Bazzle is married and has a large family. He states that his weight had begun to tire him so much that he was unable to attend to his daily duties. He concluded that he would not try to stand it another Summer. After consultation with physicians he submitted to the operation. He says that his only fear now is that his wife will be unable to recognize him when he returns home.

TO AID SOUTHERN EDUCATION.

Co-operative Association Plans Movement for Poor Whites There.

A meeting of the Co-operative Educational Association was held last night at the Hotel St. Andrew, in this city, in the interest of Southern education. The meeting was opened by Miss M. Relf Hofer of Teachers' College. Miss Hofer outlined the purpose of the society, which concerns itself especially with promotion of adult schools in the mountain regions of the South. It is planned to interest educational clubs this Summer in the projects of the association, so as to lay the foundation for a mass meeting at Cooper Union in the Fall.

Prof. P. P. Claxton of the University of Tennessee, Prof. C. Sprague Smith of Teachers' College of New York, and Prof. Suedder, also of the latter institution, were the speakers at last night's meeting.

Prof. Claxton told of conditions in the South and described the difference between the real mountain regions and those of hearsay.

According to Prof. Claxton, the destitution prevailing among the "poor whites" needs but the elimination of ignorance entirely to disappear.

The establishment of schools that will awaken the Southern mountaineer to the fact that wealth in abundance lies ready to his hand is the object of the association.

JAPS IMITATE OUR GOODS.

American Merchants Trading in Japan Complain of Spurious Trade Marks.

American merchants dealing with Japan complain bitterly of the manner in which the Japanese manufacturers counterfeit their trade marks and put spurious imitations on the Japanese markets.

No redress can be obtained in the Japanese court of justice by a foreigner against a native in commercial matters, it is declared. Printed reports to hand from Yokohama show two examples of the injury sustained by foreign merchants at the hands of the Japanese.

Two firms, James Buchanan & Sons, Scotch whisky distillers, and Carlowitz & Co., wine merchants, brought action in court against a Japanese manufacturer and dealer in Osaka. Although the defendant admitted that he had counterfeited the labels and trademarks of the plaintiffs and made the liquors in Osaka, the Japanese Judge acquitted him on the ground that he did not think the case serious enough to convict the defendant.

Osaka is the commercial metropolis of Japan, where all kinds of foreign liquors, preserves, including jams, pickles, sauces, &c., are turned out by the ton and consumed in innocence by the tourists who in season fill the hotels which are owned and operated by Japanese.

FIGHT IN FRONT OF ANSONIA.

Alleged Ogler Breaks His Cane Over Accuser's Head and Is Arrested.

Charged with assault upon James T. Smith of 269 West Seventy-third Street, at 2 o'clock yesterday morning in front of the Hotel Ansonia, a man described as Erick Maurer of 232 West Seventy-fifth Street, who said he was connected with a well-known Wall Street banking firm, was discharged by Magistrate Breen in the West Side Court later in the morning, upon the failure of Mr. Smith to appear to make a complaint.

Maurer was arrested yesterday morning by Special Policeman Keindrigen.

"Mr. Smith, with his wife and daughter, was passing the Ansonia," the policeman said, "when suddenly he turned upon Maurer, who was just behind him, and accused him of ogling Mrs. Smith at Healy's. The Smiths had just dined at Healy's. Mr. Maurer denied that he had tried to flirt with Mrs. Smith, and a quarrel started. Some one struck Maurer from behind and knocked him down. As soon as he got to his feet he broke his cane over Mr. Smith's head, thinking, I suppose, Mr. Smith had knocked him down."

As Mr. Smith failed to appear to tell his story the Magistrate dismissed the complaint.

FILIPINOS WANT IRRIGATION.

Urge the Government to Come to Relief of Suffering Agriculture.

MANILA, May 10.—The Government is urged by the Filipinos to float a loan for the purpose of installing an extensive system of irrigation. The islands must purchase 10,000,000 pesos' worth of foreign rice this year, making a total purchase during the last ten years of 100,000,000 pesos' worth. It is believed that irrigation would restore the crops.

Disarming of the Basilan Moros is progressing without serious trouble. The Lanao districts are quiet. The trouble against which the troops were recently operating was specific, and neither general nor serious. Major Gen. Weston, who has returned to Manila from an inspection of the entire district, reports that conditions are quieter than usual. He pronounces the recent operations to have been police rather than military.

Officers and enlisted men of the army are rejoicing over the passage of the Army Pay bill. The feeling is of gratefulness and appreciation.

CARDINAL AGAIN IN CATHEDRAL PULPIT

Primate of Ireland Decides to Go West After Seeing Niagara Falls.

THE ARCHBISHOP'S THANKS

Letter Sent to All the Churches Expressing Gratitude to Those Who Helped Make Anniversary a Success.

Cardinal Logue preached yesterday morning in St. Patrick's Cathedral at the solemn high mass at 11:30 o'clock. The celebrant of the mass was the Rev. W. B. Martin, with the Rev. R. O. Hughes as deacon and the Rev. B. T. McQuade as sub-deacon. The master of ceremonies was the Rev. John J. Byrne and the assistant master of ceremonies the Rev. John Laffen. The Cardinal took as his text the passage from the sixty-seventh psalm, "God Is Wonderful in His Saints," and preached particularly about St. Joseph, whose feast day it was.

"The life of the Saint," Cardinal Logue said, "illustrated especially the great virtues of humility, obedience, and charity. Joseph was humble. He never complained of his lot in life. He toiled as a carpenter, and in all the Scriptures there is no mention of his speaking at all. He must have spoken to people about him, but his humility, never thrusting himself forward, but going along in a plain, humble manner, showed him possessed of this great virtue.

"Joseph was charitable, and he was obedient, also," said the Cardinal, and then he paused to note that disobedience is one of the greatest faults of the age; "disobedience to those spiritually over us, disobedience to those legally over us will result in disaster, both spiritual and temporal."

Cardinal Logue will leave New York on the Empire State express to-morrow morning, and will make the first stop in his American tour at Rochester, where he will spend Wednesday. From that city he will go to Buffalo, spending Thursday there. On Friday he will visit Niagara Falls, and from there he will go to Montreal.

The Cardinal is enjoying his American trip so much that his plan of a week ago to return to Ireland after a visit to Washington and President Roosevelt has been changed. He now expects to extend his trip to Chicago and other Western cities, although he has not made any definite plans as yet.

In all the Catholic churches of the archdiocese yesterday a letter was read from the Archbishop, thanking the clergy, the press, and the laity for their co-operation in the recent centenary celebration. Here is the text of the letter:

> Archbishop's House, 452 Madison Avenue,
> New York, May 5, 1908.
>
> Reverend Dear Father: The celebration of the centenary of the erection of the See of New York has passed into history, to be ever memorable as an epoch-making event in the progress of the Church in the United States. The occasion gave birth to an enthusiastic manifestation of inspiring faith combined with ardent patriotism that our country has rarely, if ever, witnessed.
>
> Every feature of the centennial festivities was carried out with perfect detail and complete success, which left nothing to be desired from the opening day of general thanksgiving in all the churches to the closing procession on Saturday afternoon. For all this we have especially to thank our Heavenly Father, the Giver of all good gifts, and, at the same time, we desire to express our appreciation for the efficient services of the right reverend clergy and our devoted laity. The committee in charge of the various divisions of the work of preparation labored with zeal, intelligence, and success, for which we wish to make public acknowledgment.
>
> It was the verdict of the visiting prelates from far and near that nothing was wanting to bring before the world the best the Church has to show of the power and beauty of her organization. It has elicited the admiration of his Eminence, the Cardinal Primate of All Ireland, who says that he will carry back to the Isle of Saints memories that will never die, and inspirations from which all might find much to learn.
>
> We cannot overlook the great courtesy and careful attention extended by the entire press in recording the different phases of the centenary celebration.
>
> The city authorities, to whom we are much indebted for their willing co-operation and efficiency in maintaining such splendid order, deserve our warmest thanks.
>
> God grant that the generation which will have come and gone before another century has dawned may be found worthy of their forefathers. This is the prayer of yours very gratefully in Christ,
>
> JOHN, Archbishop of New York.

The Rev. Luke Evers, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, in Duane Street, where many newspaper men attend the early morning masses, thanked the newspapers for their treatment of the event. Father Evers was a member of the Press Committee.

Cardinal Logue gave the Pope's blessing and preached to 2,500 persons, who filled the Carmelite Catholic Church, in Twenty-eighth Street, near First Avenue, last night. He also gave the benediction.

There were such crowds at the church that Capt. Byrnes of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station had reserves in and about the church. Cardinal Logue, who was assisted by Father Charles Gavin and by the Rev. Charles Naffey, was introduced by Father Joseph McCabe. The Cardinal spoke on good Catholics and the faith they have in their religion. He warmly commended the Catholics here for their faith.

The priests of this church, which is of the Irish order, are the chaplains of Bellevue Hospital.

Cardinal Logue has promised to attend the euchre to be given at the Waldorf-Astoria in aid of the Catholic Summer school at Plattsburg, N. Y. The euchre is set for next Friday night, May 15.

PARSON PRAISES CATHOLICS.

Hackensack Pastor Says They Teach Reverence for Authority.

The Rev. Dr. Herman Vanderwort of the First Reformed Church in Hackensack praised Cardinal Gibbons and Roman Catholics in general last evening in a sermon on the relationship of "Atheism and Anarchy." Among other things he said:

"Religion is a national necessity. No Government ever tried to live without it. Unless there be somewhere a mightier ruler and a mighty heart there is anarchy let loose in the universe. Anarchy stands for no God, no Government, no home.

"Of all countries under the sun, anarchy has less cause to exist here than anywhere else. Cardinal Gibbons said at the Catholic celebration in New York last week that Anarchists ought to give thanks to this country for letting them come here, for here they can enjoy more religious and personal liberty than anywhere else, and under our flag every one has the right to make somebody out of himself.

"No country is free from the threat of anarchy, be it of the low and brutal kind or of the high, defying corporation kind. Every country has a batch of Anarchists, be they those who ride roughshod over existing laws to fill their own pockets or they who kill existing rulers or Presidents. America is in danger of both kinds.

"I thank God for our Catholic friends, who teach us reverence for constituted authority and willing obedience to the law."

CATHOLIC LEGION CONVENTION

Twenty-seventh Annual Meeting to Open in Brooklyn To-morrow.

All the plans for the twenty-seventh annual convention of the Supreme Council of the Catholic Benevolent Legion of the United States have been completed, and the first session will be held in Brooklyn to-morrow morning, when a solemn high mass will be sung at 10 o'clock in the new Church of Our Lady of Mercy, in Schermerhorn Street, between Bond and Hoyt Streets.

The convention will open after the mass. The Catholic Benevolent Legion was organized in Brooklyn in 1881, and has branches all through New York and the East and the West, including the District of Columbia. It is established in twenty-five States and Territories.

To-morrow night there will be a dinner. The deliberations of the Supreme Council will be completed on Wednesday.

TO DEBATE THE OPEN PULPIT.

Long Island Episcopalian Convention Expected to Act on New Canon.

It is expected that there will be some lively discussion over the "open pulpit" question in the Episcopal Church when the annual convention of the Diocese of Long Island opens at Garden City to-morrow morning, to continue two days.

Bishop Frederick Burgess will preside, and the annual sermon will be preached to-morrow morning by the Rev. Dr. C. F. J. Wrigley. Bishop Burgess will deliver his annual address to-morrow afternoon, and both the clerical and lay delegates are looking for some expression on race track gambling and the question of the "open pulpit" which has caused so much discussion in the Church since the amendment to Canon 19 by the General Convention at Richmond, Va.

Already a number of Episcopal clergymen have announced their intention of leaving the Episcopal Church and asking for orders in the Roman Catholic Church, the High Churchmen being particularly opposed to the carrying out of the amendment which permits others than regularly ordained Episcopal clergymen to enter the pulpit and chancel.

THE ETHICAL SOCIETY IS 32.

Dr. Adler Tells Its Members About His Mission to Germany.

Dr. Felix Adler, recently appointed Roosevelt Professor at Berlin University, in a farewell address to the Society for Ethical Culture yesterday morning at Carnegie Hall outlined the purposes for which he had been sent to Germany.

"I am going to tell the Germans," he said, "that despite the excesses, moral enormities, and excrescences of our country, this land is great and glorious and full of promise. It is my mission also to tell them that in America the naked power of the individual goes furthest and has greatest scope. They will learn that from this country comes a movement for the improvement and regeneration of the human race.

"The bonds of amity between the two countries will be strengthened and all causes of friction should be removed."

Yesterday was the thirty-second anniversary of the founding of the society, and Dr. Adler reviewed the progress of the ethical movement.

CHURCH WORKERS' COMMONS.

A Year's Labor by Laymen Observed by a Special Service.

The close of the season's work of the Church Workers' Commons, which is a group of classes intended to fit laymen for the reading of lessons, the management of missions, and the raising of money for charitable objects, and the management of Sunday schools, was observed with a special service in Christ Church, Broadway and Seventy-first Street, last night. The classes have been meeting several nights a week in Christ Church and in the Bronx Church House, at 171st Street and Crotona Park. Twenty men and twenty-eight women have been taking the courses.

The Rev. Dr. George F. Nelson, archdeacon of New York, told of the broad field that a metropolitan city presented to the layman's activity. The Rev. George Alexander Strong, rector of Christ Church, said that there had been a new spirit in the parish since the commencement of the classes, a part of which, at least, he attributed to the existence of the Church Workers' Commons. There were also talks by students who had taken the courses.

The work will be contiued another year. The present plan is to have the teachers both laymen and clergymen. In addition to the classes laymen participated in the conduct of the evening service at Christ Church.

QUIZ PARSON ON SOCIALISM.

"Open Pew" Meetings Show a Growing Interest in the Subject.

The Rev. James M. Farr, pastor of Christ Presbyterian Church, in West Thirty-sixth Street, who instituted the "open-pew" meetings, said last night at the close of the sermon that in nearly every instance since the new series of services began the questions asked had a bearing on Socialism. The minister added that he was not at all opposed to this turn the inquiries had taken, as he wanted to encourage a free discussion of the matters which rested on the minds of the people. For that reason the service next Sunday evening would be given over to a discussion of Socialism.

The Rev. Dr. George William Knox, Acting President of the Union Theological Seminary, preached last night on "Faith," and so well did the distinguished theologian keep within the bounds of religious discussion that he left no opening for socialistic questions. Only one inquiry bearing on Socialism was begun, and the minister turned that into other channels. Dr. Knox said after the sermon that he was not a Socialist and he was not anxious to have socialistic questions fired at him.

Several questions were asked, however, on theology and practical religion. One was: "Why the ministers of this country do not do more to get the people to believe in religion?"

Dr. Knox replied that primarily the ministers did not exist to make the people believe in religion, but because people did so believe. People, whether they were Christians, or believed in some other creed, whether they lived in America, Asia, Europe, or Africa, liked to worship in a body, and to do so a leader was necessary, and thus came into being the minister.

CENSURE FOR SENATOR BURR.

Methodists Take Him to Task for Voting Against Anti-Gambling Bills.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., May 10.—A mass meeting in opposition to race-track gambling was held here this afternoon in the Methodist Episcopal Church. George S. Emory was Chairman of the meeting, and the speakers were O. Miller, District Secretary of the International Reform Bureau; William J. Youngs, and Assemblyman William G. Miller.

The speakers were in favor of united action for the anti-race-track movement. Toward the end the meeting warmed up considerably when hints were made regarding Senator Carl S. Burr's failure to support the anti-race-track movement.

The session resulted in the adoption of a resolution indorsing the action of Gov. Hughes. Censure of Senator Burr is involved in a paragraph regretting that he failed to support the bills. It calls on him also to reconsider his former vote on the Agnew-Hart bills.

THE CHURCH AND LABOR.

Dr. William B. Guthrie Says the Labor Problem Is the Uppermost Question.

Dr. William B. Guthrie of the College of the City of New York delivered an address last night in the Harlem Presbyterian Church on the "Religious Import of the Modern Labor Problem." Dr. Guthrie said:

"We live in an electrical age, but with all this progress we must take heed lest the Nation go down as did nations of old. There is no problem to-day greater than the labor problem. These great bodies of laboring men, organized and unorganized, are gradually arousing a sentiment which in time will grow into a cult, almost a religion, and if the Church and religion are to have their part in this movement the Church must become a more universal influence in these organizations."

The speaker said that the industrial conditions of the present time prevented the laboring man from going to church, and he declared that after working for sixty hours all the week the man was too exhausted to go to church on Sunday. He also said that many men had to work on Sunday. He favored a law prohibiting Sunday labor absolutely. He declared if the laboring man would not or could not go to the church, the church must go to the laboring man.

PULPIT DECLINING, DR. AKED ASSERTS

Tells His Parishioners That It Is Not in Touch with the Times.

SAYS CHURCH NEEDS MONEY

Clergyman Appeals for More Generous Support for It—Rockefeller in the Audience.

The Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aked, preaching in the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church yesterday morning, deplored the decline of church attendance, and declared that the Church is not in touch with the times. This, he said, was worldwide. His appeal for more support of every kind, financial included, was heard by John D. Rockefeller, Mrs. Rockefeller, and John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Dr. Aked's subject was "The Alleged Decay of Christianity in New York City," and he took for his text Matthew xvi., 3, "Can ye not discern the signs of the times?" In part he said:

"When I first came to this great City of New York, the centre of empire, its broad avenues thronged with eager, strenuous crowds, pulsating with energy and hope, I saw the buoyancy of the American people. I learned their character of hope and endeavor and electric activity.

"Now I want to learn the signs of the times. If you will show them to me I shall know them. It is for me to observe, as it is for you to indicate. What is the condition of Christianity in New York? When I interview my parishioners, and they are among the most representative in the city, I find the spirit of religious depression very unlike the spirit of abounding enterprise in business, in manufacturing, in engineering, and construction.

"We have heard of the great advance made by the Roman Church in America. I stand on the broadest grounds of toleration, but I should not be content if what we have lost had gone to the Roman Church. But has it? Give the Roman Catholics in America all they claim—twelve millions. We still find that there have immigrated into America no less than 15,000,000 Roman Catholics. So that the Roman Church has lost instead of gaining from us.

Where the Church Loses.

"Take our own denomination. The increase in the Baptists of America has only been equal to one-fourth of the birth rate among us, proving that three out of four of our young people fell away from us.

"Let us look at this great City of New York. Fifty years ago there were over 400 churches. Now there are 1,200. But the population has increased much faster. If the churches had increased in proportion we should now have 2,000 instead of 1,200. Fifty years ago there was one church in New York for each 2,200. Now there is but one church for 3,100.

"The decline of Christianity is universal. In England, in France, in Spain, in Italy, and in Germany we hear the same cry.

"Only lately I was talking to an English clergyman. He told me that not merely was there a great falling off in churchgoers in England, but that the class of people who frequented churches were becoming inferior.

"What a great field is here in Fifth Avenue for us, in the centre of empire! Yet there are one million in this city who are not Jews, nor Roman Catholics, nor Mohammedans, and who must be Protestants.

"But this million is entirely unchurched. It is not classed in any of those Protestant denominations to which it should belong. What use is a church without a congregation?

"The spirit of the age has gone ahead, but we have made no progress in the old formulas, the old theology, the old sanction. We are afraid to speak of religion. When we do so we speak with bated breath, apologetically.

An Age of Ambition.

"This is an age of great schemes, of great ambition. But what have we to do for Christ? What have we done? We are content to go on the same old way, unsuited to the times. We want to appeal to the young men. We want to appeal to a higher class and in a higher way. We want preachers of the highest type—spiritual and prophetic. I am not speaking of myself, but though there may be exceptions—there may be foolish men, even bad ones, for a time in the pulpit—spiritually you can rise no higher than the level of the pulpit.

"We want more teachers, more schools, more churches and larger ones, to hold the 40,000 Baptists of this city. We require a larger building here for our congregation—there is not elbow room for all who come here.

"But when we make an appeal we are met by a spirit of commercialism, of moneymaking. We have not yet learned to adapt the Christian idea to our own times.

"Is Christianity played out?" asked the clergyman, quoting a recent article in a current magazine. "What are the causes?

"First, I would say that the pulpit is out of touch with the times. Everything has progressed except Christianity. Many thinking and progressive young men and women have been driven from the Church by the stupidity of the preachers. The pulpit is out of touch with the times. Compelled to a life of grinding poverty, treading always the same old paths of a thousand years, hidebound and restricted in our actions, we have become the laughing stock parrots of dead Church cries instead of preachers of the living Christ."

Dr. Aked then referred to the cry of the colleges for more clerical students, and quoted figures to show the serious falling off among Baptists, Methodists, and Presbyterians for the ministry.

More Money Needed.

"We want more money, more buildings, more young men to train for the ministry. Look at the vast opportunities, with every race coming to our shores. I know an Italian Baptist minister. I know none fitter for the mission than he. He has labored for twenty-seven years in Rome, Naples, Genoa, and other cities. We want funds to erect an Italian mission. Here in New York is the place to win Italy to Christ. Here we have Italian Anarchists and infidels and atheists crowding to our shores.

"Give us a chance. Give us opportunities like other men—like men in business or in railroads, or in engineering, or in science, or in journalism. We have ambitions. We have hopes and we are condemned to poverty. Give us a chance for our energies, a chance to do something for Christ—give us money."

CHARGES AGAINST BISHOPS.

The Rev. George Cooke Alleges Maladministration in Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 10.—Charges of maladministration have been preferred against Bishop Daniel A. Goodsell of Boston, Bishop David H. Moore of Portland, Ore., Bishop Joseph F. Berry of Buffalo, and Bishop William F. McDowell of Chicago, all Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the General Conference of which is now in session in this city. Bishop Goodsell has two charges preferred against him. The charges preferred against the four Bishops are made by the Rev. George A. Cooke of New York.

The second charge of maladministration against Bishop Goodsell of Boston is preferred by the Rev. C. J. Fowler of Newton Centre, Mass. The charge against Bishop Moore grows out of the charges recently preferred against Chancellor James R. Day of the Syracuse University, which were made by the Rev. Mr. Cooke, but which were dismissed by Bishop Moore.

The charges against Bishops McDowell, Berry, and Goodsell by the Rev. Mr. Cooke are the outcome of rulings concerning the charges of heresy against the Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley of New York and Prof. Borden P. Bowne of Boston University.

The alleged maladministration of the four Bishops is said to lie in the fact that they did not rule correctly when charges against the men were laid before them.

The feature of to-day for the delegates to the quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church was a big temperance meeting at the Lyric, at which Gov. Frank Hanly of Indiana was the principal speaker. The Governor said that what the Methodists of the present day needed was intensity. His judgment was that they were not so spiritual as in years gone by, and he declared that had they the spiritual intensity that marked the early days of the church the whole country would become converted in less than a year.

At a labor memorial day meeting held in the opera house Gov. Hoch of Kansas and Bishop John W. Hamilton of San Francisco were the leading speakers.

Bishops and prominent delegates to the conference preached from the pulpits of a large number of churches of various Protestant denominations to-day and to-night.

PEACE TALK BY FAIRBANKS.

Thinks Our Army and Navy Should Not Be Too Big.

CHICAGO, May 10.—Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks to-day attended the dedication of St. Stanislaus Polish Roman Catholic Parochial School, the largest institution of its kind in the United States. It will accommodate 4,500 pupils.

In the evening Mr. Fairbanks was the principal speaker at a banquet commemorating the dedication.

"We hear much of the need of a large navy and a large army. We all agree that we should provide adequately for the National defense. The money necessary to this end should be freely expended; beyond our reasonable needs we should not go. Our National tranquillity is not menaced from without, nor is our domestic peace threatened from within.

"I would rather see the people spend their money in building up great schools, colleges and universities, churches and cathedrals, than see them spend it in unduly expanding armies and navies.

"I have faith to believe that Christian civilization is laying securely the foundations of domestic and international tranquillity and that an appeal to the reason among men will more and more render less necessary an appeal to the sword. We must not introduce into our American civilization the pomp and pageantry of European military and naval establishments."

BAPTISTS PLAN RIVAL TO CHINESE TEMPLE

Ministers Will Meet This Morning to Start a Movement for a $70,000 Structure.

PRESENT MISSION TOO SMALL

Protestants Aim to Provide Sunday School Rooms, Kindergartens, and a Roof Garden.

Following the announcement last week that big men in and out of Chinatown are raising $100,000 to build a combined Chinese club and Temple of Confucianism in Chinatown, there comes another statement that the prominent Baptist ministers of New York City have inaugurated a movement to raise $70,000 to build there a sort of combined Chinese club and Baptist Temple.

In the one house every effort will be made to get the Chinamen, particularly the young men and women, interested in a revival of Confucianism as a religion and a source of cultivation; in the other all the forces of the modern church will be brought to bear to win over and to hold the Chinese population to Protestantism.

Both the Confucian and Baptist Temples are as yet only hopes, dreams, which may or may not be realized. Both sides are working hard. Last week Minister Wu, the Chinese Ambassador at Washington, came to New York to speak in favor of the Confucian project. This morning at 11 o'clock some 150 Baptist ministers will meet in the mission house at 17 Doyers Street to lay out a campaign for the raising of the $70,000, which the Baptists think will be enough for their temple.

Dr. R. S. MacArthur of the Calvary Baptist Church said yesterday that the Baptists had not taken pattern from the Chinese Confucianists down in Chinatown. "We thought of our building long before this work for the Confucian Temple was thought of," he said.

"For a number of years good work has been done in Chinatown by Fung Y. Mow, Superintendent of the Morning Star Mission at 17 Doyers Street. He has found that the quarters there and his general working machinery are entirely inadequate.

"For example, the present mission is on the third floor of a building. It is so situated that it was not thought advisable to have any women teachers there, and we have contented ourselves with men teachers. Besides, the place is too small, too inconspicuous.

"It has been suggested that a plot of ground be bought on Mott Street, and upon that a modern five or six story building be erected. Upon the ground floor there might be a kindergarten, Sunday school room, and night school room. The first floor would most likely be given up to the Young Men's Christian Association. The three floors above, it is hoped, could be rented to young Chinamen. Once the building is erected it could be made self-supporting, we believe.

"It has been planned to have a roof garden for the exclusive recreation of Chinese women and children. There are eighty married Chinese women and over 1,000 children in Chinatown now.

"We have every reason to hope for the success of the movement."

It is believed that 150 Baptists from New York City and within a radius of twenty miles of it will attend the conference this morning at 11 o'clock. Among those who are expected are the Rev. Dr. Aked of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, Dr. MacArthur of the Calvary Baptist Church, and the Rev. Dr. Hughes, father of the Governor.

The proposed Confucian temple, in its plans, is laid out a good deal like the prospective Baptist Temple. It is also to have lecture rooms, a gymnasium, an auditorium, and the means of entertaining Chinese men and women and children. Both temples are to be laid out somewhat on the order of the modern Y. M. C. A. homes.

The Confucian supporters, however, have a little the start of the Baptists, although it may be true that the Baptists thought of the plan first. The Baptists have no money pledged yet; to-day's conference is to see about getting some pledges. The Confucianists have obtained almost enough pledges from the merchants of Chinatown to cover the cost of their temple, and no Chinese merchant ever goes back on his word.

HOMEOPATHS TO MEET.

Big Gathering This Week of Alumni at Quarter-Centennial.

Many hundred homeopathic physicians from all parts of the country will gather in this city this week for the annual meeting of the Alumni Association of the New York Homeopathic Medical College and Hospital, in conjunction with the commencement exercises of the college.

The combined exercises will be held on Thursday. The Alumni Association celebrates its quarter-centennial this year, and on that account a larger gathering of members is expected than has ever attended these meetings. There will be clinics on Ward's Island, a luncheon, commencement exercises, and a business meeting at the college in East Sixty-third Street and Avenue A, and a dinner in the evening at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Dr. W. T. Helmuth of this city is President of the association, and Dr. J. C. Otis of Poughkeepsie, First Vice President.

Certified Milk on Lackawanna Trains

Another Lackawanna innovation, and one that will be appreciated by every traveler, is the introduction of the famous Quarry Farm Certified Milk on the Dining and Buffet Cars of Lackawanna trains. Quarry Farm Milk will not only be served on the Dining Cars, but will be sold in half-pint bottles to passengers in the day coaches.

Quarry Farm Certified Milk is what its name implies. Each bottle bears the certificate of the Milk Commission of the Elmira Academy of Medicine of Elmira, N. Y., who certify that the milk has been produced and bottled under the strictest sanitary conditions; and that it is absolutely pure. The guarantee appears on a little white cardboard cap which serves as a cork. Over this is a layer of paraffin wax, which hermetically seals the bottle. When you get Quarry Farm Certified Milk you know that it reaches you just as it was bottled.

The comfort and convenience of its patrons is the first thought on the Road of Anthracite. High backed seats in the day coaches; meals a la carte to suit the individual taste; luxurious new Pullmans; Observation Cars; courteous attendance; these are some of the features that make the trip between New York and Buffalo, over the Scenic Railroad of the East—not a journey, but an outing.

A folder giving particulars of route, time of through trains and connections, and full information, will be sent on request. Call on or write to Ticket Agents at

TWO SORTS OF FINANCE.

With good faith President ROOSEVELT declared, in a manner which almost amounted to a promise, that Congress would enact currency reform forthwith after its assembling, then near at hand. It is left to conjecture whether or not this declaration could have been redeemed if the President had mastered the subject, and given it the attention it deserved. Instead he has dragged so many herring across the currency trail that he must share the responsibility for the fact that adjournment is near and that nothing has been done which is worthy of respect. We doubt that Senator ALDRICH himself would reintroduce the bill to which he lent his name, so thoroughly has it been rejected by the country. Representative VREELAND'S proposals were no better adapted to do him credit, or to cure our financial troubles, and have been shelved with his own consent. The present status is that a committee, controlled by those whose ideas have been condemned seriatim, has been appointed to "perfect" a bill for the acceptance of the majority.

This comes pretty close to reducing legislation to a farce. After having struggled with the subject five months the hapless committee is instructed to "perfect" a bill in five days. When the bill is produced we shall learn the practical manner in which currency is to be issued through Clearing House associations upon the security of commercial paper. If that is so simple a matter why was it that that well-informed currency reformer, Representative FOWLER, did not put it in his bill? He put in almost everything else, and the committee, which does not include him in its membership, has borrowed almost all of his ideas—but the Clearing House idea was not there. Why not? Is it possible that Mr. FOWLER had doubts regarding the status of Clearing Houses under either Federal or State law? Can it be true that the function of clearing checks is so essentially different from that of doing a banking business that the wisdom or feasibility of combining the two is not apparent? Doubtless Clearing Houses—and especially New York's—have acquitted themselves admirably under conditions so compelling that business was conducted by unanimous consent, as it were. But the idea of establishing a permanent system of Clearing House currency—something for every man's pocketbook, instead of for use between banks in their own business—must be regarded as formless and void, until the committee has perfected its bill.

This subject is made difficult because it is treated not scientifically, but with a regard for vested interests and politics. The Czar is said to have laid down a route for a railway by the simple process of drawing a line with a ruler on a map. There is knowledge enough to produce in like direct fashion an American currency system, but Congress has ruled out all such advice as impractical, and is giving a fine example of practicality on its own account. Meanwhile Mr. WARBURG, who has some warrant to speak, has taken the trouble to make suggestions along the line of scientific finance, which is something different from either practical politics or political finance. It is not to be supposed that it is impossible for anybody to dissent from Mr. WARBURG'S declaration of principles, since such subjects are not matter of geometrical demonstration, but it is useful to offer a standard by which the performance of Congress through the recent weeks may be judged. The only creditable thing about the incident is the demonstration that the people are wiser than Congress, and that such strides have been made that it is impossible now to enact what Senator ALDRICH and Speaker CANNON told us to swallow, like children taking a dose.

WORDS OF JUSTICE.

We note with especial pleasure an article in The News Leader of Richmond concerning what is generally known as the "Ogden Movement." Replying to some rash and harsh criticism of Mr. ROBERT C. OGDEN and his associates this independent and able journal says:

> About once a year Mr. OGDEN and his friends come to the South to meet our people, to hold conferences, to observe how their money is used, to learn how they can most usefully apply more money for the education of negroes and whites who, without their aid, would grow up uneducated. Mr. OGDEN has asked no return, no favors, and no privileges for the money he sends or causes to be sent to aid us in our heavy task. He assumes no authority, does not in any way interfere with our affairs, bears himself modestly, kindly, and unobtrusively. His educational movement for the South has been active now some fourteen or fifteen years. Judging by his record through that time—and all men have the right to be judged by their acts—he is moved by no purpose but that of pure and broadminded philanthropy. Certainly he never has made a dollar out of the South, and he has poured his money into this section freely.

This sincere and manly utterance reflects, we are persuaded, the real sentiment of intelligent men in the South who are informed as to the facts; it is a deserved recognition of substantial and true service to a good cause and is as creditable to its giver as to its recipient.

NEW YORK.

The Mayors of various lesser American cities who were asked by The World to contribute their opinions of New York to its twenty-fifth anniversary number showed a perfectly commendable inclination to dwell on the merits of their own municipalities at the expense of this metropolis. Chicago, we learn, has more public spirit than New York, Detroit has no Tammany, Cincinnati avoids ostentatious display, St. Paul is a greater city, relatively; Minneapolis has better sanitary conditions and regulations, Philadelphia has not so many "self-appointed 'boosters'" as we have, while Buffalo is a "happy home."

All these things are doubtless true. The thriving towns we have named are excellent dwelling places for Chicagoans, Detroiters, St. Paulists, Minneapolitans, Philadelphians, and Buffalonians. Like Mayor MCCLELLAN, we take no exception to these friendly criticisms of our city. Yet New York, under the clear skies and in the bright sunshine of yesterday, when from THE TIMES'S tower the view was unobscured northward to the green hills of Westchester and the bend in the Hudson, westward to the Ramapo Hills and Orange Mountains, and southward across the splendid bay to the Atlantic Highlands; with its varied and inspiring architecture, its parks and spires, its avenues filled with well-dressed cheerful crowds, seemed a good place for any aspiring human being to be a part of. This town has its points.

THE EMPLOYERS' SIDE.

We referred the other day to the wrong done to the youth of the community in providing schooling which is not what most of them need, and which the great body of them cannot afford to take, while failing to provide them with the industrial training which would be most useful to the great body of them, and which they could take with advantage in the time they are able to attend the public schools. We wish now to call attention to the testimony of a business man, an expert in this question, to the fact that the employers of labor, as well as the great mass of workingmen, would derive great and lasting profit from the change in this system which we advocate.

At the recent meeting of the National Metal Trades Association, Mr. FRED A. GEIER, President of the Cincinnati Milling Machine Company, delivered an address, which is published in The American Machinist, on "The results obtained by co-operation between manufacturers and the University of Cincinnati as seen through the eyes of a manufacturer." The co-operation referred to is one of the methods now being tried to solve a problem of tremendous National importance, which Mr. GEIER stated in the following emphatic words:

> Under the present system of manufacturing we are practically using up our supply of labor. We have not paid any attention at all to finding a new source of supply, nor have we given any thought to its proper training. Our very system of demanding production from the foreman who employs the men, eliminates the boy; but we, as manufacturers, are not living in the present day only, we will have to carry on our businesses to-morrow, and next year, and ten years from now, and it certainly would be wise on our part to make such effort as will enable us to recruit labor from new sources of supply and give careful heed to the cultivation of such sources of supply as we now have, to make it more efficient.

Mr. GEIER gave details of three specific experiments in training boys to industrial efficiency. One was taking six boys from the university into his own works. After two years the records show that they "yield a profit to the company," that they are "able to do the work as well, and in many cases in less time, than other men who have been in the shop for a longer period, and have had a longer practical training." The second experiment was with a school for apprentices organized in his shop with a teacher from outside, and with thirty-eight students attending two hours a week only. "The results that have been obtained thus far are exceedingly encouraging." The boys are "being trained to think, and acquiring the habit of careful, painstaking, thorough, and systematic work." We especially commend this statement to the teachers who, quite sincerely, infer that industrial training is one-sided and narrow. The third experiment is that of a trade school in Winona, Ind., devoted in part to foundry work. Last year it was put on a commercial basis, the most searching of tests, and was entirely successful. Purchasers reported that castings "were as good as they had ever used." One of the trustees makes the following statement:

> We agreed with the boys to divide the profits after all costs had been deducted, which netted them a very handsome income, some of the boys making as high as $12 a week. We find that a good, bright boy, with competent instructors, working seven hours per day, six days in a week, at actual foundry practice, acquires more knowledge in three months than the average apprentices in our foundry acquire in one year. There is no doubt in our minds now that a course of two years in our school at Indianapolis will turn out a finished molder.

According to these figures the benefit of practical and intelligent industrial training, to the pupil and to the employer alike, is five times as great in proportion to the expenditure of time and money as that from ordinary apprenticeship. Compared with the instruction which boys of the same age are able now to get from the usual high school teaching, the benefit is still greater.

Results on a far larger scale are cited by Mr. GEIER. Thirty years ago the German Commissioner to the Centennial Exposition in this country reported to BISMARCK that the German goods were "cheap and wretched." Since then the industrial training of German youth has advanced until in the Kingdom of Wuertemberg 55 per cent. of the boys are provided with such training, and in Germany at large education of that sort is fifty times as plentiful as it is in our country. One consequence may be traced to the fact that in the five years preceding 1905 Germany's sales of machinery and tools to the United States doubled and American sales to Germany fell off two-thirds.

There is another and very important phase of this question. Mr. GEIER believes that wages will go higher and hours will be shortened. But also he believes that > through industrial education we can in time so improve the quality and efficiency of our men as to bring about that intelligent co-operation which will permit us to pay them the higher wages, permit us to give them the shorter working day, and yet permit us at the same time to hold the cost of the unit of product to where it is now, or still further reduce it.

He has reached the conclusion > that the manufacturers themselves must initiate this movement, that we must ourselves make the beginning, in whatever form it may be; in our shops first, then in the community, and with such success that the work must finally become a part of the public school system.

May the day not be distant.

VISCOUNT MORLEY.

JOHN MORLEY has never been an unpatriotic Englishman. His country has produced no more loyal or useful citizen. The efficient Secretary of State for India could never be fairly called a Little Englander, either, though even the Little Englander is fond of the storied institutions of his native land. Viscount MORLEY'S entrance into the House of Lords is a distinguished honor to the Peerage. He has earned his title, and if the Lords really smiled as he took his seat, clad in his scarlet and ermine, last week, the smiles could not have expressed their amazement at the apparition of a new Peer who had been a stern critic of the upper house.

The Peers have never been criticised more severely than by Peers. Because Viscount MORLEY once said the House of Lords, as a legislative body, should be mended or ended, is no reason why he should decline a title of nobility. By doing so he helps measurably to mend the upper house, which has latterly been taking on new life, with men like CROMER and CURZON taking part in political debates, and ROSEBERY reawakened. Moreover, there is no doubt that Viscount MORLEY will be as severe a critic of lax or antiquated methods in the House of Lords as ever Mr. MORLEY was.

THE IRISH IN IRELAND.

The news that the Irish are staying at home instead of seeking their fortunes in America, communicated by our Dublin correspondent to THE SUNDAY TIMES, is good news for Ireland. We doubt if it is as good news for the United States. All things considered, the Irish immigrant makes a good citizen. His taste for political preferment, and his tendency to embark in the retail liquor trade, have been somewhat exaggerated by the humorists.

The Irish immigrants who did so much to upbuild the country were of better stuff than a large proportion of the aliens now coming in from other countries. They had command of the language, to begin with, or an intelligible equivalent for it, and they took kindly to many useful trades, with both the disposition and the ability to develop. Once here, too, the Irishman has become a citizen, and retained his citizenship. He has talked much of the ancient glory and the beauty of his native land, but he has returned to it only for short visits. We are going to get along very well, by the exercise of good judgment, with the immigration from Southern Europe, but it takes longer to develop an ignorant stranger without our language or even the faintest idea of our customs and institutions into a useful citizen than it ever took to make a loyal American of Pat Molloy.

Signs of prosperity in Ireland are now helping to keep the Irish at home. New industries are taking root, and all the Irish peasants know now that the streets in this country are not paved with gold. Their friends here, too, because of the hard times, are not sending them passage money and fairy tales of good luck. It would be well for the Irish to set to work with a will to develop their own island. In that way they can do much toward solving the ancient Irish Question.

Representative PARSONS'S bill, favorably reported by Senator DEPEW from the Committee on Commerce, would control the dumping of obstructive or injurious deposits in waters adjacent to this city. It is a step in the right direction. The next step would be to compel the city to dispose of its refuse in some other way. Port Health Officer DOTY has long urged as safe and practicable the plan of incinerating garbage at the water's edge.

Hereafter the branders of distilled spirits, by direction of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, will mark as "Whisky" the article unmixed and aged by time. Whisky compounds will have burned in the barrel, not less than an inch high, the legend "Blended Whisky," and commercial alcohol and high wines made to resemble the genuine by artificial flavors, colorings, and extracts will be branded "Imitation Whisky." Of course, a highly developed industry will languish under this ruling, if enforced.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Reasoning Close and Clear.

A prettier piece of legal reasoning has not often been prepared by any court, at least for the disposition of any except great cases, than is that in which the Appellate Justices swept away the injunctions under which the proprietors of Sunday shows in this city have for months past been able to snap their fingers in the face of the police and to ignore the provisions of a statute as clear as any in the code.

To the superficial view it seemed proper enough that the police should not interfere with performances "given in such a manner as not to disturb the public peace or amount to a serious interruption of the repose and religious liberty of the community." As Justice INGRAHAM, with the assent of all his associates, points out, however, this imposes on the police the delicate task of deciding the exact meaning of these vague phrases, and, more than that, not only threatens them with punishment for contempt of court if their decision turn out to have been wrong, but it prohibits them from entering any place where they only suspect that the Sunday amusement law is being violated. This, in effect, inhibited any police action at all except after, as judges, they had convicted the offender—and made the conviction impossible.

"In other words," as the opinion dissolving these strange injunctions put it, "the enforcement of the criminal law is suspended by an order of a court of equity during a considerable portion of each Sunday." The conclusion is well worth printing again:

> If equity has jurisdiction to entertain such applications and determine whether a party is innocent or guilty of a crime, there would be no necessity for the existence of criminal courts. The question of what was or was not criminal could be determined in equity, and if an alleged criminal is entitled to the interposition of the court to protect him from an arrest, I can see no reason why the police would not also be entitled to its process to enjoin a person charged with a crime from interposing any objection to his punishment. It is perfectly clear that the whole question is one over which a court of equity has no jurisdiction.

Now, if this doesn't make trouble for the Sunday shows, it is hard to see what could. It apparently encourages the police to do exactly what they professed a great eagerness to do, not long ago, and it will doubtless start the strict observance people to exerting renewed pressure for the enforcement of the Sunday law in all its rigor. Justice O'GORMAN'S decision as to what constitutes a violation of that law still stands, and activity would seem to be safe and in order.

War Declared at a Late Day.

For many residents of Westchester County the campaign against election frauds which has been so enthusiastically started at White Plains will have even more of amusing than of solemn aspects. This is not because in any Westchesterian mind even slightly sophisticated and even fairly well informed of political conditions in the county doubt exists as to the need of such a campaign. The funny element in the case comes from the fact that those conditions are no worse now than they have been for many a year, and therefore the impulse comes to look deeper than the surface for the cause of the present activity, and to suspect that just possibly there is more to the war than a sincere and simple—especially simple—love of reform.

This, of course, is a cynical view of the White Plains situation, and cynical views of any situation are almost always unjust and otherwise wrong. Still, the people of Westchester have so long and so calmly allowed their elections to be run with accompaniments of the most open and naïve corruption, notably as regards the colored brother and the imported descendant of the Cæsars, that the reformers are more likely to be asked why they didn't get excited before than to be praised for their sudden activity.

The suburbs, in their politics, are extremely apt to be behind the age. Most of them are a little ahead of the Tweed era, but their methods are still crude enough, in many instances, to shock a Tammany ward leader, and Westchester County is not at all unfamiliar with the spectacle presented of a man who has confessed to the misappropriation of public funds and yet is triumphantly acquitted when, by some strange chance, he is subjected to trial. As for election day devices, the sandwich spread with a $2 bill has been only a topic for jocular remarks, and payment for a voter's "time," lost while he decides which ballot he will cast, is so common as to be held almost if not quite virtuous.

When it comes to proving any of these things difficulty arises, and the people who don't do them are usually too busy even to make the attempt. The commuter rarely takes part in suburban politics, and it must be confessed that when he does no marked improvement in quality is often to be noticed without the use of magnifying glasses. The local workers profit constantly by the widespread American delusion that public business requires no training, and can be performed well enough by men who toil daily and with more or less industry at something else. Official salaries are absurdly small, but in some mysterious way it seems possible to save much money from them, and—well, Westchester County certainly does need reforming, and if the White Plains warriors only do it they may be sure that nobody will laugh at them long.

ARMY MOBILIZATION PLANS.

War Department to Announce To-day the Dates for Troops' Gathering.

Arrangements have been completed for the Summer camps of the regular army and the militia, and to-day Acting Secretary of War Oliver will send orders to Gov. Hughes and the Governors of the other States interested, stating what time the various organizations are expected to report to the camps to which they have been assigned.

According to the orders the New York troops will be mobilized at Felts Mills, near Watertown, and remain in camp from June 15 to June 25. The State troops will consist of one regiment of infantry, two squadrons of cavalry, and a detachment of Signal Corps men. The camp will cover an area of seven by three miles, and will give room enough for active work in all branches of the military service.

During the period of the mobilization, which will comprise the entire Summer, there will be 10,000 troops in camp, at all times under command of Major Gen. Grant, who will have, in addition to the various State militia organizations, the following regular soldiers: Ten troops of cavalry, twenty-two companies of infantry, two batteries of light artillery, two companies of engineers, one Signal Corps company, and one Hospital Corps.

According to the programme arranged by Acting Secretary Oliver the regulars will be joined at intervals of two weeks each by State troops, which will take up the work with the regulars and be treated the same as under wartime conditions. While the New Yorkers are in the camp they will be accompanied by Massachusetts troops.

Other troops that will rendezvous at Felts Mills will come from New Hampshire, Vermont, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, and Maryland.

The other camps will be located at Chickamauga Park, Benjamin Harrison Post in Indiana, Fort Riley, Kan.; Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming; American Lake, Washington, and Atascadero, Cal.

WOMAN'S MENTALITY.

Another Card from the Humble Inquirer of Cambridge.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As I expected, my recent letter on the problem of the mentality of woman has enabled that sex to demonstrate, by the arguments it uses in its own defense the fact that it is brainless. The first of these (so-called) arguments is a quotation from the Bible, an appeal to tradition and sentiment, not to reason. It shows that its writer is innocent of brains; if she had possessed the commodity, why in so weighty a matter did she not use it to frame a reasonable argument?

The second argument is that, men being indolent creatures, the women have to work, and therefore must have brains. This shows a most lamentable lack of information in regard to the great majority of men, who work because of a profound fear of the women.

The third argument is that women must have brains because of the incomparable ingenuity with which they have for so long concealed the fact that they have none. This argument speaks for itself; I dare not comment on it. It is one of those marvelous productions of the things that woman seriously calls her mind; it passes man's understanding and contemplation of it is merely stupefying.

BUILDING YOUR OWN HOUSE.

Can Average Wage Earner Benefit by the Installment Plan?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some time ago you published a small article relative to the advisability of owning a house in preference to paying rent. Since it is obvious that the only way the average wage earner can purchase a house is by the installment method, I append to this letter a statement showing, as it seems to me—though possibly not to your readers—the result of purchasing a house by this method, said house having a valuation of $5,000:

STATEMENT.

Assume cost of lot and one-family house to be	$5,000
Assume cash payment of	1,000
Assume mortgage at 6 per cent of	$4,000
Payment on principal to be (per month)	25.00
Average interest on mortgage (per month)	10.00
	$35.00

Then payment on house would be completed in $\frac{4,000}{25\times12}$=13 years, (approximately.)

Extra expense due to ownership would be—
Loss of interest on $1,000 for one year	$35.00
Tax on assessed valuation, (say, $4,000 at 1.5)	60.00
Water tax	10.00
Extra carfares	40.00
Maintenance	55.00
Fuel	40.00
Extra expense per year	$240.00

$240 divided by 12=$20 per month expense.
$35 per month payment.
$55 per month total cost.

Assume purchaser would ordinarily pay rent of $27.50 per month:
$55.00—$27.50=$27.50 excess payment.

If, then, it takes thirteen years to pay principal, it would obviously take just twice this time, or twenty-six years, to derive any benefit from the ownership.

Is it worth while? E. M. B.

Here and Abroad.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of the subject of tipping, both in private houses and in hotels, the evil seems not to be confined to country houses in England. A friend who has just been visiting at a large country place near New York complained that she felt completely disconcerted at the retinue of servants and the baronial style of living. Since she was unable to tip them all liberally, she did the wise thing—and tipped none of them. But she is wondering whether she will ever dare repeat the visit; and repeating it, what sort of service she will receive from those whom she "forgot." Another friend, who, being a newspaper man, is of the proverbially penniless class, does not accept the invitation of his English uncle to spend a few months with him because of his sad experience on a former visit, when his uncle handed him a £5 note upon leaving. He began to taste mentally the Lucullan feasts it would buy at sundry restaurants in Newspaper Row, when his Epicurean dreams were rudely dispelled as his uncle said, "Take this, my boy, and tip the servants when you leave."

I have found nearly everywhere in Europe that the tips, although numerous, are far less bothersome than in America. "Tuppence" or ten centimes is received with a smile and fervent thanks. AMY PHILLIPS.

Two More Indictments.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If women generally would only be fair and decent there would be less talk about their lack of brains.

They do not believe in the "square deal."

They are always pleading the "baby act."

A COMPROMISE.

By JOHN KENDRICK BANGS.

Must you be sad? Then choose a day,
A whole one to be sad in,
And at its dawning go away
Far from the crowd that's maddin'!

Mope, weep, and grieve, from morn till eve;
Your worries take and list 'em.
Keep at it grimly till you leave
No gloom within your system,—

Say once a week, and when 'tis o'er,
And vanished like a bubble,
Let joy and cheer return once more—
And with the tears shed trouble.

You'll find this plan a sure relief,
And get a glimpse of Heaven.
One solid day of solid grief
Is better far than seven.

DAY OF REST FOR FLEET.

Officers and Men Wearied by the Hospitality of California.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10.—After four days of indulgence in the hospitality provided by San Francisco, which has worn wellnigh every one to the point of physical exhaustion, the officers and men of the Pacific and Atlantic fleets spent a Sunday of recuperation and rest. Function has followed function in such rapid succession since the fleet's arrival that they have hardly had time to finish with one before beginning another. Parades and reviews during the day, followed by automobile rides, receptions, balls, and innumerable social events, have occupied almost every hour of time.

Admiral Thomas remained at the Fairmount Hotel all day. Last night he contracted a slight cold at the banquet which he attended in Oakland, which prevented him leaving his apartments to-day. To-night, however, he attended the alumni dinner of the graduates of Annapolis, given at the Fairmount Hotel. A breakfast was given at 11 o'clock to-day at the Fairmount to the representatives of the press with the fleet.

A notable feature in connection with the fleet's presence at San Francisco has been the uniformly excellent conduct of the enlisted men ashore. The peace officers have not the least difficulty in controlling the situation at all times, although thousands of the sailors have had shore leave daily. The fleet patrol, commanded by Lieut. Commander Cole, has also accomplished excellent results in restraining any tendency toward disorder.

FLEET'S TRIP FOR PEACE.

Europe, Thomas Darling Says, Declares It Has Enhanced Roosevelt's Greatness

The sending of the American fleet to the Pacific is believed in Europe to be the greatest diplomatic move of the century, according to Thomas S. Darling, who returned yesterday on the Hamburg-American liner Bluecher. Mr. Darling, accompanied by his wife, has been in Russia on business.

"Russia and other countries of Europe now believe the question of the world's peace is assured," said Mr. Darling, discussing the trip of the fleet.

"The journey of our ships has ended, they believe, the friction which had developed between this country and Japan. It has also greatly enhanced the greatness of President Roosevelt."

Another passenger on the Bluecher was Hermann Gumpertz of Hamburg, Director of the Hebrew Benevolent Society of Russia.

AMERICAN REPUBLICS' HOME.

President Roosevelt Will Lay Cornerstone of New Building To-day.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Twenty-one American Republics will unite to-morrow in laying the cornerstone of the building which will constitute the monument typifying the predominant desire of the Western World for peace and commercial prosperity. President Roosevelt will officiate.

There will also be speeches by Secretary Root, Andrew Carnegie, who has contributed $750,000 toward the building fund, and Ambassador Nabuco of Brazil. The exercises will be witnessed by the diplomatic representatives of the world, besides the high officials and legislative representatives of this country.

The building for which the foundation is to be laid, will be the home of the International Bureau of American Republics, presided over by John Barrett. The United States Congress provided by appropriation for the site, comprising the grounds of the old Van Ness mansion. Each of the American Republics has made an appropriation for the finishing of the structure.

After the speeches the cornerstone of the building will be laid by President Roosevelt. It will contain in a copper box the reports of the three Pan-American Conferences which have been held since 1889, a testimonial of the gift of Mr. Carnegie, the cable messages of the Presidents of the Republics and their photographs, and of the Governing Board and officers, past and present of the bureau, and representative coins, postage stamps, and newspapers of the different Republics.

OPTIMISTS AT WASHINGTON.

Committee Will Show Protests Against Radicalism to Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The prosperity movement, having for its object the re-establishment of confidence throughout the country, which has been inaugurated by the National Prosperity Association of St. Louis, Mo., has reached Washington, and a committee representing that organization will confer with President Roosevelt at the White House to-morrow with a view to obtaining his indorsement of its plans. The committee consists of E. C. Simmons, Chairman; Festus J. Wade, President of the Mercantile Trust Company; J. E. Smith, President of the Board of Trade; Edward Devoy, President of the Chamber of Commerce, and Murray Carleton, all of St. Louis.

The committee asserts that no less than 500 of the leading business organizations in various parts of the country have indorsed the purpose of the organization. One of the principal objects of the movement is to urge against further drastic or harsh legislation, aimed at corporations for some time to come.

The committee will show the President a summary of the communications received from the numerous large business associations throughout the country that have expressed their approval of the idea inaugurated by the National Prosperity Association. On Tuesday the committee will be entertained at luncheon by the Chairman of the New York Board of Trade, in New York, at which time plans for organizing a prosperity association in that city will be discussed.

NOT TO ABOLISH CODES.

International Telegraph Conference Will Consider Business Interests.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The Department of Commerce and Labor has been advised by cablegram from Special Agent Dennis, who is in attendance as representative of the United States Government upon the international telegraph conference, now in session at Lisbo, containing importan information that business interests are not to be disturbed by a serious curtailment of the right to use codes in international cabling. The cablegram reads as follows:

"Tone of the conference is not strongly antagonistic to the large majority of existing code regulations. There is a feeling to prevent the use of unpronounceable combinations of letters now being supplied by codemakers. The British Post Office circular issued to Chambers of Commerce reads in part:

"The Postmaster General thinks it desirable that the condition as to pronounceability be somewhat more clearly defined in order to put some limit for the future to a growing tendency which, if unchecked, cannot fail to produce results highly injurious to the telegraph service generally, and therefore to the public and to commerce."

There is, however, no intention of adopting other than a wide and even generous interpretation which would cover the bulk of the codes at present in use.

THREAT BY PERRY BELMONT.

Publicity Organization, He Says, May Ally Itself with the Democrats.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Resenting the blockading methods employed by the House organization to prevent a vote on the bill providing for publicity for campaign contributions, Perry Belmont gave out a statement to-night in which he declared the National Publicity Law Organization, of which he is President, would take the question into the coming campaign unless Speaker Cannon and the leaders withdrew their opposition. He claims that Secretary Taft is heartily in favor of such a law.

"If," says Mr. Belmont in his statement, "all appeals prove unavailing at this stage of the session, and on the threshold of the Presidential election, the Publicity Organization must inevitably align itself with the Democrats in Congress, and if necessary with the Democratic Party during the continuance of this discussion."

NELSON MAY BLOCK A ROOSEVELT PLAN

Minnesota Senator Is Angry Over the Veto of a Bill Authorizing a Dam.

HALTS WATERWAYS SCHEME

Determined Despite Overtures That No Money Shall Be Given for the President's Pet Idea.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Angered by the veto of a bill for the construction of a dam across Rainey River in Minnesota, Senator Nelson is determined on the defeat of the President's pet project, the Inland Waterways Commission. Although the White House has made overtures for peace, the attitude of Nelson and the Minnesota delegation in the House is uncompromising. The bill creating the commission is now in the Senate Committee on Commerce, of which Nelson is a member.

When the bill granting permission to certain interests to construct a dam across the Minnesota stream went to the President for his signature he promptly vetoed it, as he threatened he would do. It is his contention that such rights should not be conveyed unless the Federal Government gets compensation and is protected in its right of supervision. Some time ago he announced that he would insist upon this policy in the future.

Threatened now by the Minnesota Senators and Representatives, the White House has shown a willingness to concede several points for the sake of harmony and to save the commission legislation. On two particulars, however, he declines to yield. These are the payment of a fee by the interests for which the law is framed and the fixing of a time limit on the rights conveyed. Representative J. Adam Bede has conducted the negotiations with the White House. Senator Nelson has not been calling on the President frequently since his recommendation for the Minnesota Federal Judgeship was ignored by Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt is deeply interested in having the Newlands bill passed, thus legally establishing the Inland Waterways Commission. The attempts to create such a body have met with rebuffs from the start, and it was the President's hope that differences might be set aside and Congress provide for the continuance of the commission.

In the closing days of the last session an effort was made to pass such a bill, but it failed through the attack of Representative Dalzell, who was resentful at the failure of Chairman Burton of the Rivers and Harbors Committee to provide for improvements to the Ohio River. Shortly after adjournment the President appointed a number of public men to the commission, making Burton Chairman. The Commissioners have been paying their own expenses and are without the necessary funds to maintain their organization if Congress fails to make appropriation. This is what Nelson says he will prevent.

The Newlands bill contemplated the establishment of a fund of $50,000,000 for the improvement of waterways, but this amount was reduced in committee to $10,000,000. When the fund falls below a certain amount the President is authorized to issue bonds to bring it up to the legal mark. The commission is intended to be merely an advisory board, and an agency for the preparation of plans and the undertaking of surveys. Under the provisions of the act it could not enter upon any improvement without such authorization from Congress.

WOMEN TO AID WORKERS.

Auxiliary to the National Civic Federation to be Formed To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Miss Anne Morgan, a daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Julia K. West, Mrs. Francis Higginson Cabot, Mrs. Ernesto G. Fabbri, Mrs. John W. T. Nichols, Mrs. C. U. Carpenter, Mrs. V. Everit Macy, and Mrs. Marcus M. Marks of New York reached Washington tonight to attend a meeting to-morrow morning of prominent women from nearly every large city in the country for the purpose of organizing a National woman's auxiliary to the National Civic Federation.

The women will meet at 10 o'clock this morning at the New Willard Hotel in response to a call of the Executive Council of the Civic Federation, and the organization which they purpose forming is "to use its influence in obtaining needed improvements in the working and living conditions of women and men wage earners in the various industries and Governmental institutions throughout the United States, when practicable, in the general work of the federation."

Among those spoken of for National President are Mrs. Archibald Alexander of Hoboken, President of the New York Woman's Committee; Mrs. Harriman of New York, and Mrs. Joseph Medill McCormick of Chicago, a daughter of the late Senator Mark Hanna, who has been most active in creating interest in the meetings and obtaining a large attendance of prominent women. Besides organizing, the women will hear a report from Mrs. Alexander of the New York Committee, the only city organization yet formed, regarding what has been attempted and accomplished in that city.

Among the Washington women who are interested are Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Mrs. William H. Taft, Mrs. Richard Wainwright, Mrs. Oscar S. Straus, Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth, Mrs. George Dewey, and Mrs. William S. Cowles.

President Roosevelt will receive the women delegates and the members of the Welfare Branch of the Civic Federation, which will meet with them, at 2:30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon in the East Room of the White House, and will make a brief address. Addresses will be made that afternoon and the next morning by prominent men.

The welfare of employes in the private enterprises will be taken up at the meeting Tuesday afternoon, the subjects to be discussed including sanitary work places, involving such points as pure drinking water, ventilation, embracing the cooling of overheated places and devices for exhausting dust and removing gases, systems for lighting work places, guarding machinery, washrooms, with hot and cold water, soap, towels, shower baths for molders and stationary firemen, emergency hospitals, and locker rooms.

PAPER MAKERS' EVIDENCE.

Congressional Committee's Inquiry at Paper Mill Ends.

CORINTH, N. Y., May 10.—After a day and night spent at the Hudson River Mill of the International Paper Company, the Congressional committee which is investigating the manufacture of news print paper in this country left this afternoon for Washington, where to-morrow it will resume hearings. The members of the committee spent all their time in learning the process of paper manufacture at first hand and in ascertaining from the employes of the mills the ratio of wage increase in the last ten years.

In their trip through the mill the Representatives were accompanied by Warren Curtis of New York, a Director, and other officials of the company. They were informed by these officials that the company's investment at the mill was between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 and that the percentage of wage increase in the last ten years had been between 66 1-3 and 75 per cent.

Various foremen and workmen were sworn as to their present wages and those they received for the same class of labor ten years ago. They declared their wages now were slightly larger than ten years ago and that their time of labor per week had been shortened from sixty-five and sixty-six hours per week to forty-eight.

THEATRE MANAGERS REVIEW LAST SEASON

Business Depression Hurt Plays, but the Outlook for Next Year Is Bright.

WILL SALARIES SUFFER?

Belasco and Fiske Fear There May Be Retrenchment—Lee Shubert Sees No Prospect of a Cut.

A fortnight more will see few open theatre doors along Broadway. The Lyceum closed last evening, and the Stuyvesant will do so at the end of the present week. Except in some notable instances it has not been a very successful season. Rarely have so many productions failed to catch the public fancy sufficiently to make them financially profitable, and never has there been such an overflow of talent. Competition has been so keen that players who hitherto have scorned offers bearing the slightest reduction from standard salaries have been compelled to swerve from their fixed rules.

Nevertheless, regarding the outlook for next season the managers are hopeful. The business depression, which most affected the theatres, is passing, if not altogether over, and a new season will bring new attractions for the jaded appetite of New Yorkers.

Several of the best known theatrical managers have already started on their annual pilgrimage to Europe in search of novelties in plays and stage effects.

David Belasco, Harrison Grey Fiske, and Lee Shubert are still in town, however, and have given THE TIMES their impressions of last season and the outlook for the Autumn.

David Belasco Hopeful.

"No one can deny that the theatrical business has been affected more or less seriously by the disturbed business conditions which began soon after the season opened last Fall," said David Belasco. "As a result there has been a much earlier closing of the playhouses than usual. The better class of attractions have made a little money, but the majority have not been so fortunate. We are facing a period of retrenchment, and the theatres will have to follow a conservative course until conditions settle down again to a normal basis.

"Theatres are among the first to feel the effect of hard times, and a scarcity of money always reacts unfavorably upon actors and all connected with theatrical life. They will all feel the force of the inevitable policy of retrenchment. How long it will take for matters to resume their old buoyancy remains to be seen. However, I do not take a pessimistic view of the situation. While times may continue unfavorable for some months, I look for a general resumption of confidence and business activity soon after the Presidential election is over in November, when a vigorous reaction in favor of the theatres will probably set in and restore prosperity to its previous stage."

Mr. Fiske for American Plays.

"The past dramatic season, in its general aspect, will not be regarded as memorable," said Harrison Grey Fiske. "It has been marked by much mediocrity and has not been particularly profitable to theatrical managers. From the débris of the season there can be singled out a few noteworthy achievements, but in general the results have been far from brilliant. As usual, some plays have failed that deserved to succeed and vice versa, but I think that in the majority of cases the judgment of the public has been intelligent and sound.

"It seems to me too early to venture a prediction as to next season. Plans are not yet sufficiently defined. No doubt the lessons and experiences of the past dramatic year, both in the artistic and the commercial sense, will have their effect upon the product of the coming season; probably more caution will be observed by managers in selecting plays and in exploiting them. It is likely that plays of American authorship, dealing with familiar and vital themes and presented in a simple form, will take the lead.

"Recent developments show that the public is quick to answer the appeal of the well-made play of ideas that treat of recognized phases of life in this country. As our social and industrial life approaches the crystallizing point, there emerge certain clearly defined and universally understood elements that were not distinctly recognizable, and therefore not susceptible of utility by the dramatist during the earlier stages of the great transitional period which we have been passing through. Therefore, to-day American themes are the most fruitful for American playwrights.

Theatres Have Shared Depression.

"The whole country at present is suffering temporary financial distress. The theatre has had to bear its share of the depression. Except in a few instances and in certain special localities there has been a general shrinkage of theatrical receipts. During the greater part of the season, owing to the closing of many companies and the failure of many plays, an unprecedented number of actors of all classes have been idle. Managers, like other business men, are obliged to readjust their expenses. Retrenchment probably will enter into plans of operation next season. Actors' salaries are likely to undergo a general reduction, in common with the reductions that have been sustained by the workers in all other activities. A few actors of exceptional ability will probably be able to maintain the salaries they have hitherto received, but the majority will probably be obliged to accept salaries in harmony with the general condition.

"Actors' salaries always seem to be inequitable in one respect. The comparative few who are 'in the swim' and in constant demand receive salaries wholly out of proportion, while actors further down in the scale, perhaps equally good or better artists, and the rank and file are underpaid. They suffer because the few are overpaid."

Fittest Survived, Says Shubert.

Lee Shubert said that in his opinion the theatrical season just drawing to a close has been far better, financially and artistically, than many seasons past.

"In spite of the financial stringency and the general depression growing out of conditions usually incident to a Presidential year," said Mr. Shubert, "there has never been a season in which criticism has been more sharply defined or more definitely aimed than this one, and for that very reason it was necessarily a case of the survival of the fittest. While many plays under many managements failed, or played to indifferent business, this fact should be accepted by the wise management as a co-operative influence for the general betterment of his business. Both in musical and dramatic offerings the result has been that conspicuity is attained only by the best, and this is a condition which is prophetic of great things for the future.

Expects No Salary Cuts.

"The season justifies a prophecy that next season will be even more successful, as all of the New York successes will be on tour and do an immense business based upon their metropolitan reputation as well as upon their individual merits. The rumor that there will be reductions in salaries of stars, leading principals, and special features is badly founded for the reason that there is no business in which competition is so keen as the theatrical business, and managers almost uniformly find themselves confronted with the absolute necessity of acceding to the demands of capable actors and actresses.

"The salary question regulates itself peculiarly. It is not based upon the amount of labor produced, but upon the desirability of the talent employed, and I do not believe there will ever be a time when the producing manager will be willing to risk his success by undertaking a reduction of salaries.

"I believe the public is gradually leaning toward the higher class attraction. The American public is hard to please, and only the best class of musical attractions have proved the biggest successes this season, while the dramatic offerings have been forced by the uptrend of public taste to take on a much higher tone. The theatrical manager who hopes for success must always have his finger on the public pulse, and when some other manager produces a high grade attraction which is a success he must make every effort to produce something on the same intellectual and dramatic plane. This is so thoroughly understood that nearly every producing manager at some time or other becomes pacemaker for the crowd."

"THE BANDBOX" ACTED.

Marie B. Schrader's One-Act Sketch Pleases at the Fifth Avenue.

After all, the man who doesn't own an automobile is perhaps the safest—especially if he would cling to single blessedness. Who can tell what such ownership will lead to? There was Schuyler Vandervere Stevens, for instance. Mr. Stevens wasn't exceeding the speed limit, somewhere between Times Square and the Park, when his machine collided with a girl carrying a bandbox. The girl got a fractured arm, but the bandbox escaped without a scratch, and Mr. Stevens, possibly having sisters of his own, and knowing how much sometimes depends upon the contents of such a parcel, at once determined to place it in its owner's hands, said bandbox being properly addressed to Miss Julia Brooks, somewhere Fifth Avenue.

In the meantime said Miss Brooks, with the assistance of her French maid, had been hurling telephonic vocabulary at the millinery shop, with the result that another hat was to be sent at once under the care of a man designer, who speaks no English, but knows perfectly the language of the needle. He can make alterations on the spot, if necessary. And as Miss Brooks is to go to the theatre with her cousin that evening to meet a certain very promising young gentleman, it is highly necessary that there shall be no delay.

The result of all this is that when Mr. Schuyler Vandervere Stevens arrives on the scene he is mistaken for the French hat designer, is more or less abused by the young woman patron of the millinery shop, and is eventually put to work to right the position of a refractory plume on the confection which he has brought with him in the rescued bandbox.

It is at this point of Marie B. Schrader's sketch, "The Bandbox," acted last night at the Fifth Avenue, that laughter is at its height, for the sight of a mere male trying to master the intricacies of a needle and a spool of thread may always be counted upon for fun. And it is at this point that the interruption must necessarily come from the real French milliner, whose arrival is the cue for the young woman's discomfiture.

However, in one-act plays and vaudeville sketches there is not much time for apologies, and it only remains now for Miss Brooks and Mr. Stevens to become acquainted, and, as he is the very young man she was going to meet at the theatre, for the two to declare their mutual passion, with the curtain falling to hide her blushes and his very natural ecstasy.

"The Bandbox" is brightly written and moves briskly. It is in many respects superior to the average one-act play of vaudeville.

It was well received last night and will be better received when it is played a little more vigorously and with a little more of the hurry and bustle demanded in theatres where this sort of thing obtains. But as it stands it is very well acted by Miss Blandick, Mr. Stirling, and Mrs. Pruyn, the last named contributing a particularly good bit of broadly marked French dialect.

Comedy at Temple Emanu-El.

A one-act comedy, "The Masquerader," will be presented by the Playgoers' Dramatic Club on Tuesday evening at Temple Emanu-El Forty-third Street and Fifth Avenue.

RARE STORIES OF PIRATES.

Collection of Books Soon to be Sold at Auctin.

Those who collect stories of pirates, highwaymen, and others of that ilk will find some rare items in this line at a near-by sale by the Anderson Company. Among the scarcest of them is the London, 1609, edition of the "Newes from Sea of the Two Notorious Pyrats, (sic,) Ward the Englishman and Danseker the Dutchman, With a True Relation of All or the Most Piraces (sic) by Then Committed unto the Sixt of Aprill, (sic,) 1609."

This was published in black letter "for N. Butter at the Signe of the Pide Bull." It is said to be so rare that only three copies are known. On the title page is a large woodcut of two ships in action, with two men hanging from the yards of the pirate ship. There is also a curious vignette of "Ward's skiffe," when he was a fisherman.

Ward, who hailed from Feversham, seized a ship at Plymouth, England, and started on a piratical cruise which proved so remunerative that he was able to build a palace for himself. He made Tunis his headquarters, and always cruised under the Turkish or Tunisian flag. His principal victims were the Knights of Malta and the Venetians. The famous play by Robert Daborn, entitled "A Christian Turned Turk, or the Tragicale Lives of the Two Famous Pyrates, Ward and Dansiker," which was produced in London in 1612, was founded on this work.

Another work is entitled "The Tyburn Chronicle; or, Villainy Displayed in All Its Branches, Containing an Authentic Account of the Lives, Adventures, Tryals, Executions, and Last Dying Speeches of the Most Notorious Malefactors, Who Have Suffered for Forgeries, Highway Robberies, Murders, and Piracy." London, 1700.

There is also a first edition of the curious and entertaining work by Capt. Charles Johnson, published in London, 1734, and entitled "A General History of the Lives and Adventures of the Most Famous Highwaymen, Murderers, and Street Robbers."

The lobbies and dining rooms of all the leading hotels and restaurants presented a brilliant scene last night, the hotel clerks reporting a large attendance of Sunday diners than usual on account of the almost faultless weather yesterday.

Conspicuous among the diners were many of those who had been attracted in the afternoon to long auto spins in the country. Many remained in the lobbies after dinner listening to the music.

An interesting coincident at the Hotel Knickerbocker was the meeting there of John F. Fitzgerald, an ex-Mayor of Boston, and Frank C. Hibbard, his successor. Mayor Hibbard is accompanied by Miss Hibbard.

Among the other diners at the Knickerbocker were Vernon H. Brown, agent of the Cunard Line, and his guest, August Sitz. A special feature of the dinner was the ices made in the form of a Cunard liner in a river of ice.

Other diners at the Knickerbocker were Mlle. Mercedes Manin of Paris, the miniature portrait painter; Mrs. Thomas S. Hamilton, John Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ross, Miss Ross, Senator McHume, H. M. Howlette, A. C. Platt, Frederick T. Lincoln, James Potter, Mr. and Mrs. John Stamper, Mr. and Mrs. William Mitchell, A. B. Walman, Thomas O'Brien, Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Hill, and Mr. and Mrs. Felix Isman.

Among those seen in the Plaza dining and grill rooms last night were:

Mr. and Mrs. Hobart J. Park, Mr. and Mrs. George Gould, the Misses Gould, Kingdon Gould, Gen. Count Spiridovitch, George W. Montgomery of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Pembroke Womble of Baltimore, Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. Richardson of Washington, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Tilton of St. Louis, Julius Walsh of St. Louis, George R. Sheldon, F. H. Von Stade, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Knight of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Foss of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Boyne, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Clyde, Mr. and Mrs. William Fuller, Adrian Iselin, Jr., Miss Iselin, Frederick Townsend Martin, Capt. William King, U. S. N., and Mrs. King; ex-Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Paine, Mr. and Mrs. John Roebling, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene O'Neil of Pittsburg, Col. William Hester, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Finley Dunne, Robert J. Collier, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Clark, Harry Holbrook, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Costello, Miss Olga Nethersole, Mr. and Mrs. Storrs Wells, and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Wallace.

Adolphus Busch and Mrs. Busch of St. Louis were hosts to a party of twenty-four at the St. Regis. They occupied two special tables in the public room. Other guests at the St. Regis were Mr. and Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Schiff, Mr. and Mrs. I. Pedraza, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Cramer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Emmet of Warwick, England; Mrs. E. N. Breitung, and Col. and Mrs. A. G. Paine.

A noticeable feature at the Hotel Manhattan last night was the elaborate floral decoration, in which were used American Beauty roses, yellow jonquils, carnations, and numerous evergreens. In addition to the musical programme arranged for the evening by the orchestra, several selections were played at the request of guests. Among the diners were:

Mr. William E. Roche, Mrs. Peter S. Ebbert, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Mather, Mrs. C. A. Bristed, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Woodruff, F. I. Newell and the Misses Newell, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Adams, Dr. and Mrs. O. L. Pfaff, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Forthingham, Mrs. A. Dreier, Mrs. Ross Gooderham, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Eno, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Dowsett, Mrs. C. H. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Bucklin, Mrs. R. W. Harding, Miss Bessie Cudahy, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Kuhn, and Mrs. H. A. Bowden.

The Palm Garden of the Waldorf-Astoria was well filled with diners last night. Some of them were:

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McFadden, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Winter, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Lake, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wyman, Mrs. S. N. Smith, Mrs. Robert Pitcairn, Chevalier Scowl, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Laportas, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Hersley, Mr. and Mrs. K. B. Armour, Miss M. Armour, L. H. Armour, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Thomas, Sir William Forwood, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Lafferty, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Dobber, and Mr. and Mrs. William Jermyn.

Among those at the Hotel Astor were J. R. Kenney, M. D. de Peyster, and Richard Croker, Jr.

NEWS OF NEWPORT.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 10.—This morning the Fire Department was called to Cloyne House School, where a slight blaze was found in the incubator shed, where an overturned lamp had caused a fire. The students, led by Masters Jack and Gordon Drexel, sons of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Drexel, with extinguishers, extinguished the fire before the fire apparatus arrived.

James J. Van Alen has sent orders to have his place Wakehurst, on Ochre Point, opposite Mrs. Vanderbilt's palace, prepared for his use. Mr. Van Alen will be accompanied by his daughter, Miss May Van Alen, who has not visited Newport in two years and who will be mistress of Wakehurst June 1, when they are due from England.

Col. and Mrs. Delancey Astor Kane entertained a dinner party this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Roelker will come to Newport for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick P. Garretson have returned from Europe.

Dr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Huntington are spending a brief visit in Philadelphia.

Late arrivals at the Muenchinger King Cottage include Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Newbold, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Reynolds, Lancaster, Penn.; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Byers, Newton Centre, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. B. Day, Dehon, Penn.

Barton Willing returned from Boston to-day.

FRANCIS—CONGDON.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 10.—The wedding of Miss Louise Buffum Congdon, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Congdon, and Richard Standish Francis of New York, which took place yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents here, was very quiet owing to a recent bereavement in the family. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edward F. Sanderson, pastor of the Central Congregational Church, in the presence of relatives and a few friends. The bride was given away by her father and was becomingly gowned in white lace. She had no attendants. The best man was G. Maurice Congdon, a brother of the bride.

SAY TEACHER USED THE ROD.

To be Tried by Board of Education for Corporal Punishment.

With three trials before committees and a regular meeting of the Board of Education this week, there will be much more than the usual activity in the Department of Education.

To-night the Committee on Buildings will probably conclude the trial of Music Director Frank R. Rix, which is an outgrowth of the Cameron trial in connection with the acceptance of refinished pianos. It is expected that the committee will make a report of its findings in the case at the meeting of the Board of Education on Wednesday afternoon.

The Committee on Elementary Schools will have a trial Tuesday of an attendance officer of Staten Island, who is charged with neglect of duty, and it is understood that a case of corporal punishment in one of the elementary schools will be reported to the Board of Education and will in all probability be referred to this committee for trial.

It is well-nigh certain that the board at its Wednesday meeting will go into the election of an Associate City Superintendent to succeed President George W. Davis of the Normal College.

JUST A DOG IN TOWN.

Mr. Wilfer Had Troubles of His Own Getting It Home.

This story is intended to indicate that the conductors of the Amsterdam Avenue line know their book of rules and enforce its provisions.

During the heavy rain of Saturday morning R. Wilfer of 237 West 109th Street journeyed far downtown to welcome home his wife at the Liberty Street Ferry of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. She had been away over a month and Mr. Wilfer wore his silk-lined coat, his patent leathers, his best tie, and spats.

Mrs. Wilfer has a fat fox terrier. She turned it over to Mr. Wilfer to manipulate in the trip up to Harlem. Mr. Wilfer's first plan was deep with cunning, but vain. He had his wife wrap the dog in her cloak, went ahead, bought two tickets on the Ninth Avenue "L," returned, and then together they rushed the ticket-chopper.

"No dawgs," snarled the ticket chopper.

They pleaded in vain. The ticket chopper had his orders. Mr. Wilfer, when they reached the sidewalk once more, devised what he declared to be "one certainly smooth scheme." They went to a near-by market and spent 20 cents on a market basket. As they were stuffing the terrier into the basket a woman appeared. She belonged to the S. P. C. A.

"Going to drown it?" she said, with honey in her tone. Mr. Wilfer rewarded her with a frown and a remark that was not loud, but was strong. The woman called a policeman and the basket scheme was abandoned.

"You take the bags," finally said Mr. Wilfer to his spouse, "get on the elevated, and I'll take the dog on the surface car." They parted.

Mr. Wilfer boarded the Amsterdam Avenue car in the care of Conductor 2,259. The conductor welcomed him and dog. The dog was then an inch deep with mud. Mr. Wilfer remained on the rear platform.

"You'll have to go inside," said the conductor.

Mr. Wilfer went inside, the dog trailing a stream of mud and water behind it as it jogged at his heels. They had gone a half a block when the conductor entered the car.

"You must hold the dog in your lap," he said.

"What!" gasped Mr. Wilfer, pointing to his array of gladsome raiment.

"That's what the book says," replied the conductor.

"But surely this little dog huddled on the floor here is hurting no one, and you wouldn't have me spoil my clothes just because the book says something like that?" pleaded Mr. Wilfer.

"In your lap," said the conductor.

It was a far cry to 109th Street, and Mr. Wilfer deposited the muddy dog between his knees and his best waistcoat.

Twice the Harlemite let the dog slip surreptitiously to the floor, and twice No. 2,259 made him drag her back to his lap. At 109th Street Mr. Wilfer went to the rear platform to get off.

"I think you're wrong on this dog business on a wet day," he said, coldly, to the conductor, pointing to his mudstained suit, "and I'm going to write to Mr. Root about it. I have taken your number."

"Who's Root?" asked the conductor, as if he was only mildly interested.

"He's the General Manager of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company," haughtily informed Mr. Wilfer.

"Then I guess he signed the book of rules," said the conductor as he sounded two bells.

ACCUSES A POLICEMAN.

Truckman Says He Befriended Man He Caught Stealing.

When Richard Sheehan of 561 West 130th Street and Frank Mullin of 203 West 141st Street were arraigned before Magistrate Wahle in the Night Court last night on the charge of disorderly conduct, it looked like a half-minute trial, for both are truckmen, and Policeman Edward A. Marron of the West 125th Street Station complained that they had sworn loudly and deeply.

"But I'm the complainant, your Honor," called out Mullin.

"Close up!" said the policeman.

"I insist, your Honor, that I'm not a prisoner in this case," Mullin almost yelled in his endeavor to get the ear of the court.

Then Magistrate Wahle asked Mullin to explain. Marron, the policeman, got uneasy.

"I went into the stable at 308 West 143d Stdeet, where Sheehan and I keep our trucks," said Mullin, "and saw Sheehan taking a wheel from another man's truck and putting it on his own. I objected, and when it did no good I called up Police Headquarters and asked that a policeman be sent to the stable.

"Marron came along after quite a while and greeted Sheehan with 'Hello, Dick.' They are close friends. They tried to get me to quit the case on the way to the station, but I wouldn't, and then when we got to the station Marron put me in a cell and charged me with disorderly conduct."

The Magistrate had the facts verified by telephone. Police Headquarters had recorded Mullin's call. Mullin was discharged and Sheehan was fined $10.

"Just get a copy of the record in this case," advised the Magistrate to Mullin, "and have it placed before Gen. Bingham. Something may happen to that cop."

ELFIE FAY TO WED.

Vaudeville Singer Says She Will Marry Lieut. Damon Pierri, U. S. Navy.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 10.—Elfie Fay, the vaudeville actress, will leave the stage at the end of next week to become the wife of Lieut. Damon Pierri, an American naval officer who is just closing a term of service as commanding officer of the Island of Guam.

Lieut. Pierri is due in San Francisco in about ten days, and will be met by Miss Fay. The marriage will take place in Washington, it is expected.

Miss Fay says that her fiancé is due to receive three years' tour of shore duty before he sails again. After that time, she says, she may return to stage life, "to keep out of mischief."

A. M. FRAGNER DIES IN PRISON.

Brooklyn Lawyer Cheated Heirs to an Estate—Married One of Them.

Albert M. Fragner, a Brooklyn lawyer, who was sentenced in 1904 for robbing the orphan heirs to an estate, died on Friday in Dannemora Prison. His body has been brought to Brooklyn for burial.

Mr. Fragner was a member of a well-known Brooklyn family, and built up a large practice in the borough. He began speculating in Wall Street and playing the races, however, and the gambling led to his ruin.

One of his clients was the guardian of the minor heirs to the estate of Otto Kainer, a millionaire importer. By a pretext Lawyer Fragner obtained possession of the collateral of the estate. When a demand was made for the bonds he failed to produce them, and was arrested charged with grand larceny.

While the case was on Mr. Fragner married one of the Kainer heirs. She tried to save him from prison, but in vain. He pleaded guilty to the indictment against him, and was sent to Dannemora by County Judge Aspinall for six years.

Ex-Policeman, 81, Dies in Church.

William Osborn, an ex-policeman, aged 81, left his home yesterday morning at 1,763 Clay Avenue, the Bronx, to go to church. He was apparently in good health when he started. As soon as he arrived at the Tremont Methodist Church, Washington Avenue and 178th Street, and just as the pastor had begun to preach, he fell over dead.

PROPHET DESERTS NEW THOUGHT TALK

Highbrows Flocked by Hundreds to Hear Elbert Hubbard Discuss "Canned Theology."

BUT HE WENT AWAY EARLY

And His Followers Had to be Content with Lesser Lights—Some of Them Didn't Like It.

The New Thought adherents, who have ways of their own of looking at a life, held a conference in Carnegie Lyceum last night. Elbert Hubbard made it known that he expected to talk there on "New Thought versus Canned Theology," and there were rumors of lively doings in store.

As a result, by 8 o'clock the Lyceum was jammed, even to the aisles and back walls. Some one sent word to the Fire Department, and by 8:15 the entrance was in the hands of the law, whose agents ruthlessly tried to turn away the mob; whereat the mob raised its voice in masculine violence and feminine wails. A man with a red necktie was sent out to harrangue the assemblage. His speech was brief.

"Say, can't you see when this building only seats 639, and there's 800 in it already, that no one else is going to get in?"

The crowd did not see and said so loudly. The man with the red necktie tried another tack.

"Why, you're acting like a lot of village folk at the Town Hall."

"Bet you you never was born in New York," cried some one in the crowd.

"No, thank heaven," responded the perspiring orator, "I came from Yorkshire, England." And he stood firm.

Those who did get in had a feast spread before them, for the entrance hall was filled with New Thought literature, which was being sold at a lively rate, while some pamphlets, including advertisements of the other wares, were forced upon every comer. The "best seller" undoubtedly was "New Thought Healing," by Dr. Sears. Amidst the frequent demands for this popular work, however, the woman book seller found time to advise a friend to try hot and cold applications to cure her sore throat, and to add sundry doses of glycerine and honey if the sore throat proved obstinate.

Also displayed to view were the glowing press notices of the "books you should read and study" from such journals as the "Cosmic Light," "The Voice of the Magi," "The Swastika," "The Stellar Ray," and "The Naturopath."

Besides these were "Clairvoyance," "Easy Lessons in Occult Science," "Psychometry," "The Planetary Daily Guide," and "The Divine Language of Celestial Correspondences." A few sentences from "Freedom," (25 cents,) by Dr. Manuel Rivero, will show that the New Thought Grammar when published will contain several striking departures from the customary usage, if the remark of the author that "as each soul enters a new sphere it is obliged to pay toll" is taken as characteristic.

Mr. Hubard did not speak, though he sat on the platform between a woman in white and a harp.

"Silence" opened the meeting. Then came an address on "Medical Psychology," by Dr. C. O. Gabler. Neither did they warm much when Eugene Del Mar got away with "Limitations and Possibilities."

All the New Thoughters, however, sat up and took notice when Dr. Julia Seaton Geers, the inventor of New Thought, took the stand. She discoursed on "The Great Secret Which is Way Above and Beyond the Plane of Competition, and Which Enables One to Gain and Retain Health." Floyd B. Wilson then spoke on "Thoughts Current in the Twentieth Century," beginning, however, with prehistoric China.

Old-Time Police Reporter Dead.

Paul Beattie, one of the old guard reporters for the newspapers at Police Headquarters, died in St. Vincent's Hospital yesterday of a blood clot on the brain. He had been a police reporter upward of twelve years. He had relatives living in Schenectady, and a brother, Louis Beattie survives him in Philadelphia.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

W. J. Murphy.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, May 10.—W. J. Murphy, Vice President of the Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas (Queen & Crescent) Railroad, died to-day at his home in this city from the effects of a paralytic stroke that came upon him May 1. Mr. Murphy was born in Greensburg, Mass., Aug. 23, 1848. He began his career as a messenger boy in the offices of the Erie Railroad at Port Jervis, N. Y., and in course of time served the Erie as telegraph operator, dispatcher, chief dispatcher, trainmaster, Superintendent, and General Superintendent. He resigned from the Erie in 1888, and after a short vacation became Superintendent of the Eastern Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad, now a part of the Southern. From that road he went to the Queen & Crescent, and served it first as Superintendent, and later as General Manager. Five years ago he was made First Vice President.

Mrs. Frances Garner Lawrance.

Word has been received here of the death in Pau, France, on Tuesday, of Mrs. Frances Garner Lawrance, wife of Francis C. Lawrance, formerly of New York. Mrs. Lawrance was a sister of Commodore William Garner, who with his wife was drowned in the Mohawk, off Stapleton, Staten Island, many years ago. After the death of her brother, Mrs. Lawrance took his three daughters abroad, where they all married. They are now the Marquise de Breteuil, Countess Leon von Moltke Huitfeld, and Lady Gordon Cumming. Mrs. Lawrance's only daughter married the late Lord Vernon in 1885. Her son, the late Francis C. Lawrance, married a daughter of Charles Lanier of New York. After her death he married Susan Willing of Philadelphia, a sister of Mrs. John Jacob Astor, who survives him. Mrs. Lawrance lived in Pau and also had a residence in Paris.

Mrs. Mary Jeffers Rogers.

Mrs. Mary Jeffers Rogers, wife of William J. Rogers, President of the Borden Milk Company, died on Saturday at her home, 58 Reynolds Terrace, Orange, N. J., of heart disease. She was 63 years old. Her husband, four daughters, and four sons survive her.

Death of Frederick H. May.

Frederick H. May, ex-Vice President and General Manager of the American Rapid Telegraph Company, died to-day at his home in Newark, N. J. He had been prominent in railroad construction in the West and Middle West in the seventies, and won fame in the civil war by keeping the Illinois Central north of Cairo open for troops and supply trains for Gen. Grant. Mr. May was born on the Isle of Man.

Abraham Beekman.

BATH, N. Y., May 10.—Abraham Beekman died here to-day, aged 78 years. He was a native of New York City. Mr. Beekman was prominent in business circles in Western and Southern New York and was President of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank of Bath.

KRAMER CAPTURES SPRINT CYCLE RACE

American Champion Finishes First in Big Field in Newark.

NEW TRACK A SUCCESS

Joseph Fogler Lands Long-Distance Event in Fast Time — Amateurs in Good Form.

Although he appeared heavy, Frank Kramer, the American champion sprint cyclist, captured one of the professional races at the opening of the Newark Velodrome, the renovated Vailsburg track, yesterday afternoon. Kramer had his famous finish in good shape in the half-mile professional race, although he did not go the full distance in the three-mile race.

Six men started in the final of the first professional event of the afternoon—the half mile. At the crack of the pistol Fogler jumped into the lead and then gave way to Anderson, the Danish crack, regaining it shortly after. At the sound of the bell for the last lap Fogler went away from the bunch and seemed to be winning handily until as the men came into the stretch Kramer came to the fore and caught Fogler at the line, beating him by a close margin. The other professional event—the three-mile—saw Kramer and Jimmy Moran on scratch. These two loafed along, finally catching the field as it was tiring, and started to work their way through. Just as they had apparently had enough room to take the lead Kramer stopped and got off his wheel. The fight for first honors was keen after this, but Fogler finally landed in the lead by half a wheel's length from Eddie Root, his former partner. Jack Devosier of Springfield, Mass., easily defeated Bob Shulz of Newark in a special five-mile motor-cycle race in 7:32.

Maurice Van den Dries, a brother of the crack rider of the New York Athletic Club, easily captured the first amateur event of the day—the three-quarter-mile novice—from a good field. Van den Dries went into the lead at the start and was never headed.

In the two amateur events the first prizes were split up between Cameron, the Irish-American Athletic Club rider, and Goerke of the National Athletic Club. Cameron won the two-mile handicap from scratch in good shape, with Goerke second, while in the one-mile miss-and-out race Goerke was first across the line, with the Winged Fist rider in second place. The summary:

Two-Third-Mile, Novice.—Won by Maurice Van den Dries, New York; Vincent Giolatto, New York, second; F. W. Jones, Passaic, third. Time—0:47.

Half-Mile Open, Professional.—Won by Frank Kramer, East Orange; Joseph Fogler, Brooklyn, second; Walter Bardgett, Buffalo, third; N. M. Anderson, Denmark, fourth. Time—1:07 4-5.

One-Mile Miss-and-Out Race, Amateur.—Won by Oscar Goerke, National A. C., Brooklyn; George W. Cameron, Irish-American A. C., New York, second; John B. Hawkins, New York, third. Time—2:34 4-5.

Two-Mile Amateur, Handicap.—Won by George W. Cameron, Irish-American A. C., New York, (scratch;) Oscar Goerke, National A. C., Brooklyn, (40 yards,) second; Maurice Van den Dries, New York, (100 yards,) third. Time—4:49 1-5.

Three-Mile Handicap, Professional.—Won by Joseph Fogler, Brooklyn, (30 yards;) E. F. Root, Boston, (100 yards,) second; John Bedell, Lynbrook, L. I., (30 yards,) third; Floyd Krebs, Newark, (60 yards,) fourth. Time—6:39.

Special Five-Mile Motorcycle Match Race Between J. Derosier, Springfield, Mass., and R. Shulz, Newark.—Won by Derosier; Shulz, second. Time—7:32.

MOTORISTS IN LONG RUN.

One Hundred Riders Take Part in Double Century Race.

The New York Motor Cycle Club held its annual Spring single and double century run over the Long Island roads yesterday. Over 100 riders faced the starter in two divisions. The first to get away were the double century riders, who left Bedford Avenue and Eastern Parkway at 6 A. M., and rode to Southampton and return. The riders covered the 200 miles in eight hours, J. F. McLoughlin finishing first. The other riders to follow were:

W. H. Wray, F. Hornberger, H. B. Van Wyck, C. Kelly, Charles Voigt, William Cook, Fred Vadher, Fred Littlefield, Andrew Sicard, D. Patterson, D. Malin, T. B. Baker, Albert Kruder, and David Dessan.

The riders taking part in the single century left at 9 A. M., and went to Patchogue and return, with A. G. Chapple, Captain of the run, being the first to finish, covering the distance in four hours. The other riders to finish were:

A. Benedix, H. Wehman, E. Kickerer, Roland Moore, Walter Boost, P. J. Giovins, R. S. Martin, J. P. Thormley, J. A. McKeaver, I. Davis, G. Jenkins, M. J. Parker, J. F. Shenhan, A. E. Titus, G. Y. Lyons, J. W. Constant, W. E. Finley, C. P. Rogers, J. M. Shores, O. Johnson, W. Thoman, H. Fletcher, J. Brown, J. Fredericks, F. E. Dalton, L. Schwartz, F. Mercier, R. Brazenor, W. Erath, G. B. Giffords, P. Deyo, A. Viereck, and A. Kurhiker.

The Motor Cycle and the Auto.

Automobile manufacturers are finding that the growing use of the motorcycle is making a distinct inroad into the sale of light-powered, low-priced vehicles. For the man who wants convenient transportation at good speed, wants short touring on country roads in good weather, the motorcycle appears to suit his purpose as admirably as the small runabout. Its speed is great, its ability to follow roads that automobiles cannot cover evident, and its cost and upkeep inconsiderable. On stiff grades the motorcycle developes less trouble than the automobile. George Jenkins of the American Motorcar Company declared recently that all three models of M. M. cycles had been in unprecedented demand. With low riding position, the riding is smooth, with little vibration, and as a means of transportation has the advantage of being reliable and simple.

EASTERN LEAGUE.

Newark Defeats Baltimore 8—3 After an Uphill Fight.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, May 10.—After being led by the Baltimores for two-thirds of the game to-day, the Newarks sent McCloskey up in the air in the seventh inning, and before he came down six runs had been tallied. Stanage started the trouble with a double, and Hughes followed with a single. Then came singles in succession by Mullen, De Vore, and Drake, Engle breaking the spell by fanning. Sharpe, however, set the fans going again by doubling, Baerwald duplicated, and Mahling singled. Mahling's great work at short was one of the features. The score by innings:

DELMAR WINS CLOSE RACE.

Scratch Runner Takes Quarter-Mile Event at Pelham Bay Games.

The first outdoor games of the season of the Morris Evening High School Athletic Association were held yesterday at Pelham Bay Park. In spite of the heavy track, fairly good time was made. The feature event was the quarter-mile handicap, which was won by O. C. Delmar from J. Ruggles by inches. Delmar started from scratch and won on the tape. The summaries:

100-Yard Dash, Handicap.—First Heat—Won by W. Shauk, (7 yards;) J. Ruggles, (5 yards,) second. Time—0:11 1-5. Second Heat—Won by H. Cohn, (10 yards;) S. Aggen, (8 yards,) second. Time—0:10 1-5. Third Heat—Won by E. Mayer, (8 yards;) M. Rosenberg, (4 yards,) second. Time—0:11 3-5. Fourth Heat—Won by W. Halpin, (7 yards;) L. Herlihy, (10 yards,) second. Time—0:10 4-5. Fifth Heat—Won by W. Pappert, (9 yards;) R. Lee, (8 yards,) second. Time—0:10 1-5. Sixth Heat—Won by S. Kussell, (3 yards;) O. Delmar, (scratch,) second. Time—0:10 2-5. First Semi-final Heat—Won by H. Cohn; E. Mayer, second; S. Kussell, third. Time—0:10 3-5. Final Heat—Won by H. Cohn; S. Kussell, second; E. Mayer, third. Time—0:10 1-5.

Putting 12-Pound Shot, Handicap.—Won by C. H. Connolly, (10 feet,) distance 32 feet 2½ inches; W. Pappert, (5 feet,) distance 30 feet 7 inches, second; J. Ruggles, (8 feet,) distance 27 feet 6 inches, third.

Running High Jump, Handicap.—Won by S. Aggen, (5 inches,) height 4 feet 6 inches; W. Pappert, (3 inches,) height 4 feet 8 inches, second; M. Pappert, (scratch,) height 4 feet 8 inches, third.

CRACK FIELD FOR THE METROPOLITAN

Noted Horses Ready for Big Handicap to be Run on Wednesday at Belmont Park.

PENALTIES CHANGE WEIGHTS

Race, Worth $13,000 Gross, Will Mark Opening of Westchester Association's Meeting.

The third of the great Spring handicaps, the Metropolitan, with a value exceeding that of either the Carter or Excelsior, which preceded it, will be run on Wednesday, and the race, marking the opening of the Belmont Park course for the fourth Spring meeting there, will be the turf event of the week. The two days remaining of the Jamaica racing are of importance only as leading up to the sport that is in prospect for Metropolitan Handicap Day, for it is about settled that until the Belmont Park meeting is reached the best of the horses of the East will not be seen in public. For that race the winners of the earlier big handicaps are prominent figures, but there will be much new material in the shape of horses that have not yet been to the post, and the prospects are that, as regards class and merit on past performances, the field will eclipse any that has run for the race since Tristan won the first running of the stakes, nineteen years ago. Thirty-eight of the fifty-five horses originally handicapped still are eligible for the big event, and it is harder to pick the horses of the thirty-eight that will not start than to select those that will.

The race this season, with $10,000 added money, will have a gross value of about $13,000. The distance is one mile, and the race is for horses three years old and upward. The thirty-eight horses engaged in the stakes still are weighted with imposts ranging from the 126 pounds on Ballot, the champion handicap horse of the late part of last season, now a four-year-old, down to the 87 pounds on the three-year-old filly Gowan. The horses that are listed as among those sure to start, barring accidents, include the winners of the most important of the earlier handicaps, Jack Atkin, winner of the Carter, and McCarter, winner of the Excelsior. Other horses that have run, and most of these also have won this season, are Chapultepec, King Cobalt, Rifleman, Brookdale Nymph, Fair Play, and Baby Wolf. Of the horses that have not been out for racing this season, but have been trained with the view to starting in the Metropolitan Handicap, are Superman, Dandelion, Nealon, Montgomery, Uncle, and King James. Dandelion and Superman both are entered at the Jamaica track, and it is quite likely that both will run. Other horses that figure as probable runners in Wednesday's big race are Far West, Live Wire, Charles Edward, Spooner, Old Honesty, and Faust.

Under the conditions of the handicap a number of changes have been worked in the weights since they were allotted. The greatest change is in the weight on Jack Atkin, originally handicapped at 120 pounds, but as a winner of two races of more than $1,000 penalized eight pounds, making the impost 128 pounds. McCarter, winner of the Excelsior, is penalized four pounds, making his corrected weight 117. Chapultepec and King Cole, both three-year-olds, are penalized four pounds each as winners of $1,000 since the publication of the weights, making their proper weights 107 for Chapultepec and 101 for King Cobalt. With stakes liberally distributed through the other days of the week, both at Jamaica and at Belmont Park, the events next in importance to the Metropolitan Handicap are the Fashion, for fillies two years old, and the Toboggan, for three-year-olds and upward, both to be run Saturday at Belmont Park.

CHICAGO, May 10.—Leifield's three passes and two singles gave the locals two runs in the sixth inning of the first game. Four more were added in the seventh on an error, an out, two doubles, and a single. Pittsburg won the second game, 1 to 0, on Wagner's steal and Abby's hit to centre. The score:

GIANTS LEAVE FOR WEST.

National League Eastern Clubs Invade the West—Yankees Home To-morrow.

The Giants started for Pittsburg last night, where they will begin the first of the Western series. Four games will be played in that city, and then Cincinnati will be visited. The local team begins the series strongly intrenched in third place. The trip will last a trifle over two weeks, the team returning to the Polo Grounds on June 4, when they will play St. Louis. The Brooklyn team also left for St. Louis, where they will play to-day.

GOLF TOURNAMENTS FOR CHAMPIONSHIPS

Men and Women Will Play for Metropolitan Titles This Month.

TRAVIS'S CHANCES BRIGHT

Travers, in View of His Recent Defeats, a Doubtful Quantity—Miss Bishop Back in the Game.

No clearly defined predictions, based on the results of the three big tournaments held within the past month, can be made as to the probable winner of the Metropolitan Golf Association championship, which will be the next important event in local circles for the golfing fraternity. This event, the first Northern championship of the year, will be played next week, beginning Wednesday, May 20, on the links of the Baltusrol Golf Club, near Short Hills, N. J. Jerome D. Travers is the title holder, an honor he has held for two years, but the defeats he has thus far encountered, both at Atlantic City and Garden City, have materially weakened his chances in being regarded as the favorite. In fact, no real favorite appears on the horizon, the event being more open in character than is usually the case with a championship competition. Indeed, Travis is likely to be considered more favorably than any one else at present.

Despite his recent lack of practice and the rather indifferent golf he has shown, Travers has the advantage of youth and a readiness of getting back into form in short notice that have pulled him through tight places many times in the past.

Last week Travers just got in the first set, with a score of 106, while Travis did 84, and in the second match play round Travis beat the champion by 3 up and 2 to play. At Atlantic City the preceding week Travers was beaten twice, first by Dr. Neiffer, a comparatively unknown Philadelphian, and then by W. C. Fownes for the special cup for the beaten eight. Travis himself lost to W. C. Fownes, Jr., the winner of the Atlantic City Cup.

The entries for the metropolitan tournament will close next Saturday with Secretary Leighton Calkins. Four sets of sixteen will qualify for as many cups in the 36-hole qualifying round, but only the first set will be eligible for the championship and the trophy presented by Daniel Chauncey, which must be won three times to become the property of the victor.

The women will hold their metropolitan championship from May 26 to 29 on the Essex County Country Club's course, Orange, and the New Jersey golfers are getting ready for their annual State championship at Englewood from June 4 to 6. The women of the metropolitan association will hold their second one-day tournament of the year on Thursday at Englewood. Miss Georgianna Bishop, the ex-National champion, will be one of the championship competitors, and Miss Julia R. Mix of Englewood, who won the women's North and South championship at Pinehurst this season, will be another contestant who is quite likely to carry off the prize.

Ex-Sheriff Creamer High Gun.

Under conditions that were totally at variance with good trap shooting, quite a big delegation of the Bergen Beach Gun Club met at the traps on Saturday and had some good sport. Wind and rain were a severe handicap, but the shooting in the main was excellent. Ex-Sheriff Frank Creamer of Brooklyn was the high gun in five events, breaking 81 per cent. of his targets. The highest scores were:

FAST SPEEDWAY BRUSHES.

Road Drivers Furnish Good Sport for Big Crowd on Drive.

There was a surprisingly good turnout of road drivers yesterday on the Speedway. The heavy rains of the latter part of last week did not materially affect the drive, which was in fairly good condition. The threatening weather of the morning did not keep many away, and some excellent brushing was witnessed. With the regular Speedway matinée season only four days away, the amateur horsemen did not overexert themselves to speed their horses, but there were a few who were nothing loath to show the speed of their favorites.

E. J. La Place's new pacer, Kate Nelson, (2:10¼,) was the first to put in an appearance, and after a couple of warming-up spins Mr. La Place engaged her with Baretta, driven by H. G. Curran. Kate proved a hard nut to crack, and she came home an easy winner. George H. Huber, driving his little pacer, Gracie Pandit, took the measure of Midget, (2:20½,) driven by E. W. Knapp, in a lively tussle. Dr. Joseph Semon, with Virginia Belle, (2:20,) and A. H. Biggs, with his new purchase, Crown Prince, (2:17¼,) gave the spectators a fine exhibition, Dr. Semon bringing his mare home a length in front of the chestnut horse.

Ready Boy, (2:16½,) with William J. Clark handling the reins, gave a good beating to St. Patrick. Harry L. Toplitz drove Judge Boardman in two good brushes. In the first he trailed Lucy, driven by U. Riley, and was a couple of lengths in the rear at the finish, and in the second set-to M. Reynolds drove Fannie Q. ahead of Judge Boardman the entire length of the stretch. In her next brush Fannie Q. succumbed to the superior speed of Gracie Pandit.

Invador, 2:10, won two brushes, although neither reflected a deal of credit on the old Speedway favorite. In the first brush he got away four lengths ahead of P. O. E., driven by Ackley C. Schuyler, and Charlie Belden, 2:08½, with Walter Jermyn driving, but could finish only a length ahead of P. O. E., with Charlie Belden the same distance away from the second horse. In the second meeting between the trio the conditions were the same, Invader really losing distance in the brush. Shorty, with Mr. Bruchs driving, showed a burst of speed and lowered the colors of Minnie, driven by a trainer. Joseph F. Gibbons, with Claro, beat a new comer named Bubbling Stream. Charles Belden wound up his morning's work by taking the measure of P. O. E.

Lord Bromley, with Patrick Kennedy in the wagon, showed good form for an old-timer. His best performance was in beating Midget. He afterward lost two brushes to Fannie Q. and Lucy respectively. George L. Buckman's Phlydora showed considerable class in winning from Joseph Gibbons's Claro, and the last brush was between Ready Boy and White Wings, in which William Clark brought the former home a winner.

W. L. Ottinger drove the veteran Speedway and matinée horse Leo S., 2:12¼, but near the finish of the day's racing Leo S. bolted and raced down the stretch at a full gallop. Mounted Policeman Murphy was in waiting and made a clever stop, bringing the horse to a halt at Washington Bridge.

Baseball for Firemen's Fund.

The Police and Fire Department baseball nines will play at the American League Park this afternoon in aid of the Firemen's Memorial Fund. The contest has aroused considerable interest in political circles. Last year the policemen won by the score of 10 to 7. The Police Band will play selections during the afternoon, and Commissioners Bingham and Hayes and Fire Chief Croker are expected to witness the game.

Good Fishing at the Farms.

With a strong northwest wind blowing and in lumpy water, some three hundred tourists on the Angler had good sport at the Farms yesterday. Frank Fentman of Brooklyn carried off the honors of the day by catching a fluke weighing 11½ pounds. Sea bass were in evidence, as were mutton fish, or eel pout. The weather affected the catching of blackfish, but sea bass from two to four pounds were landed.

GRAND PRIX CAR READY.

Thomas Entry for the Classic Event Will Sail on Thursday.

Work on the Grand Prix racer that is being tuned up at Buffalo to represent America in the great French road race will be completed to-day, and Lewis Strang and J. B. Marquise, who have been up State for the past fortnight working with the new car, will return to this city this afternoon. The two men with the racing car, a practicing machine, and a touring car, will leave on the steamer Lorraine for Havre on Thursday, while with them will go Edward Young and a staff of four assistants to take care of the Thomas interest abroad. Harry S. Houpt, who will manage the lot, will sail on May 20.

The new car which the Thomas factory has built for the Grand Prix is a regulation stock car, with the exception of the bore of the cylinders. These have been increased to 6.1 inches, the maximum allowance for a four-cylinder car in the race. The normal bore is 5.75 inches, and the change increases the power of the car very decidedly.

It was expected that the machine would make a straightway speed of eighty-five miles an hour. The car has done rather better than that. It first showed eighty miles, but Strang found one or two troubles that needed correction, and gradually the speed has been increased. On the last try-out it made between ninety-two and ninety-three miles and seemed to run with great consistency. Strang expresses himself as thoroughly satisfied with the car and believes he will make a creditable showing.

Bowlers Stand by the Laws.

Delegates to the New York Bowling Association, which held its monthly meeting at the Hotel Victoria yesterday, decided that all closed tournaments, such as the Knights of Columbus, Heptasophs, Royal Arcanum, Stock Exchange, Harlem Navy, and Commercial, will be permitted to hold separate tournaments in connection with the tournament of the National Bowling Association, to be held in this city next year. In addition to this decision the Bedford Park tournament of the Bronx was ordered to distribute prizes under the penalty of suspension.

Best STOCK Car of the World.

Briarcliff Winners

¶ We notice that pretty nearly everybody won the Briarcliff Race.

¶ We DID NOT win the Briarcliff Trophy. A STEARNS Car, driven by Guy Vaughan, FINISHED THIRD, defeating ALL OTHER American cars, and nine Foreign entries, including duplicates of the cars which took first and second place.

¶ If you doubt this ask the officials. We are satisfied with the result. No other car or team of cars showed such consistent running as did the three STEARNS Cars—not a hood was lifted during the race—all finished in perfect condition.

¶ Let us show you the "Best STOCK Car of the World."

LOZIER

OPPORTUNITY

In the City of New York, where every variety of Motor Car is on exhibition and sale, there is no excuse for the prospective purchaser not getting EXACTLY WHAT HE WANTS.

Every make being represented, he can compare one with another and make intelligent choice—and right here is where THE LOZIER MOTOR CAR measures up big, for nothing else so thoroughly shows how far ahead-of-date are its many improvements in high-grade construction over other makes.

As it is the LOZIER policy to adopt immediately any newly PERFECTED device or method of construction, the purchaser does not wait an entire season for the coming of a NEW MODEL incorporating the new improvement, for it is adopted and put into practice as soon as we are satisfied that it is a REAL IMPROVEMENT, and it is likely to be on the LOZIER car you buy long before the so-called new season comes around. THIS THEN IS WORTH THINKING ABOUT.

IMMEDIATE DELIVERY IN ALL 1908 MODELS

NO AMERICAN CREW FOR OLYMPIC GAMES

Rowing Committee Fails to Raise Funds and Abandons the Plan.

NO MONEY FROM OARSMEN

Pennsylvania and New York A. C. Considering Project to Enter Independent Crew—Outlook Dark.

America will not send a representative crew to the Olympic Games regatta, to be held at Henley-on-Thames July 29. There is a bare possibility of a crew being entered, but it will not be a representative one. Although no official announcement has been made of the fact, the American Committee on Rowing—James Pilkington of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen and Julian W. Curtiss of Yale—has practically abandoned all efforts to get together an eight-oared crew.

It has been found impossible to raise sufficient funds to defray expenses. The appeal to the amateur clubs met with little or no response. Although the governing body of the amateur oarsmen approved the proposition for selecting the crew, the clubs showed no disposition to contribute unless assured that one or more members of their organization would be certain of a seat in the boat. There was considerable opposition to the plan of Messrs. Pilkington and Curtiss for selecting the members of the crew.

It was the intention of the Regatta Committee to select the best oarsmen in the college crews that will row at New London and Poughkeepsie. This would have included Yale, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Cornell, Syracuse, Wisconsin, and Georgetown. About thirty men were to be selected, and, after a series of tryouts, the necessary number of oarsmen to constitute the crew, together with the substitutes, were to have been sent. It was suggested that the crew might be strengthened by the addition of one or more amateur oarsmen should they merit a seat in the shell.

With the preference shown to collegians the rowing clubs threw cold water on the plan. They declined to help the committee unless the college oarsmen were practically eliminated. It was pointed out that as this was the first real international regatta in which the United States would have an opportunity to participate it was incumbent on the committee to send to England the strongest possible crew, and as the college crews are now in active training it was thought that they would furnish the strongest and most representative crew to meet the pick of England, Canada, Australia, France, Germany, Belgium, and Holland.

Failing to secure support for this plan Julian W. Curtiss made an appeal to the Eastern colleges. He suggested that each college guarantee $1,000 and a series of trial races be held for the purpose of selecting the best crew, it being agreed that the colleges would contribute $1,000 each, irrespective of which crew was selected. Yale and Pennsylvania each agreed to the plan, but the other colleges declined. As about $4,500 is required to defray the expenses of the trip the committee has practically abandoned its efforts to raise the necessary amount.

A movement is on foot at Pennsylvania which may result in the Quakers sending a crew to the Olympic. An inquiry was recently received in this city from Philadelphia as to whether any college crew paying its own expenses would be permitted to enter, providing no representative crew was sent. This inquiry was answered in the affirmative, and it is understood that should Pennsylvania make a good showing at the American Rowing Association Regatta at Philadelphia on May 23, the Athletic Association of the University of Pennsylvania will consider the proposition of sending the crew to England.

Some such action may be taken by the New York Athletic Club, the leading athletic organization in America. Coach Gianini of the Mercury Foot rowing forces believes he has in training one of the best crews that ever rowed under the colors of the New York Athletic Club. This view is shared by several prominent members of the club. The crew will row at Philadelphia on May 23, and in the event of it winning or making a promising showing in the eight-oared race an effort will be made to raise sufficient funds to send the crew abroad. In this event it is probable that several of the Columbia University eight-oared crew will be included.

The New York Athletic Club has already subscribed nearly $2,000 for the Olympic games, and a popular subscription among the 5,000 members would result in the amount necessary being quickly subscribed. The New York Athletic Club has always been foremost in all National movements in the interest of sport, and a crew rowing under the club colors would carry great prestige.

The funds for the field and track team are slowly coming in, although it is expected that the amount contributed will be largely augmented within the next two weeks. It is possible that the Treasurer of the American Committee on Olympic Games will have a surplus after appropriating the money for the athletic team, in which event it would not be too late to enter a crew. The men must be declared by June 1, which is seven days after the Philadelphia regatta, but the outlook for an American crew at Henley is very discouraging.

Notes of the Oarsmen.

The Nonpareil Rowing Club has entered three crews in the American Rowing Association regatta at Philadelphia on May 23.

Wisconsin University has decided to race Syracuse again at Poughkeepsie. The Wolverines are reported to be rowing strong this year.

The Grace Club will shortly begin the erection of a boathouse on the Hudson River at the foot of 116th Street. The club, which is connected with the Grace Club, will be known as the Wells Club.

The Harlem River presented a lively appearance yesterday, and a number of crews were out, despite the choppy water and chilly atmosphere. All the oarsmen are in active training for the Decoration Day regatta on the river, and the entry list for the event promises to exceed that of former years.

The annual election of the Middle States Regatta Association will be held to-night at the Harlem Casino. Nearly all the present officers will be re-elected. The applicants for the annual Labor Day regatta are Philadelphia and Washington, but it is understood that the delegates will vote for the capital.

Meherhoff of the Nassaus went out twice. He will take part in all the big regattas this year. David Roche, coach of the Lone Star Rowing Club, had his intermediate eight out twice, and afterward directed the work of the intermediate double. The De Witt Clinton schoolboys did good work under Capt. Nagle's guidance.

The clubs represented were: Nonpareil, several fours, doubles, and singles; Friendship, a four and three singles; Crescents, one four and a double; Union, junior eight, junior four, two doubles, and three singles; Wyanoke, one double and a single; Bohemian, one four and two doubles, and Atalanta, junior eight, intermediate four, and a double.

The Nassau Boat Club sent out several singles and doubles, but the club will not take an active part in rowing until after June. The junior eight of the Harlem Rowing Club, under Capt. Jack Nagle, did good work. Two doubles, a four, and several singles left the clubhouse. In addition to the eight-oared crew, the Metropolitan Rowing Club sent out three fours, half a dozen doubles, and four singles.

The regattas scheduled by the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen for this year are in excess of former years. The first event will be held at Philadelphia on May 23 and the last at Troy Sept. 8 or 9 during Old Home Week. The list of regattas follows: May 23, American Rowing Association, Philadelphia; 30, Harlem Regatta Association, New York; June 30, Schuylkill Navy, Philadelphia; 25, Harvard and Yale, New London; 27, Intercollegiate Regatta, Poughkeepsie; July 4, People's Regatta, Philadelphia; Connecticut Valley Rowing Association, Springfield, and Henley Royal Regatta at Henley-on-Thames, England; 11, Long Island Amateur Rowing Association, Flushing, (date subject to change;) 18, Hoboken Amateur Rowing Association, Hoboken; 25, New York Bay Regatta Association, New York; 27 and 28, Central States Regatta Association, Quincy, Ill.; 29, Olympic Games Regatta, Henley-on-Thames, England; 31 and Aug. 1, Canadian Association Amateur Oarsmen, St. Catherine's, Ont.; Aug. 1 and 2, Southwestern Amateur Rowing Association, St. Louis; 14 and 15, National Association Amateur Oarsmen, Springfield; Sept. 7, New England Amateur Rowing Association at Boston and Middle States Regatta Association, (place to be decided on;) 8 or 9, Old Home Regatta, Troy.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The weather has been fair in all parts of the country except California and in scattered localities on the northern plateau and Rocky Mountain regions. The temperature has returned to normal conditions east of the Rocky Mountains, except in Northwestern States, where it is still unseasonably cool.

Scattered thunder showers are indicated for Monday and Tuesday in the Mississippi and lower Ohio Valleys and generally throughout the plains States on Monday. Important temperature changes are not anticipated, although warmer weather will doubtless prevail in the lower lake region, the Middle Atlantic, and New England States.

The winds along the New England Coast will be fresh northwest; Middle Atlantic Coast, light to fresh northwest; South Atlantic Coast, light west; Gulf Coast, fresh south; on the lower lakes, fresh west; upper lakes, fresh south.

Steamers departing Monday for European ports will have light to fresh west winds and fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND TUESDAY.

New England and Eastern New York—Fair Monday and Tuesday; warmer in the interior; light to fresh west winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware—Fair Monday and Tuesday; somewhat warmer; light west winds.

Western Pennsylvania and Western New York—Fair and warmer Monday; Tuesday, partly cloudy; fresh west to southwest winds.

	1907.	1908.		1907.	1908.
3 A. M.	49	46	4 P. M.	60	51
6 A. M.	51	44	6 P. M.	63	53
9 A. M.	54	48	9 P. M.	59	50
12 M.	69	52	11 P. M.	52	50

This thermometer is 168 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 48; for the corresponding date last year it was 61; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 57.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 46; at 8 P. M. it was 52. Maximum temperature, 54 degrees at 1 P. M.; minimum, 43 degrees at 5:15 A. M. Humidity, 67 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 57 per cent. at 8 P. M.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

Investment Market Active—The May Crop Report Indications.

At a somewhat slower pace the stock market continued last week the advance under way for a month or more. Such irregularity as the movement betrayed appeared to be due mainly to profit taking on the part of small speculators who had followed the operations of their more important brethren at a respectful distance. On the part of those in actual control of the market there seemed to be no wavering and no liquidation of moment was to be traced to this source. Participation in the market by the public was entirely lacking and the business of Wall Street commission houses seems in no way to have derived substantial advantage from the sustained and active speculation in stocks. Actual news developments of the week were not of sufficient importance to explain the immediate strength of prices, which is, of course, only another way of saying that the movement is still professional and based, by those having it in charge, upon prospects rather than present conditions. Nevertheless, if to many observers the market appears to be outrunning even prospects, it must be admitted that there are a number of substantial reasons for much of the appreciation which securities have undergone. However manipulative in appearance the stock market of a day or a week may seem, it foreshadows, in the long run, as was so clearly proved by its course in the early part of 1907, subsequent developments in the business world. So far as the investment market proper is concerned, it is already bringing its reward to those who were courageous enough to form opinions and stand by them months ago. The success of the Pennsylvania offering has been made conspicuous, of course, but many of the smaller bond houses in the financial district have succeeded in disposing of numerous issues of securities at good prices. The sale of the Interborough 6 per cent. notes in such fashion as to yield a bid of 2¾ per cent. to members of the underwriting syndicate was a noteworthy event. The prospect of such profits will draw out funds from concealment more rapidly than any other inducement, and since the money secured by the various corporations offering the bonds goes either to pay bills and thus relieve the credit situation, or to initiate further improvements and betterments and thus employ labor and the products of mills, the effect is widely beneficial, and, in fact, the preliminary to the return of trade activity. Good crops seem fairly well assured, at least so far as they can be at this season of the year. Presidential perplexities are slowly dissolving and there is every reason to receive unquestioningly, so far as the investment market is concerned, the views of so experienced an observer as Mr. Jacob H. Schiff, who, on his return from a long European vacation last week, said: "Both England and France are ready to buy good securities to some extent. It looks, however, as if we were going to have a very considerable investment demand at home, and this, for some time to come, will run entirely into the best class of bonds and not into securities of a speculative character." On Friday business in bonds ran above $8,000,000, making the day the biggest since January, 1905.

Evidence of improvement in the general trade situation comes to hand slowly. As one section begins to feel the touch of reviving demand another is running entirely out of orders, and the result is conflicting reports. Bank clearings, however, continue to show improvement at many inland cities, and in others hold their own in surprising degree. The situation is reflected also in the railroad world, where many important lines are beginning to report smaller decreases from last year's gross figures, although inequality is also apparent here. The output of iron by all furnaces in the month of April fell under the March product by some 75,000 tons, and was practically one-half that of the same month a year ago, which is probably a fair measure of the condition of affairs in the iron and steel trade. Representatives of the iron makers meeting in this city during the week decided to make no change in prices in spite of the small demand. Of exceptional interest was the decision reached during the week by the Presidents of the Eastern railroads to increase rates on certain classes of goods somewhat later in the year. It is a novel way in which to meet declining business, but is defended by the railroads on the grounds that while everything else was going up in the recent era of prosperity rates remained stationary, or even declined. Opposition on the part of shippers is developing, and in Congress the movement is also attracting notice. As an alternative to reducing the wages of employes on the eve of a Presidential campaign it, of course, recommends itself from the point of view of politics. Other interesting developments of the week in the railroad situation were the rescinding of an order by the Texas Railroad Commission which would have compelled one of the lines of that State to expend several millions of dollars on improvements at an unfavorable moment, and an amicable agreement between the State authorities of Oklahoma and the Rock Island system over questions long at issue, and at one time full of promise for trouble. If this spirit of fairness is to become general among States hitherto disposed to harry the railroads it is a most important fact.

On Friday the Government published its customary monthly report on the condition of the crops, this particular document bringing the situation up to May 1. The condition of Winter wheat is placed at 89, which compares with 91.3 on April 1, 82.9 on May 1 a year ago, and a ten-year average of 85. The acreage abandoned ran to 1,318,000 acres, less than half the "Winter killed" acreage a year ago, and the total area in Winter wheat is still 1,620,000 acres above the area at that time. On this acreage and with this condition the indicated Winter wheat crop is 461,000,000 bushels, which is some 32,000,000 bushels under the indication of April 1, but 56,000,000 bushels over the prospective yield at this time a year ago. The wet Spring has enabled the plant to make excellent root growth, and with favorable conditions from this time on there is every reason to look forward to an excellent harvest.

The banks of this city paid into the Treasury before the close of the week some $15,000,000 of the $20,000,000 of Government deposits recalled at this time. In spite of this drain and the heavy financing of the week, money markets continue to rule easy, and the promise is for a continuance of this ease. One striking illustration of it is to be found in the sale of $37,000,000 of city revenue warrants on a basis of about 3⅝ per cent., as against the 6 per cent. on similar warrants last Fall. No additional engagements of gold for shipment to Paris were made during the week, but, following its weakness of the preceding week, the foreign exchange market developed strength and at the week's end stood near the gold point. It is worth noting that in its weekly statement on Thursday the Bank of France reported an addition of $12,000,000 to its holdings of gold, and that it now has nearly $50,000,000 more gold than it held at the opening of the year. Nevertheless the Bank continues to draw gold from London, and the wants of Germany still seem unsatisfied. Money continues to flow here in quantity from the interior, and falling revenues also make the Government contribute to the accumulations since its expenditures continue unabated.

THE STEEL TRADE POSITION.

Keeping Buyers to Contracts Promises Litigation—Tin Plate Mills Busy.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., May 10.—One of the distinct changes in the method of doing business in the sale of iron and steel has been that of holding buyers to their contracts. In former years, when an order was placed, the buyer took the liberty of canceling the contract at pleasure. Since the decline of business last year the producers have refused to accept cancellations. One large concern sought to test such a procedure on an order for coke. The producer entered suit in the Philadelphia courts, and the case was to have been tried this week. It was settled before it came to a hearing, and the buyers decided to accept the coke at last year's prices as ordered.

A Mahoning Valley furnace has acres of pig iron piled up in stock near its plant. This was ordered last year at the prevailing high price. The furnace company insists that every ton contracted for will have to be taken as ordered. Suits will result. The United States Steel Corporation has taken the same stand, and has refused to cancel any contracts, though agreeing to withhold deliveries.

The first iron ore contract to be placed this year was for 50,000 tons and shipments have begun on the order. The sale was made at last year's prices. The ore producers are so few in number that it is not difficult for them to get together. All were represented at the New York meeting except Corrigan, McKinney & Co. This concern has always refused to enter into any price agreement.

In spite of the falling off in business every one is expecting a revival. Reports from all sections of the country indicate suspense. There is a general clamor among consumers for lower prices. Only products protected by the larger steel companies have held their own. Where the small manufacturers predominate there has been a decided reduction.

The phenomenal feature of the steel market is the demand for tin plate. Black sheets are in fair demand and about 69 per cent. of the country's capacity is at work.

The Allegheny Steel Company, a sheet plant, started in full this week at Tarentum, Pa., which will be followed by the Interstate Steel Company of the same place next week. These two concerns employ more than 1,000 skilled men. The coal mines of this district which have not been operating steadily are receiving orders to resume. The railroads stocked up liberally with coal last Winter, fearing a strike. The stocks are declining, and all the large railroads are in the market for coal. There has been a decline in the price of coke of 5 cents per ton, with operations the same as last month.

The Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Plate Workers is in annual convention at Youngstown, Ohio. The organization will not make any demands for higher wages, but will be satisfied to enter into renewals of present agreements. The scales expire July 1. There will be no labor troubles at that time from present indications.

ARGENTINA SENDS US OATS.

Cargo Brought in Last Week Profitable Despite Duty.

The arrival of a cargo of oats from Argentina last week is said to be the first importation of a cereal into this country, except in the case of some special varieties of grain which are brought in as delicacies.

While, of course, grain authorities do not look upon this incident as of any special significance in relation to the position of the United States as a surplus grain country, it is expected that shipments of this character will become more and more frequent in the future. The oats which were brought in last week were for the use of a breakfast food manufactory which has a large trade abroad, and the firm undoubtedly calculated in its profits the possibility of getting a rebate on the duty of 15 cents per bushel, which is the tariff on oats. Even without a rebate, however, it was said by the commission house which made the shipment that at 58 cents a bushel in Chicago there was a profit in bringing in oats from the South American republic.

Argentine corn, or maize as it is called in the European trade, is rapidly taking the same high competitive place with our cereals as Argentine wheat. Maize has been profitably carried from Argentina to Cuba, and trade authorities expect that importations will be made to this country in the next year there is a short crop.

The remarkable growth of the Argentine grain area still continues, and has a larger possible extension still ahead of it than any other section of the grain belt of either continent. According to statistics prepared by the Department of Agriculture, Argentina and Cana are the only two countries which will rapidly increase their grain exports. Chile and Uruguay, however, are factors in the South American grain trade. The three republics together produced 178,636,000 bushels of wheat in 1907, which was an increase of 59,523,000 bushels over 1903. It is expected that the yield of 1908 will double the figures of five years before. Authorities predict that South America will be raising 400,000,000 bushels of wheat in the course of the next five years, and of this amount it is calculated nearly 325,000,000 bushels will be available for export. European consumption requires an average of about 11,000,000 bushels to be imported weekly.

LONDON MARKET DEPRESSED.

City Takes Bad View of Governmental Financial Plans.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 10.—Local markets were adversely affected last week both by home and foreign news. The Indian unrest depressed consols and other gilt-edged securities, and although Mr. Asquith's budgetary proposals were highly commended by such authorities as the editor of The Economist, the city generally takes the worst possible view of governmental finance.

Consequently, despite the ease of the money market, the business of the Stock Exchange has been restricted and prices are down. The American market has been irregular, though on the whole, following the Pennsylvania bond issue and in expectation that the Rothschilds and Barings will also take a hand in the Union Pacific issue next week, events which are of the highest importance as indicative of returning European confidence in the American situation, the general tendency has been one of improvement.

The present abundance of money shows every sign of a continuance for some weeks at least.

PARIS PRICES HIGHER.

Good News Regarding American Railways Exerts Beneficial Influence.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 10.—Good news from America exerted a beneficial influence this past week on Bourse prices. All departments were generally higher, and trading was more active than it has been for a long time.

An excellent impression was made by the success of the Pennsylvania issue, strengthened by the announcement of more borrowing by the Union Pacific.

French financiers believe that this presages a fresh era of industrial activity.

GLOOM ON BERLIN BOERSE.

Fears of Aggravated Business Depression Leads to Dumping of Stocks.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 10.—Renewed fears of an aggravated business depression plunged the Boerse into gloom again last week. The pessimistic feeling was supported by tidings of an Indian revolution and by a rumor that the Government was thinking of raising fresh revenue by taxing dividends.

Numerous shares were dumped, but they found on the whole ready purchase, thanks mainly to the comparative ease of money in the London and the Berlin market.

The public gave continued evidence during the week of an inclination to resume buying on a gradual scale. The upward tendency of New York was again greeted with skepticism, being regarded as an anti-bear manoeuvre. Trading in shipping shares was active in consequence of heavy sellings on reports of decreasing emigration.

American rails escaped the general gloom and closed with slight advances over the previous week's prices.

BROKERS AND THEIR CLIENTS' SECURITIES

Explanation of the Precautions Taken to Avoid the Chance of Mistakes.

CUSTOMERS PROTECTED

Reputable Houses Indignant at the Reflections on Wall Street Honesty in Bankrupt's Alleged Statement.

Following the statement attributed to the head of a failed Stock Exchange house, many of whose customers' securities were found to have been hypothecated, that this practice was "wrong, but the custom in Wall Street," a Stock Exchange official came to the rescue of the outraged traditions of honor in the Street by denying that any such practices as had been laid at the door of the failed firm were common or even tolerated.

Indisputable evidence was found in the books of both recent failures in the Street that securities owned by clients of the brokers had been pledged either in bank loans or with other houses, or had, in some cases, been taken from one customer for delivery to another.

Just what does happen in a reputable house when securities are left with the firm for safe keeping or sent in for transfer is described by the office manager of a large firm.

"Such securities," he said, "are treated as simply being with the firm for safe keeping, and the rule is to mark them off the customers' account, place them in a sealed envelope marked with the customer's name, and hold them for orders.

"And on securities coming into a Wall Street office 'for transfer,' so well understood is it that a house should not use nor touch these that the receipt of the security is not even blottered nor journalized nor entered on the customer's current account. Instead the detail is entered in the transfer book kept by every house for transferring stocks and 'put into transfer' in the same book, avoiding any mixing up of the security with the current business, and equally, technically, and absolutely preventing the use of such security in loans, because there is no existence of the stock showing on the blotter of the day, and the delivery of such stock into bank loans would throw the daily stock balance sheets out of balance."

Stock Exchange rules, of course, not only do not tolerate any liberties with the property of customers, but even provide that goods bought shall be delivered promptly. One of the difficulties which confronted customers of the failed house whose senior partner is said to have defended the things that were done in his office on the ground of "custom," was to get stocks which they had paid for, or which had been sent in for transfer. The true condition of the firm might have been learned earlier than it was if these customers had reported the circumstances to the Stock Exchange. In that event the brokers would have summarily been investigated by the Stock Exchange authorities and been given a day in which to make deliveries.

While legal authorities agree that Stock Exchange houses have a perfect right to include in their loans securities which have been put up by customers as collateral, there has been a recent decision to the effect that a client of a brokerage house is entitled to his collateral immediately upon tendering his balance. One of the questions which lawyers for customers of the houses which failed recently will have to thresh out is whether their clients are entitled to get back their collateral from the receivers upon the payment of the amounts loaned.

In the cases where loans have been made on securities owned outright by the clients of the failed houses legal authorities contend that the real owners must be the losers where the loans have been closed out. A registered bond is held in law in the same light as money, and is negotiable without recovery. Securities which are negotiable, however, cease to be recoverable in the eyes of the law from innocent purchasers when there has been no larceny in their going out of the hands of their owners. In the case of Charles Coster, who disposed of securities belonging to his clients, it is held that the loss must fall on the owners of the stocks and bonds disposed of, since it is a principle of law that when the loss involved in a theft must fall on one of two innocent parties it is the one who made the theft possible who must suffer. The owners of the lost securities were the agents by which the theft was made possible, it is contended having placed their securities in the broker's hands, thereby running the risk of his dishonesty.

Ask Forfeiture of Road's Franchise.

The Central Federated Union adopted yesterday resolutions submitted by the Housesmiths' Union requesting the Board of Estimate to forfeit all the rights, of the New York & Port Chester Railroad Company, claiming that when the Central Federated Union favored the franchise it did so on the belief that the Port Chester Road was to be a competitor of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, which it is not.

HEAVY BOND TRADING.

Friday's Dealings on the Exchange Exceeded Any Since Jan. 19, 1905.

The dealings in the bond department of the New York Stock Exchange last Friday amounted to $8,219,000. This was the largest single day's bond trading on the Exchange this year, and the largest in fact since Jan. 19, 1905, when the dealings aggregated $8,291,500. The most active bonds last Friday were the new Pennsylvania Railroad Consolidated 4s and the New York City bonds. The chief dealings on Jan. 19, 1905, to which date it is necessary to go back to find a larger day's dealings than last Friday's, were in Union Pacific Convertibles, Rock Island bonds, Chicago Terminal Transfer bonds, and Japanese bonds.

The very heavy dealings last Friday were incidental to a generally active bond market, the total for the week being the largest recorded in a considerable period. The activity in bonds has not been confined by any means to the Stock Exchange, for bond houses report a very active demand for high grade bonds, and in many instances the complaint is heard that the demand so far exceeds the supply that it is difficult to fill all the orders which find their way to the bond houses.

It is natural that this condition should have engenedered a feeling of hopefulness in bond circles. It is a matter of general comment in the financial district that the bond houses are now in better position than they have been in a long time. They have for the most part, it is said, cleared up the lines of bonds which they had been obliged to carry for many months, and are in a position to make fresh purchases of bonds, a fact which is important for the many railroads and other corporations which have Treasury bonds which they desire to sell.

INTERBOROUGH NOTES.

Company Realized 95 on Its Recent $25,000,000 Issue.

The syndicate formed by J. P. Morgan & Co. to underwrite the $25,000,000 three year 6 per cent. note issue of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company made one of the quickest profits realized in such an undertaking in Wall Street, and this without the syndicate members being called upon to put up a single dollar.

The checks representing the profit of the syndicate were mailed to the participants last week. They amounted to about 2¾ per cent. From this it was at first inferred in the financial district that the Interborough Rapid Transit Company had realized about 96½ on its notes, but it was learned later that in addition to the profit realized by the syndicate participants the compensation allowed to the bankers for the formation and management of the syndicate was 2 per cent., which brought the total commission paid by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, including expenses, up to 5 per cent. In other words the company had to pay $1,250,000 for the flotation of its $25,000,000 bond issue. The profit realized by the bankers on this transaction was about $500,000, and the syndicate members made in addition about $685,000, which with estimated expenses of one-quarter of 1 per cent., or about $65,000, represents the division of the $1,250,000 commission paid by the company.

BOSTON COPPER GOSSIP.

Baltic Lode Said to Show in Atlantic Shaft—Outputs for April.

BOSTON, May 9.—There seems to be no longer room for doubt that Atlantic has struck the Baltic lode on the twelfth level in the Section 16 shaft. Three feet of heavy copper rock has been encountered.

The showing in the Copper Range report that the cost of last year's copper was 9.58 cents for all the companies puts the corporation well up in the list of low-cost producers. Each mine is earning well even at the present price of the metal, and the conditions and the outlook at each are excellent. The percentage of copper to the ton for all mines was 21.62 pounds, against 22.35 in the previous year, and the tonnage was 85,000 greater.

The March earnings of North Butte were $6 per share. The company has increased its acreage to 200 acres.

Old Dominion is now operating all its furnaces, and this month's output is expected to be again normal.

Cumberland-Ely has begun shipments of ore to the Steptoe smelter. Preliminary tests of the ore are said to be satisfactory.

The British Columbia Mine, which has been idle since November, is about resuming operations.

From the Junction shaft of Superior and Pittsburg one carload is now being shipped daily. The grade is high, sometimes averaging 24 per cent.

President Amster, just returned from Arizona, says that Shannon should produce 20,000,000 pounds of copper this year, at a cost of 11 cents, and that the reserves are as large as ever.

Some copper outputs for April in tons, with comparisons:

TO THE HOLDERS OF BONDS SECURED BY THE FIRST MORTGAGE OF THE

Fulton Street Railroad Company

Dated November 1st, 1895.

YOU ARE HEREBY INFORMED that the Receivers of the New York City Railway Company, and of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, who have been operating the property of the Fulton Street Railroad Company under a trackage agreement, have given notice of their election, as of May 1, 1908, to disaffirm that contract and to give up the operation of the road.

You are therefore requested to send to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, 28 Nassau Street, the Trustee of the said mortgage, your names and addresses, and the amount of your holdings, with a view to such co-operation among the bondholders as may be necessary for the proper protection of your interests. You are advised that immediate action is essential, as the receivers have withdrawn from all responsibility for the further operation of the railroad and are in a position at any time to discontinue the service.

MR. WARBURG'S PLAN FOR A CENTRAL BANK

Summary of Banker's Outline of a Bill for an Institution Under Popular Control.

THE NATION A STOCKHOLDER

Gold and Short Time Commercial Bills the Basis for Note Issue—Harmonious Contraction and Expansion.

Paul M. Warburg, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., has prepared, apropos of current events, an outline of legislation suitable for enacting the principles of banking which attracted so much attention when originally published in THE NEW YORK TIMES'S ANNUAL FINANCIAL REVIEW. The bill itself is too long and technical for general reading, but the outline of principles accompanying it is suited for the consideration of all who follow the subject at all, and is abstracted here almost in the author's own words, with a reference to the pamphlet for fuller details by those who wish them.

Mr. Warburg does not profess that his bill is a perfect legal document, nor that it could not be modified in details, although the entire current of events has been in the direction of his recommendations since their original publication as the epitome of the banking experience of many nations and generations. The entire purport of his present publication is to show what a comparatively small step further it would be necessary to go before enjoying that central bank organization which all students of the situation have placed first in their estimation, although they may have gone on to recommend something else as most practical, although second best.

Mr. Warburg observes that it is of minor importance for this preliminary draft whether the country shall be divided into twenty or thirty "bank association districts," or whether there shall be twenty or forty members of the Board of Managers. These eminently practical and political questions will have to be carefully worked out upon full consideration of all sides of the question. This draft of a bill merely purports to show the lines that such an act, according to Mr. Warburg's ideas, would have to follow.

There are, however, certain facts and fundamental principles, he says, which must be clearly recognized and rigidly observed in dealings with this question. They are as follows:

A Plan of Gradual Growth.

First—The United States must finally develop some kind of a central bank system, giving the country an elastic currency based on modern commercial bills payable in gold: a system similar in principle, if not exactly alike in form, to those of the important European Central Banks.

Second—While this must be the final aim, our political, legal, and economic conditions preclude the possibility of creating at present an institution with powers and efficiency equal to those of the European Government banks.

Third—We shall, therefore, have to be satisfied to advance slowly, fully realizing that what we create now can only be an initial step. But it must be a step in the right direction, a measure which has clearly in view the final aim and which does not neglect any of the fundamental principles on which modern central bank systems have been erected in other countries, and which have already stood the test of storm and stress.

Fourth—From this point of view no measure can be acceptable:

A—Which bases currency on long time obligations like the Aldrich bill.

(Short obligations not exceeding three months and payable in gold form the only sound basis for an elastic currency. Only by having daily maturing paper and by collecting or renewing it according to the requirements of the moment, can the Central Bank control the situation and meet its own gold obligations.)

B—No measure can be acceptable which would tend still further to decentralize the power of issuing notes, and which would vest this power in banks doing a general commercial business. The issuing of notes must be centralized into a few organs, or, if feasible, into one organ—a plan which will insure effective expansion and contraction of currency and concentration of reserves. Such a note-issuing bank, in order to be safe beyond question and in order to provide safeguards against any abuse of its vast power through favoritism or speculation, must be carefully restricted in its scope of business. A note-issuing bank in this country should be exclusively a bank of the banks.

C—No measure would be acceptable which vests the powers of a central bank in political officers alone, as is the case under our present system. That power, clearly defined, ought to be vested in political officers and business men combined, in a way that would render impossible any political or financial abuse.

Inflation Guarded Against.

D—No measure would be acceptable which would allow the Government or the banks to issue additional notes without creating at the same time a special gold reserve, composed partly of gold and partly of short term gold obligations. Without such a provision we should create inflation and cause a dangerous weakening of our present standard.

E—A bank rediscounting with a central bank receives a loan for a given period, and upon this advance it may safely base its own commitments for the accommodations of its customers. The issuing of notes against its assets by a National bank means the creation of additional depositors who may withdraw their money any day like any other depositor. It is unsafe for a bank to accommodate its customers on resources which may be withdrawn at any time. This is a most important and fundamental point.

Mr. Warburg goes on to say:

While carefully observing all the principles outlined in the foregoing, the bill, which is herewith submitted, would, if enacted into law, not interfere at all with existing business habits or institutions. For the time being, its effect would be nothing but the establishment of a central issue department with authority to emit additional notes against certificates of guaranty (twin brothers to the Clearing House certificates) and against certain foreign bills of exchange.

But this central issue department, or central bank, as I boldly call it, is endowed with all those inherent qualities, in a very embryonic form, which through gradual evolution may make it in years to come, if and as the people decide that they want it, a modern and effective central bank.

Nobody denies the fact that our financial machinery is old-fashioned and entirely insufficient. But—to use a metaphor—while our tracks have the wrong gauge, while our rails are too light and our machines too old, and while our lines are disconnected and lack centralization, we could not tear up the whole system at once, nor could we stop increasing our facilities necessary to meet the immediate needs of the country. A wise manager, however, will conceive a clear plan of the final shape that his railroad must take, and he will plan every detail of new construction so that it will be a useful part of the future system, and so that IT WILL LEAD TOWARD THE FINAL GOAL INSTEAD OF LEADING FURTHER AWAY FROM IT.

Mr. Warburg asks those on whom the words Central Bank still act as a red rag on a bull to study this bill carefully and without prejudice—if they can—and declares that they will find not only that this central issue department is surrounded by so many safeguards as to make it more conservative than our present system, but that even Andrew Jackson, were he alive, would not be likely to oppose it.

Explanation of the Bill.

The bill is divided into two sections: Section "A" deals with the organization of the Central Bank; Section "B" provides for the creation of twenty district associations with power to issue "certificates of guaranty" to its members against collateral, specifically defined by the bill. The "certificates," which shall be the joint obligation of all the banks comprising such district association, may be used as security for advances to be taken from the Central Bank by a member of the district association.

The bank district associations are organized on lines similar to those of Mr. Fowler's redemption districts, with this difference, however, that the Fowler bill makes it obligatory for every National bank to join a redemption district association, and to participate in a general broad guaranty, without collateral, of notes and deposits of other banks; while the bill, as here proposed, not only makes it a voluntary act for each bank (State or National) to join the association, but provides that the guaranty shall be limited to individul transactions, each of which will be secured by collateral security carefully scrutinized in every case.

This would seem to be a more conservative and a more businesslike proposition.

A commission of one-quarter of 1 per cent. per month upon the face value of the "certificate of guaranty" is to be paid by the bank taking out such certificate to the association issuing the certificate.

The powers of the Central Bank are pratically limited to two kinds of transactions; it may deposit money or make advances against certificates of guaranty, at rates to be published from time to time; and it may buy certain short and long bills on England, France, and Germany. No bill purchased by the Central Bank and no advance or deposit made by the Central Bank may exceed a period of three months.

Purchase of Foreign Bills.

The power to purchase these foreign bills is necessary, Mr. Warburg says, to insure contraction of circulation in times of ease, when the notes can be withdrawn from circulation and the funds of the bank can be invented primarily in foreign bills, easily to be rediscounted, and turned into a gold reserve, to be released and used whenever circumstances call for it.

This is the method adopted by European Government banks, and any currency legislation which neglects to provide for special funds to be exclusively reserved for investment and handling in a similar way is unscientific and at the same time dangerous.

It is provided that the stock of the Central Bank shall be owned by the United States for the next ten years. In the eventuality that Congress should deem it advisable, after that period, to have the stock owned by the people, it is provided that the stockholders shall receive the first 4 per cent., and that of any surplus beyond this sum three-quarters shall go to the Government, in consideration of its guaranteeing the notes of the bank, and one-quarter to the stockholders. This provision is suggested to meet the criticism of those opposed to a Central Bank, for fear that any group of capitalists might buy control of such a bank and use it for its own purposes.

The restrictions placed upon the bank as to the transactions upon which it may enter render impossible any abuse of power by engaging in any illegitimate kind of business, and the limitation of the income from the stock eliminates any inducement to buy the stock for speculative purposes. The stock would become widely scattered all over the country as a Government investment, (as in Germany, where a similar method has been adopted.) It is proposed to create an additional safeguard by the regulations affecting the election of the board and of the management of the bank. The Secretary of the Treasury, the Controller of the Currency, the Treasurer of the United States, six members of Congress, and the twenty Chairmen of the district Associations would be members ex officio. The stockholders (for the time being, the Government) would appoint twelve additional members This board would appoint a salaried Governor of the Central Bank.

Mr. Warburg concludes as follows:

In this manner the danger of political domination as well as the danger of control by business men, singly or combined, is completely eliminated. Even the most vivid imagination, it is believed, will fail to find any menace in the modified form of a Central Bank, as here proposed.

SURPLUS FUNDS INTO CITY BONDS

Increase of $14,000,000 in Reserves, with Small Cash Gain, Shows Such Investment.

MANY ARE SOLD ABROAD

Short Term Notes Find More Favor Than Bonds with Institutions Here and in Paris.

An interesting feature of the sale last week by Controller Metz of $38,000,000 of six month 6 per cent. revenue bonds is the fact that one large block of the bonds was taken by the Pennsylvania Railroad for the temporary investment of part of the proceeds of the $40,000,000 bonds sold to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the Rothschilds and Baring Brothers & Co. in London, and that another large block was purchased as an investment by one of the large trust companies of this city. The statement of the combined trust companies and State banks published last Saturday showed an increase of about $14,000,000 in the reserve of these institutions outside of the Clearing House, although only a relatively small increase in cash was shown. It is believed that the bulk of the increase in this reserve represents these purchases of city revenue bonds by the trust companies, these bonds being among those which the trust companies are allowed to count as part of their reserve.

The $38,000,000 of revenue bonds sold by the city last week is probably the largest amount of such bonds ever sold by the city at any one time with the single exception of the one, two, and three year revenue bonds which the city placed last Fall with the syndicate formed by J. P. Morgan & Co., the First National Bank, and the National City Bank. This syndicate took all told $65,000,000 of 6 per cent. revenue bonds, and later disposed of them all to banks and other institutions and to some investors here and abroad.

As in the case of the previous issue of revenue bonds, a fair proportion of those put out last week was placed abroad through international banking houses in this city. These revenue bonds of the City of New York are a favorite investment with some Paris bankers, who nearly always take some part of the large issues of revenue bonds made by the city. These bonds of course are sold in anticipation of the receipt by the city of taxes, which will be paid later in the year. They are universally regarded as a prime investment, and even those who look with less favor upon New York City bonds than they formerly did because of the great increase in the city's debt do not find similar objection to the short-term bonds put out by the city. They have in relation to long-term issues by the city the same advantages as are possessed by short-term bonds or notes issued by the railroads. Issues of this kind find a ready market when long-term issues cannot be sold to any advantage.

The declining tendency in money rates and the difficulty which banks and trust companies now experience in getting satisfactory loans at fair rates of interest has naturally stimulated the demand for city revenue bonds. This feature of the situation made it possible for Controller Metz to get some of the money which he raised last week at as low a rate as 3¼ per cent., while most of the $38,000,000 was had at 3¾ per cent., which was the highest rate paid by the city last week. This compares with the 6 per cent. interest which the city paid last Fall during the period of financial disturbances.

The placing of this large lot of revenue bonds was followed by a sharp advance in the city's long-term bonds. The buying of these issues, so far as it was in any way related to the sale of the revenue bonds, was based on the belief that the raising of this large amount of money at this time is likely to keep the city out of the bond market for some little time to come. Another explanation offered for the great activity and strength of New York City issues last week was that they were being accumulated in anticipation of legislation by this Congress which would make these bonds available as security for circulation.

TO SEEK ANTARCTIC FOSSILS.

Crew of the Brig Daisy Will Do Research Work on Desolation Island.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 10.—The only vessel in the world which makes regular trips to far-away Desolation Island, or Kergulen Island, as it is put down on the charts, in the Antarctic Ocean, will have a more important mission than the mere gathering of sea elephant oil, her usual cargo, when she starts on her next cruise early this week.

The persistency of naturalists and scientific men has at last won, and Capt. Cleveland of the brig Daisy has promised to lend his endeavors to the work of revealing to the world the bird, fish, animal, and vegetable life of the hertofore unfamiliar antarctic region.

Capt. Cleveland has been commissioned by the heads of several museums to collect such botainical, mineral, and zoological specimens as he can, and to bring back as many specimens as possible to the various museums. The Daisy has been stored with preservatives for the various kinds of life, and sufficient money has been advanced by the scientists to insure the project being attractive and profitable for the owner and men of the brig.

The scientists who are responsible for this effort to bring about a greater knowledge of the antarctic region, of which little is known at the present time, are Prof. Bumpus of the American Museum of New York, Prof. Lucas of the Brooklyn Institute, and Prof. Lull of the Peabody Museum at Yale.

The island, which it is believed was once covered with great forests, is now buried under lava, and underneath this stratum the men of the Daisy have at various times unearthed huge skeletons of strange animals. The curators of the Northern museums are curious to learn if something new to modern research will not be revealed if Capt. Cleveland can bring home some of these fossils, at least in part.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

Public Notice.

Water Service, Borough of Manhattan.

On Saturday, May 16, 1908, at 8 A. M., the 48-inch water main in Central Park West, which supplies the low pressure section in the Borough of Manhattan south of Eighty-first Street, will be shut off in order to connect on to the new 48-inch water main laid in Central Park West, from Eighty-first to Sixty-second Street. All that section of the City between Eighty-first and Twelfth Streets, and between Central Park West and the North River, will be affected by this shut-off, and the pressure in the mains will be materially reduced. The 48-inch main will probably remain shut off until Monday morning, May 18, 1908.

PROPOSALS.

NEW YORK SUPREME COURT, 9TH JUdicial District, Westchester County.—KENSICO RESERVOIR, Section No. 10.

Notice of application for the appointment of Commissioners of Appraisal.

Public notice is hereby given that it is the intention of the Corporation Counsel of The City of New York to make application to the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the appointment of Commissioners of Appraisal under Chapter 724 of the Laws of 1905, as amended. Such application will be made to the Supreme Court at a Special Term thereof to be held in and for the 9th Judicial District at the Court House in the Village of White Plains, Westchester County, N. Y., on the 20th day of June, 1908, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard. The object of such application is to obtain an order of the Court appointing three disinterested and competent freeholders, one of whom shall reside in the County of New York and at least one of whom shall reside in the county where the real estate hereinafter described is situated, to act as Commissioners of Appraisal under said act and discharge all the duties conferred by the said act and the acts amendatory thereof upon such Commissioners of Appraisal for the purpose of providing an additional supply of pure and wholesome water for the City of New York.

The real estate sought to be taken or affected is situated in the Town of Mount Pleasant, County of Westchester and State of New York.

The following is a description of the real estate to be acquired in fee, together with a reference to the date and place of filing of the map.

All those certain pieces or parcels of real estate situated in the Town of Mount Pleasant, County of Westchester and State of New York, shown on a map entitled "Southern Aqueduct Department. Section No. 10. Board of Water Supply of the City of New York. Map of real estate situated in the Town of Mount Pleasant, County of Westchester and State of New York, to be acquired by the City of New York under the provisions of Chapter 724 of the Laws of 1905, as amended, for the construction of Kensico Reservoir and appurtenances, from Barrett St. to the vicinity of High St.," which map was filed in the office of the Register of the County of Westchester, at White Plains, New York, on the 6th day of April, 1908, as Map Number 1792, which parcels are bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the southwest corner of Parcel No. 796 at the point of intersection of the centre lines of Pleasant Place and Commercial Avenue, in the northerly line of real estate section No. 9, Southern Aqueduct Department, the map of which section was filed in the office of the Register of the County of Westchester, at White Plains, N. Prospects of the Bronx Discussed by Its Leading Men.

The future of the Bronx is inseparable from the growth of Manhattan. THE NEW YORK TIMES, Sunday, May 17, will devote considerable space to the residential and commercial prospects of the neighboring borough, its recent development, its beauties, and its influence as part of Greater New York. Its proximity makes the Bronx easily first in the line of Manhattan's extension. Among the features of interest will be a map showing new rapid transit lines, the proposed railroad lines, the Bronx as a large home centre by reason of the large number of small houses under construction. Some of the contributions:

- "Past, Present, and Future of Bronx," By Albert E. Davis, Ex-President North Side Board of Trade.
- "Bronx Park System," By Park Commissioner Joseph I. Berry.
- "Public Schools," By Commissioner Thomas W. Higgins.
- "Borough Administration," By President Louis J. Haffen.
- "Realty Values," By J. Clarence Davies.
- "Building Operations," By James A. Wells.
- "The Botanical Gardens," By Dr. N. L. Britton.
- "Piano Industry in the Bronx," By W. P. H. Bacon.
- "Shipbuilding Industry in the Bronx," By J. J. Amory, President of the Gas Engine and Power Company.

GET MRS. VANDERBILT SPEEDING HER AUTO

Despite Her Protests a County Constable Arrests Her Chauffeur and Delays a Dinner.

NEMESIS NABS ONE MACHINE

Caught Stuck in the Mud After Escaping Police Trap at New Rochelle—Many Arrests.

Although yesterday was chilly there was a goodly number of automobilists on the highways and byways in the vicinity of the city. There was also a goodly number of police and constables. Result: A goodly number of arrests.

Among those who got into trouble was Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, whose machine was held up in Hartsdale. Mrs. Vanderbilt and a party of friends were on their way to dine in Mount Kisco, where they had a dinner engagement. On Central Avenue in Hartsdale Constable A. P. Townsend stopped their machine. He said that he had timed the touring car, and that it was going at the rate of twenty-eight miles an hour.

When he told Mrs. Vanderbilt that he would have to take the chauffeur before Judge Glover at Ardsley, seven miles away, Mrs. Vanderbilt became indignant. She said that she was in a hurry to reach Mount Kisco, where she was going to dine at 1 o'clock. It was then 12:30. She told the constable that it would be an outrage to take the machine to Ardsley. The constable, however, saw his duty only one way.

Mrs. Vanderbilt then called up Sheriff Charles M. Neef of Westchester County at his home in Pleasantville on the telephone and explained her predicament. The Sheriff told her that he had nothing to do with constables. He suggested to the constable, however, that as Mrs. Vanderbilt was in such a hurry he might accept a cash deposit from her and allow the party to go on.

The constable, however, wouldn't do this. So to Ardsley went the whole party, where Judge Glover paroled the chauffeur in the custody of Mrs. Vanderbilt on her promise to have him in court on Thursday for a hearing.

Auto President Arrested.

Paul La Croix, auto racer and Vice President of the Renault Freres Automobile Company of 1,776 Broadway, was arrested in the evening, charged with having driven his machine at the rate of twenty-two and one-half miles an hour on the 155th Street viaduct. While Policeman Gibson, who made the arrest, was escorting the machine to the West 152d Street station he says that Walter C. Allen, Secretary of the New York Taxicab Company, followed in another racing car and protested against the arrest of Mr. La Croix. The policeman ordered Mr. Allen to move on, and when he failed to do so the policeman arrested him and took him to the station house on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Both prisoners were bailed by Antoine Lablanche, proprietor of the Hotel Brevoort and the Hotel Lafayette. In Mr. La Croix's machine were his wife and Count Jean de Montaigne of Paris.

Edward A. Lyons of 276 West Eighty-sixth Street was arrested by Bicycle Policeman Devanny of the West 152d Street Station on Broadway, near 173d Street, charged with having traveled at the rate of 22½ miles an hour. Alexander Epting of 229 East 84th Street, chauffeur for Isidor Wormser, Jr., was arrested at St. Nicholas Avenue and 127th Street by Policeman McGowan of the West 125th Street Station, charged with going twenty-five miles an hour. In the car were Isidor Wormser, Jr., his wife and his brother, Sidney.

In New Rochelle, as usual, the police were out in force. Yesterday their principal scene of action was North Street, near Tom Paine's monument. Four controls were established. Early in the game an autoist who ultimately gave his name as Herbert L. Ludwigsdorff of 251 West Eighty-seventh Street came along in a racing car which the police say was going at a lively speed. They timed it between Controls 1 and 2, and then gave the signal for No. 3 to stop it.

The policeman at No. 3 ran out into the road and waved his hand. But the car went on. No. 3 gave the signal to No. 4. The men at No. 4 promptly stretched a rope across the road. Thereupon the car stopped, reversed, and then tore back along North Street until it came to a side road leading through Broadview Park.

Down this it raced. The police, however, yelled in delight when they saw what road the car had taken. Then they proceeded leisurely in the direction of the car until, a few hundred feet from North Street, they came upon it, sunk in mud up to the hubs of the wheels.

Fugitive Auto in the Mud.

The autoist, surrounded by the women of his party, was trying ineffectually and alone to dig his car out. Police and men hired by the owner united to drag it out. Finally covered with mud the owner drove in his car to the court of Judge Schlesinger.

The Judge said that on account of the mud he would let the autoist off with a $20 fine. He had intended to fine him $100.

Other New Rochelle arrests were Thomas M. McGurl of Pelham Manor, Charles Scott of Rye, and E. L. Buchanan of 104 West Sixty-second Street. They were fined $20 each.

A diamond ring worth $800 and a twelve-story house valued at $500,000 were both put up as bail by automobilists arrested for speeding through the streets of Long Island City last evening. Frederick W. White, a merchant, of 27 West Fifty-fifth Street, Manhattan, according to Bicycle Policeman Richard Ahearn, was going 22 miles an hour down Jackson Avenue, when arrested.

At the station house he stripped off a handsome ring, which he valued at $800, and left it in the custody of the Lieutenant on the desk as a guarantee that he would appear this morning to answer the charge of speeding.

When Augustus S. Woodward, chauffeur for Charles Kaye, a merchant giving his address as 12 West Twenty-first Street, was overhauled by Bicycle Policeman Frank on Jackson Avenue, near Hulse Street, Long Island City, and taken to the Fourth Street Police Station, Mr. Kaye pledged as security for the appearance of his chauffeur a twelve-story building valued at $500,000.

Louis E. Lockwood, a salesman, of 507 West 135th Street, Manhattan, who was out for a spin in an automobile, was not fortunate enough to own either a diamond ring or a half million dollar house, but he had several good friends, who, when notified of his predicament, went to the police station house and gave bail.

Arrests in Jamaica.

Three arrests were made in Jamaica. The men arrested each gave surety bonds in $100 for appearance in the Far Rockaway Court this morning.

They were: Gaston Plantinn, 33 years, of 1,699 Broadway, Manhattan, driver for an automobile concern, charged with running at the rate of forty miles an hour on the Merrick Road; Nathan B. Stearn of 103 West 130th Street, charged with running thirty miles an hour on the Merrick Road, and William R. Steinway of Steinway Avenue, Astoria, Queens, charged with running thirty-eight miles an hour on Hillside Avenue.

In Yonkers Raymond F. Tiffany, chauffeur for David Boyle of 48 Prince Street, Paterson, N. J., was arrested for speeding and fined $15. Louis S. Bostwick, chauffeur for David Mahaney of 13 East Fifty-fifth Street, was also arrested, and gave $100 bail for a later examination.

TRAFFIC SQUAD'S BARRACKS.

Old Fifth Avenue Hotel Stables Transformed for Mounted Police.

The old Fifth Avenue Hotel stables at 153 and 155 East Thirty-second Street have been remodeled under the supervision of Police Inspector Max Schmittberger of the Traffic Squad, and are now ready for occupancy. Seventy-five mounted policemen will take possession in a day or two.

The building is three stories high, 175 feet deep, and 50 feet wide. The ground floor is designed for drill purposes. The horses are stabled on the second floor in fireproof quarters, and on the third floor are the saddle, bridle, blanket, shower bath, locker, and general assembly rooms.

Lieuts. Eagan, Wilson, and John T. Smith will be in charge for each twenty-four hours, with eight-hour tours.

TWO BLACK HAND MEN CAUGHT

Victim Threatened with Death and Barns Burned—Wouldn't Pay.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., May 10.—A Black Hand leader, who escaped when the local police arrested two of his accomplices yesterday, is believed to be lurking around Franklin Park to wreak vengeance on Augistino Dassaro, from whom the trio tried to extort $5,000. Dassaro has placed a guard around his place.

Dassaro has received several Black Hand letters in the last year, and a month ago, after ignoring a demand for $1,000, his barns were burned. Last week he received another letter declaring that another refusal would cost him his life, and he must leave $5,000 "at the sign of the frog" near the Franklin Park station of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Dassaro told his neighbors about it, but none seemed to know what the "sign of the frog" meant.

The letter ordered that the money be left before 11 A. M. on Saturday. At that time Paul Wagi, a constable, was working with a gang of railroad laborers near the station and saw two Italians poking around a billboard shaped like a frog. Wagi jumped to the conclusion that they were the Black Hand men, he having heard Dassaro's story. A third man was standing some distance off watching the highway. This man walked away in the direction of Dassaro's place, and the others came toward this city. Wagi telephoned to the police, and Sergt. John Clinton met the Italians and asked them if they had seen a lost child. They were off their guard for a moment, and Clinton seized the larger man and dove into his pistol pocket, finding a big revolver. With this he held up the pair, and got another revolver and a blackjack from the second man.

When locked up they said they were John Sery, aged 22, and Michael Filosetta, aged 27. Filosetta refused to give his address, but Sery said he came from South River, N. J. All the threatening letters to Dassaro were postmarked South River. The captives refused to give the name of their accomplice.

AUTO CAUSES A RUNAWAY.

Pushes Surrey Down a Hill and Occupants Are Spilled at the Bottom.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., May 10.—J. Maxwell Arrowsmith, his wife and two children of Athenia, were the victims of a peculiar accident this afternoon at Montclair Heights, while driving along Valley Road, on their way to Paterson.

The Arrowsmiths were in a surrey, hitched to a spirited black horse. As they started to descend the steep hill at the Passaic County line, a touring automobile, in which were seated two men and two women, came up and struck the surrey squarely from behind. The carriage was thrown forward against the horse, the animal started on a mad run down the hill while the auto kept pushing from behind.

The auto had become unmanageable and followed the surrey clear to the bottom of the hill.

When the Great Notch Road was reached, Arrowsmith had obtained some control over the horse and swung around into the road, but in doing so the horse and carriage were upset, throwing the occupants into the ditch. The auto ran into a bank and stopped.

Arrowsmith immediately jumped up and ran to the horse's head, holding him down until Mrs. Arrowsmith, who was held fast by the overturned vehicle, and the two children got clear of the wreckage. Mrs. Arrowsmith received a cut on the head and suffered considerably from the shock. Her husband received a bad cut on the left ankle and a badly sprained wrist. The children escaped unhurt.

The chauffeur explained to Mr. Arrowsmith, that the machine had got beyond his control, and after the carriage overturned he had to run the auto into the bank to stop it. The owner gave Mr. Arrowsmith his name and address, and promised to pay all damages.

INSANE AFTER A FIGHT.

Commuter Hurt in Row with a Conductor Over Railroad Ticket.

Clarence B. Morehouse, son of Dr. James T. Morehouse of Orange, N. J., was removed Saturday night to the Essex County Hospital for the Insane. His condition is declared to be due to injuries received in a scuffle on a Lackawanna Railroad train on Thursday night. Conductor Edward Dockery was arrested Saturday night, and is held at Newark Police Headquarters, to await the result of young Morehouse's injuries.

The trouble is said to have started when Mr. Morehouse held on to his commutation ticket instead of handing it to Dockery to be punched. Dockery seized it, and the two men engaged in a rough-and-tumble fight. The following day Morehouse began to act queerly, and Saturday night he became so violent that he was taken to the hospital by his father.

Conductor Patrick Kerwin and Brakeman Alexander McClay say they have had trouble with Mr. Morehouse refusing to surrender his ticket, but passengers say that Mr. Morehouse was struck while he was in his seat.

Young Morehouse's father insists that his son's condition is due to the blows received in the fight with Dockery.

BURNS UP HIS CHILDREN.

Negro Fires House After Locking Them In—Five Dead.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 10.—Jim Kennedy, a negro of Montgomery, locked up his seven children in his house to-night and then set the house on fire.

Five of the seven were burned to death.

Woman Thrown from Street Car.

Just as Mrs. S. A. Baer and her husband started to board a northbound Madison Avenue car last night at Fourth Avenue and Fourteenth Street, the car started, and Mrs. Baer was thrown to the pavement. She clung to the guard rail and was dragged for a distance of twenty-five feet, suffering contusions of the body. Dr. Simmons of Bellevue Hospital attended her in a drug store near the place.

Handball Men Want Match.

Handball men were much in evidence at the Brooklyn Handball Club's court yesterday, and it is likely that a number of matches will be made. In the absence of James Dunne, Jr., the "Father of Handball," Jim Donahue, the official ball maker, announced that he would match Jimmy Kelly, the Mayo boy, against P. J. Corby, and in the event that Corby would not accept he would pit Kelly against Oliver Drew, whom many believe to be the greatest player in America. Yesterday a big gallery watched a contest between William Courtney and Manas O'Donnell against Jimmy Kelly and Mike Heney, the old man of the forge. With all the cuteness of Courtney, he was unable to offset the hard-hitting qualities of Kelly, and the result was Courtney and partner were beaten by 21 to 5, 21 to 20, and 20 to 21.

MANY WANT TO FEED THE IMMIGRANTS

Preparing to Bid for New Contracts for Privileges at Ellis Island.

ESTIMATES MAY BE LOWER

This Year Is Expected to Show a Great Reduction in Immigration—Old Concessionaires Active.

On July 1 the contracts for the feeding of newly arrived aliens at the immigration station on Ellis Island, the handling of the baggage of arriving steerage passengers, and the privilege of exchanging the money of the immigrants, will expire, and already the Department of Commerce and Labor is asking for bids looking to a renewal of contracts.

The concessions are among the best in the gift of the Government, and a keen competition has already begun to develop as a number of bids are being prepared. The contracts are for three years, and when it is figured that during the periods hundreds of thousands of immigrants pass through Ellis Island, at least a million pieces of baggage are handled, and an enormous amount of money exchanged, some idea of the value of the contracts can be estimated.

Harry Balfe is the present holder of the restaurant and feeding contract. The money exchange is done by the American Express Company, and the baggage handling contract is held by William H. Werner, who handles baggage in all parts of this city and near-by places for 35 cents a piece. The rate of money exchange is governed by current quotations.

It is about supplying the food that the greatest interest centres. Three years ago the contract was held by Hudgins & Dumas. They improved the service of the old days, when food was doled out by helpers regardless of sanitation, and when immigrants were impressed into the service of serving food. Three years ago, when Harry Balfe won the contract, the bidding was very spirited. The feeling, even among the employes on the island, was bitter at the time, and it was freely predicted that Hudgins & Dumas would win.

Since he has had the contract Mr. Balfe has improved the service, opened new and improved eating rooms for immigrants, and maintained a first-class restaurant for employes. He receives from the steamship lines 24 cents a day for every person detained on Ellis Island. Where the stay is short there is a price for each meal served. In addition he puts up $1 and 50-cent boxes of food for immigrants leaving here by train.

The belief on Ellis Island is that the present concessionaires will get a renewal of their contracts, as they are all in the field for renewals and are looking after their interests and not neglecting political fences.

The bids will be opened in the office of the Commissioner General of Immigration, Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, at 10 A. M. on June 25. Each bid will have to be accompanied by a certified check, drawn on a National bank, for $1,000, which will be a guarantee of good faith.

As this year promises to be the worst that Ellis Island has seen in many years, the experts in immigration affairs are trying to figure out whether it will have any effect in the bidding for the contracts.

MAYER & CO. RESUME TO-DAY.

Stock Exchange Firm, Which Failed for $7,000,000, Pays Creditors in Full.

The firm of Mayer & Co., bankers and brokers, of 11 Wall Street, which was one of the first important financial concerns to succumb to the disturbances of last Fall, closing its doors on Oct. 22, will resume business to-day with its creditors paid in full and its Stock Exchange members reinstated.

Soon after the suspension of the firm in October and the appointment of William F. Goldbeck of the law firm of Alexander & Colby, as assignee, a petition in bankruptcy was filed against the brokers, their liabilities being placed at nearly $7,000,000. It was later learned that the firm was carrying upwards of 25,000 shares of Delaware & Hudson Railroad stock, which had shrunk enormously after the suicide of President Wilcox in the Spring of last year. This stock and other collateral was held by various local banks and trust companies as security, and an injunction issued by the court ordering these holders to only dispose of this stock at the sanction of the court caused a great deal of comment at the time.

Mr. Goldbeck said last night:

> Mayer & Co. have paid their Stock Exchange creditors in full, with interest, and have settled all their indebtedness, the bankruptcy proceedings having been dismissed several days ago. Their Stock Exchange members, Abraham B. Baylis and George R. Leslie, have been formally reinstated by the Stock Exchange, and the firm resumes its business Monday morning at its former offices, No. 11 Wall Street. I think this is the first of the failures resulting from the abnormal conditions of last October to be followed by complete resumption.

The firm of Mayer & Co. was organized on June 1, 1906, to succeed the old Stock Exchange firm of Mayer & Whitehouse. It is composed of Marcus Mayer, of the old firm, Mr. Baylis, admitted to the Stock Exchange on Oct. 29, 1903, and Mr. Leslie, who became a member on June 21, 1906.

SALOON MEN ROUSE CLERGY.

Assertion That Jersey Pastors Oppose Anti-Saloon League Resented.

Circulars sent out by the Liquor Dealers' Association of New Jersey stating that the Presbytery of Morris and Orange had put itself on record at a recent meeting as opposed to the Anti-Saloon League has stirred up the Presbyterian clergymen.

One of the members of the Presbytery is the Rev. Dr. James M. Ludlow, pastor of the Munn Avenue Presbyterian Church, East Orange, of which Gov. Fort is a member. Dr. Ludlow says that the Presbytery did not place itself on record as opposed to the Anti-Saloon League.

"The Presbytery did decline to indorse the present management of the Anti-Saloon League," said Dr. Ludlow yesterday, "on the ground that it was unwise for an ecclesiastical body to indorse the personal management of any society over which it has no control. But to show that there might be no uncertainty about the Presbytery's indorsement of the present temperance movement that is sweeping over the land, I myself introduced a resolution which carried, namely, that we 'heartily approve the movement for local option.'

"The liquor dealers have made a great mistake in assuming that this means any less hatred of their abominable business or any lessening of the hope that the saloon is soon to go, like surface sewers and other nuisances."

REBATE FROM YOUR DENTIST.

That's a Socialist-Dentist's Plan to Dodge Predatory Wealth.

New York has had "red" Socialists and "parlor" Socialists, but now there is a new kind in the field, practicing "Socialistic dentistry." There seems to be something to be said for this variation of type, for it gathers unto itself Eastern rugs for the office, a bland secretary to decorate the same, and a dusky "laboratory assistant." This display of prosperity convinced the reporter that the services of the "Socialistic dentists" were not confined to fellow-believers of the long-haired type, and the laboratory assistant acknowledged as much.

It matters not to them whether the patient is plutocrat or Anarchist, for the process of removing a tooth socialistically is in no wise different from that of ordinary dental surgery. The Socialism comes in on the receipt of the bill, which is headed:

"We believe in Honest Statements, Fair Charges, and the motto, 'Each for All,'" and bears the yet more interesting postscript: "Save the receipt to procure your Semi-Annual Rebate."

It is right here, as the laboratory assistant explained, that the Socialism steps in.

"That's the 'each for all' part. Now, we decided on a certain sum as necessary for running the business and paying the salaries, [nod of emphatic approval from the bland secretary,] and for a reasonable profit. Anything over that we distribute in rebates to the patrons."

This unusual process is scheduled to occur every March and September. When the rebate day approaches, the "Socialistic dentists" decide what amount their profit is predatory wealth, which ought by rights to go to the producers, according to all good Socialistic political economy. Then, after figuring out how much of a percentage can be allowed, the doctor takes out his little list of patients who have paid their bills before "rebate day," and sends to each a polite message requesting him to call and learn something to his interest. To make assurance doubly sure, a notice is also posted in the show window urging the people to come in and share in the undue prosperity of the trade. At first some of the customers who had been brought up on the old-fashioned theory that what a man earns belongs to him alone, seemed a little bashful about stepping up and taking part of their dentist's profits. Now, however, such is the rapid growth of an idea, all appeared quite promptly on the last rebate day.

JOIN WAR ON TUBERCULOSIS.

Young Folks' League Will Furnish Patients with Milk and Eggs.

A movement which might be termed complemental to the general fight now being waged against the development and spread of tuberculosis in this city, is that in process of organization by the Young Folks' League for the Home Treatment of Tuberculosis. The league has pledged itself to raise funds for the purpose of establishing and maintaining a depot which will distribute absolutely free every day three quartes of milk and six eggs to each tuberculous patient who comes with proper recommendations after his case has been investigated by the hospital visiting nurses.

It is planned to aid the tuberculous poor throughout the entire city in this manner by district division and management. It is expected that not only will the ravages of the disease be checked by this means, but that the lives of many patients will be saved.

Miss Pauline I. Shenberg, spokesman of the League, said yesterday that a meeting will be held in Temple Beth-El vestry rooms on the evening of May 19 to forward its aims. Controller Metz has promised to be present and speak on the welfare of the city in this movement. Dr. James A. Miller, director of the tuberculosis clinic of Bellevue Hospital and Chairman of the Tuberculosis Committee of the Charity Organization Society, will speak on district division and management. Dr. Sigmund D. Goldwater will discuss the needs of the district between Eighty-sixth and 116th Streets and from Fifth Avenue to the East River. The Rev. Dr. Schulman will speak on "Charity and Humanity."

The League will hold a strawberry festival early in June to raise funds in support of the work.

CAN'T HALT JERSEY SEWER.

Lawyer Says New York Can't Prevent Discharge of Sewage Into Bay.

The Passaic Valley Sewerage Commission of New Jersey has received an opinion from its counsel, T. C. Simonton of Paterson, that the proposed trunk sewer, which is to relieve several of the larger municipalities of the northern part of the State, may be built so as to discharge sewage into New York Bay, and that such action cannot be restrained either by the City of New York or by the State of New York. In his opinion he quotes a decision of the Massachusetts Supreme Court which calls tidal water the natural method of disposing of sewage.

Mr. Simonton also points out that the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court, through Justice Holmes, that New Jersey has jurisdiction over part of New York Bay further sustains his opinion.

TWO MEN WITH BROKEN BACKS

One of Them Is Said to be a Relative of Mark Twain.

Two men with broken backs, one of them Victor Clemens, a relative of Mark Twain, are in the Williamsburg Hospital. Clemens's home is at 170 Monitor Street, Greenpoint. He suffered his injury three weeks ago when diving in the pool of the Greenpoint Y. M. C. A. His head struck the concrete bottom and his back was broken.

Since then the surgeons have kept Clemens in a bed of water bags. The lower half of his body has become paralyzed and the upper half has begun to swell. He cannot move a limb, but is conscious and can speak. He knows that he has only a short time to live.

The other patient is Frank Martin, 22 years old, of 112 Varet Street, Williamsburg, who was taken to the hospital yesterday. He fell from a hammock. He struck on the back of his head and his spine was fractured. He, like Clemens, is also conscious and can speak, but cannot move hand or foot.

MOTORBOAT RACING RULES.

Uniform Code Will Be Used in All Important Events This Year.

The Motorboat Club of America has concluded to discard the racing rules it used last year and to adopt those of the American Powerboat Association in so far as the rating of boats and engines is concerned, while it may retain a classification based on over-all length, rather than upon rating. The motorboat club rules of last year were those adopted by the Motorboat Committee of the Jamestown Exposition, and were originally framed largely to avoid certain apparent inconsistencies in the American Powerboat Association's rules.

The American Powerboat Association has already incorporated in its rating rule one or two points of that of the Motorboat Club in so far as ascertaining engine power is concerned, and the Motorboat Club believes there is no longer any reason for maintaining a separate code of rules. All the important motorboat races in the country for the coming season will, therefore, be run under the American Power Boat Association rules, and one measurement will qualify a boat for racing in almost any waters.

Soccer Teams Play Tie Game.

Taking advantage of the cool weather of the past week, the Camerons played the Arcadia Thistles of Brooklyn in Brooklyn yesterday a tie game of one goal each, the Camerons being the first to score in the opening half. D. Guthrie shot the goal for the league champions. With the score at 1 to 0 against them, the Brooklyn champions made a determined bid for the victory in the second half. After fifteen minutes of play D. Crawford beat the visitors' defense with a rattling shot. Another goal was shot by W. Russell of the home team, but, being disallowed by the referee, was not scored.

EAST SIDE TO GIVE TOWER TO THE CITY

Ornamental Gateway to be Erected in Delancey Street Parkway by Subscription.

TO MARK SUBWAY OPENING

Committee in Charge Plans to Lay Foundation Stone for Structure Early in July.

The Delancey Street Subway Celebration Committee, organized in March for the opening of the Subway station at the Williamsburg Bridge, held a special meeting yesterday afternoon at the University Settlement Building, 184 Eldridge Street, and discussed its plans at length.

It is proposed to erect by public subscription a memorial, consisting of a gateway and clock tower, at the entrance to the Delancey Street Parkway, Delancey and Essex Streets. The foundation stone is to be laid early in July, on the first day trains of the Brooklyn elevated system run over the Williamsburg Bridge into the Subway station.

The idea of the memorial was suggested at a meeting of the East Side Civic Club on March 25 by Charles B. Stover, the founder of the club, and the committee was formed. The memorial will cost $15,000. The inscription of the monument will read: "The gift of the people of the east side to the city, to commemorate the completion of the Delancey Street Subway loop and its connection with the Williamsburg Bridge."

Mr. Stover, in speaking of the plans last night, said:

"We thought of the plan some time last July, and there was some idea of asking the papers to start a popular subscription. This idea we abandoned. We now have the idea of collecting subscriptions systemized. For instance, the professions are taken by themselves, the doctors on the east side contributing an aggregate of $300 in subscriptions of $10 each. The roof of the tower from curb to curb of the Parkway, at whose Essex Street end it will form a monumental gateway, is twenty-four feet, while the open space between the two abutments of the arch conforms to the width of the pathway between the double row of trees.

"Roughly speaking the proposed monument consists of three main parts, the arch proper, an open gallery just above the arch, in which the bell for the clock tower will hang, and above all a semicircular roof containing on each side of the structure a clock dial. The first part will have granite bases of a height nearly six feet. It is designed very plainly, having no ornamentation except a series of medallion portraits above the two main arches and ornamental friezes at the same level on the exterior sides of the structure.

"The main arch of the gateway, having a height of twenty-one feet, rises slightly above the main corners of the subway entrance building, on the opposite side of Essex Street. The upper portions of the tower will be very ornamental, consisting largely of polychromatic terra cotta. The lower portion of this section of the monument constitutes a belfry in which behind the broad open arcade on each side of the tower will hang a great bronze bell weighing about 1,000 pounds, to be cast in Troy. These plans were adopted after a month's deliberation and after careful consultation with the architects."

MORE TIME FOR OARSMEN.

American Rowing Association to Close Entry List May 18.

Because of the continuance of cold weather and the consequent lateness of the rowing season the Board of Stewards of the American Rowing Association has decided to extend the date of receiving entries for the annual regatta at Philadelphia, scheduled for May 23, to May 18. The original date on which entries had to be in was May 9, but the late Spring had so handicapped the oarsmen, especially those from the clubs, that the Stewards considered it advisable to extend the date.

In spite of these handicaps the entries have been coming in steadily, and the Stewards are assured of a well-filled list. This applies particularly to the school and college crews which have been working for months with this regatta in view. Although there are now five eights definitely entered for the interscholastic race, the Stewards expect one or two more before next week. Scholastic rowing is in its infancy in this country, for which reason the Stewards are giving the schoolboys every consideration possible.

In order that the regatta may be run off on schedule time it has been decided to pursue the double referee system which this association inaugurated at its first regatta. The two referees will be Hugh Cabot of Boston and William Innes Forbes of Philadelphia.

From the number of club entries which have been received or assured from New York the club races are likely to result in an intercity struggle. Two entries were received yesterday from the Nonpareil Boat Club of New York, which makes three crews this club has already entered.

Shuster First in Road Race.

J. Schuster of the Century Road Club Association won the ten-mile handicap open road race of the Long Island Division of the Century Road Club, held on the Merrick Road, at Valley Stream, L. I., yesterday. Schuster had a handicap of 3:30, and covered the distance in 34:21, with J. Steinert, with a 2:30 handicap, second, and R. La Rose, starting from the same mark, third. F. W. Eifler, Charles Schlosser and F. M. Eifler were the scratch riders, and as they had no chance to catch the limit riders they competed for the time prize, the three riders finishing in a bunch, with F. W. Eifler first, Schlosser second, and J. M. Eifler third, the first two being a fifth of a second apart. F. W. Eifler's time for the distance was 32:40 2-5, which was good, as the wind blew against the riders all through the race. Out of the sixty starters seventeen riders were prize winners.

Finds a Baby at Her Door.

When Mrs. Jennie Oliver of 17 Ward Street, Bloomfield, N. J., was awakened Saturday night by the crying of a child she opened the front door and found a six-weeks-old baby on the porch. Wrapped up in the bundle with the baby were four bottles of milk, a lot of baby clothes of good quality, and a note requesting that whoever found the child give it good care. The little outcast was turned over to the Overseer of the Poor.

Jockey Club Veterinarian Resigns.

E. A. A. Grange, for several years the veterinary surgeon appointed by the Jockey Club stewards as inspector of horses in the saddling paddock, has resigned his office, and will retire from the Jockey Club's employ after the close of the Jamaica meeting. His resignation was induced by his appointment as Principal of the Ottawa Veterinary College, Ottawa, Canada, of which he is a graduate, and to which he will return as the head on Wednesday of this week.

Brockett to Report to Newark.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., May 10.—Louis "King" Brockett, the former New York American League pitcher and third baseman, will report to Manager George Stallings of the Eastern League club of this city to-morrow. On Monday at Buffalo, where Newark opens that city's season, Fred Carisch, the erstwhile Pittsburg catcher, will report.

Wrestling Match Declared Off.

The wrestling match between Jenkins and Cazeaux, which was to take place to-night at Madison Square Garden Concert Hall, has been declared off. Manager Kennedy notified P. T. Powers that Cazeau would not wrestle Jenkins.

LARCHMONT SHOOT CLOSES.

H. T. Shriver Wins Championship Cup—Winners of Season Trophies.

The final shoot of the Larchmont Yacht Club was held on Saturday afternoon. The results of the competition between ten marksmen for the championship cup and medal furnished high scores, the average being 85 birds at scratch. H. T. Shriver was the winner, with 94 hits to his credit, closely followed by A. C. Bostwick with 91.

The other events were also closely contested, four of them resulting in ties, which on the shoot-off two went to Morison and one each to Robins and Scott. On the Murphy Cup E. S. Ballou was winner, and the latter, with Collins, won the partnership event.

The competitions for the season Sauer gun, which was a tie between Shriver and Collins, each with five legs, was won by Shriver, and the Hubbard cup finally went to ex-Commodore A. C. Bostwick.

The largest attendance of the season witnessed the sport, and the shooters wound up with a dinner at the club. The scores:

Western Olympic Tryouts.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., May 10.—Lack of sufficient entries prevented the Olympic tryouts yesterday from furnishing close finishes. The feature of the day was the fifteen-mile Marathon race, which was won by Joseph B. King of the Coast Artillery, running under the colors of the Irish-American Athletic Club, in 1:24:29 1-5. Edmundston of the University of Idaho won the 800-meter run from Glasner, the Olympic Club star, in 1:59. F. Smithson of Portland won the 110-meter hurdle and the 100-meter dash. His time of 0:15¾ would have been a world's record if he had not fouled a hurdle. Ralph Rose took the weight events.

BARNEY TURK'S SHUT; EPICURES ARE SAD

Owners of Famous Brooklyn Eating Place Decide to Retire to the Country.

THEY SERVED FAMOUS BEER

And Barney and Katrina, Brother and Sister, Who Maintained Place for Years, Had Noted Men as Patrons.

Many men prominent in politics, business, and professional life in Brooklyn learned with regret yesterday that "Barney" Turk's, the most famous resort of its kind in the borough, had passed into history. The little, old, out-of-the-way place, in Atlantic Avenue, between Smith Street and Boerum Place, has closed its doors after many years of existence. "Barney" and his sister, Katrina, who managed i[illegible] have retired from business and are going to live in the country, having made their pile at the old stand.

"Barney" and Katrina have not sold out the business to any one, although they might have done so at a good price. Making up their minds to retire, they simply closed the doors, and the place will live in the memory of Brooklynites only as "Barney" Turk's.

"Barney's" occupied a store on the ground floor of a tenement, three blocks away from the hurly burly of Fulton Street and Borough Hall Square. For many years it was famous for the excellent quality of the beer and the toothsomeness of the simple lunches served there. There was no "swell front" to Barney's, no cut glass or silver or finger bowls. Its exterior and interior appearances were severely plain, but everything about the place was kept scrupulously clean, and the liquids which Barney served and the eatables which Sister Katrina put before the guests were of the very best to be had.

Barney's specialty was imported beers, the finest that Germany could brew. Although in an out-of-the-way place, he gave no attention to neighborhood trade. His patrons came from all over Brooklyn, to sit in the little back room and eat and drink and talk politics or business, or gossip professionally. Men who shaped the destinies of the two political parties in the county, Supreme Court Justices, leading physicians and lawyers whose names were known throughout the borough, were to be seen nightly in Barney's little back room.

A "To Let" sign hangs pathetically in the window, and Barney and Katrina are going away into the country to live in retirement. And many Brooklynites feel that a pleasant something will hereafter be lacking in their days.

LARCHMONT YACHT RACES.

Interesting Series of Events for Annual Race Week—Motorboat Events.

The racing fixtures of the Larchmont Yacht Club for the season of 1908 have just been announced by the Regatta Committee. The Spring Regatta, the first one of the season, will be held on June 20. It will be open to all classes. The twenty-ninth annual regatta falls on Saturday, July 4, and, as usual, the Colt Cup is open for competition for yachts in Class B. Larchmont race week will begin on Saturday, July 18, and continue to Saturday, July 25, with racing every day except Tuesday. A series of fourteen races for each day has been arranged, and, according to custom the Regatta committee will provide races for the owners of two or more yachts in any class not already provided for, who may desire to race. The series races will be as follows:

Series for Class J, 68 feet R. M.
Series for Class K, 57 feet R. M.
Series for New York Yacht Club handicap class.
Series for the New York Yacht Club one-design 30-foot class.
